MYSTERY MESSAGE CALLS LINDYS HOME

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

HEARST RANCH, San Simeon, Cal., Dec. 8. DON PONCHO, good American of Spanish descent, born on the edge of the Pacific, just below here, near Cambria, says:

"I'll take you over to the hill above Marmomejo, you can see very far from there. How far? To New York, nearly."

The earth's rotundity, and many modern contraptions do not limit Don Poncho. He takes you long miles, on horseback, of course, early in the morning, to the hill above Marmomejo, shows you a stately group of mountains, including Lucia, far to the north, all the while explaining that the world is changing, for the worse.

"I'LL TELL you what's the matter with this country. You know it yourself. It's the automobile. That costs money, makes people lazy.

"People in San Simeon get in the automobile to go down to the store. Automobiles and trucks always running from this ranch to San Luis Obispo and back, bringing people, taking them away.

"We used to hitch six horses to a wagon, once a month, drive to San Luis, one day; drive back the next, spend four bits. That was living."

WHEN DON PONCHO, years ago, went to Sacramento to bring back a bunch of horses, including "one wild horse, a brown stud," it was his first and only trip to such a distance.

Persuaded to enter an automobile, after a few moments he seized the driver by the neck and ordered him to stop.

He went after the brown wild horse on foot, roped him in the corral, "and you never saw such a good horse. We worked and rode him twenty years."

ONCE, IN early automobile days, when a motorist drove too fast through a herd of steers that Don Poncho was driving, the latter first protested courteously, then dropped his rope around the motorist's shoulders, dragged him out of his car and to the police station.

BLOOD WILL tell. Don Poncho could give lessons in manners to anyone lacking his Spanish ancestral line.

You could send the average second generation of American go-getters to "prep" school, New England college, and over to Oxford, to be ironed out by experts, and that American, compared to Don Poncho, would be like Sancho Panza compared to his master, Don Quixote.

HE TELLS you with a smile that he was "born on a horse," and now, with his eightieth year far behind him, rides his thirty or forty miles, straight as an arrow, amazed if asked, "Are you tired," throws his leg over a sixteen-hand horse as gracefully and lightly as he did fifty years ago, and says:

"I take you a better ride tomorrow, only longer."

THOSE THAT gather and preserve fragments of early American history should talk with Don Poncho. He can tell of life on his father's ranch, at the edge of this ocean, when queer speakers of English, out here, thinking of nothing but gold, were curiosities.

"My father had a hundred Indians working on his ranch, good vaqueros too, could rope cattle and break a horse as well as anybody. Every week we'd kill a beef or two for the Indians.

"How much my father paid them? Two or three dollars a month. We gave them food and clothes, like the missions did. When they got the two or three dollars they went and got drunk; no use giving them more.

"Then smallpox came and they all died, and all the other Indians died in all directions. We had only two or three left out of our hundred Indians."

Certain gentlemen who declare that vaccination is not necessary should remember that those dead Indians had never been vaccinated. Nobody of Don Poncho's family died of smallpox.

WHAT A pleasure to meet a man who lives close to the earth, and appreciates it, knows every trail over mountains and through valleys from here to San Francisco, and loves them all.

To Don Poncho the comparative value of various grasses for cattle, the length and depth of their roots, enabling them to fight through drought, their quick response to rainfall, are as important as Aluminum Company of America, "Big Steel," with its gyrations, or the changing value of gold to the hurried money mob that thinks itself important, is rich today, "broke," and jumping out of a hotel window, tomorrow.

DON PONCHO has never been rich, and he will never be poor, for his wealth is not in money, or half empty hotels and apartment houses, or office buildings erected too rapidly, or surplus factories.

You start out with him as the sun comes up over the mountain ranges to the east, ride back with the sun going before you, sinking into the Pacific.

Sunshine, air from the mountains and the ocean preserving health into old age, slanting groves of dark green live oak trees, straight pines, growing on the higher hills, the horse and the saddle beneath him, are Don Poncho's wealth.

It is wealth that means happiness and cannot be taken away. Too bad that so few know it and enjoy it.

NOTRE DAME SELECTS LAYDEN

Duquesne's Mentor to Succeed Anderson As Coach

By JESS CARVER

Elmer Layden will be Notre Dame's next football coach.

Head coach at Duquesne University since 1927, Layden today became the most talked-about man in the gridiron world when announcement was made by the Associated Press from South Bend, Ind., that he would succeed Heartley (Hunk) Anderson.

The story also was that Layden probably would fill the role of athletic director, as did the late Knute Rockne in the days when Layden played for the Irish as one of the famous Four Horsemen of 1924.

LAYDEN 'EMBARRASSED'

Meanwhile, Layden, here, said he had not been "officially notified" of his appointment. He added that he had completed his football coaching contract here and would be available for the new position, and intimated he would be happy to return to Notre Dame, where his younger brother, Mike, is a member of the varsity squad.

The news from South Bend, breaking on the heels of a copyrighted story in the Chicago Herald-Examiner, a Hearst newspaper, said Jess Harper would resign as athletic director at Notre Dame in the drastic shakeup coming in the wake of the most disastrous season in the football history of the Irish.

Questioned in his office on the Bluff today, with his wife sitting by, and Paul Abele, his secretary, handling a deluge of telephone calls from many anxious inquirers, Layden said:

"Frankly, I am embarrassed. I cannot make a statement. Any announcements will have to come from South Bend. I have not been officially notified of any appointment, and all I know at this time is what is in the papers and what I have been told."

The Rev. J. J. Callahan, president of Duquesne University, said he would have no statement to make until after he has had an opportunity to speak with Layden.

ANDERSON SILENT

At their South Bend homes, both Harper and Anderson refused to comment. Harper had nothing

The cold will be of short duration, he said as the narrow belt of frigid temperatures is followed by warmer weather in the Northwest.

Possible snow flurries tonight will be followed by clear skies over the week-end, Brotzman predicted. The low mark tonight will be between 20 and 25 degrees, according to the forecast.

Ickes Studies Oil Stabilization Plan

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Secretary Ickes, the oil administrator, today made detailed examination of the oil industry"s plan to stabilize gasoline prices by removing distress gasoline supplies from the market.

M'DADE GETS SENTENCE TO JAIL

Offer to Wed Danahey Girl Blocked by Her Parents

Edward J. McDade's offer to wed the girl who went to Morganza because of him was spurned in Criminal Court today and McDade was sentenced to serve from six months to seven years in the county jail.

The 23-year-old husband of Grace McDade, who was killed in a fall from his automobile, pleaded no defense to charges brought in behalf of Mary Catherine Danahey, 16, of Hope Hollow road, near Carnegie.

PARENTS' OPPOSITION

He said he would marry the girl if the court would permit, but Earl Danahey, her brother, told Judge James Gray her parents would not consent.

McDade, well-dressed, chewing gum and slightly swaggering, admitted his affair with the girl had endured for 18 months, but said his home life with his 21-year-old wife was pleasant.

GIRL IN MORGANZA

While he is serving his jail sentence, Mary Catherine will be in Morganza for 18 months. She was sent there as an incorrigible after both she and McDade had sworn their love while he was detained in connection with the inquiry into his wife's death.

The Coroner exonerated McDade, former movie theater proprietor, of 2136 Charles street, after investigating the death of Mrs. McDade. During the investigation, police discovered McDade's affair with the Danahey girl.

Administration Would Share Revenues With States

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—A triple program providing a tax of $2.60 a gallon on distilled spirits, sharing of the revenues with states, and legislatiton to permit the administration better to negotiate reciprocal trade agreements on foreign liquor imports was recommended to Congress today by the President's special interdepartmental committee.

The recommendations contemplate annual revenue of approximately $500,000,000 from liquor, including $156,000,000 from beer.

Committee members said the program also was intended to bring about reasonable prices to consumers, encourage the drinking of light wines and beer rather than hard liquor and the end of the bootlegger.

SITUATION REVIEWED

Carrying voluminous studies by the various departments of the government, the report was sent to the House Ways and Means Committee by Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Acting Secretary of the Treasury.

It is to be made public formally on Monday when the Ways and Means and the Senate Finance committees meet jointly to consider the new liquor tax bill to be prepared for early action by Congress in January.

Meanwhile, distillers gathered in an organization meeting to consider the marketing agreement the Agricultural Adjustment Administration has proposed and to talk over whisky prices.

While rumored threats of a government club to force down the price of liquor were current, the distillers displayed little concern.

Radioed to 'Hurry Home'

COL. AND MRS. CHARLES A. LINDBERGH . . . SUMMONED BY AIR

The Lindys, today urgently summoned to the U. S. "on family business" in a wireless message from New York reported picked up by the police radio station at Rio de Janeiro.

COUPLE ENDS HOP OVER BRAZIL

Rumor Has Colonel Planning to Explore Amazon Jungles

BULLETIN.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—The maritime police said today its radio station had picked up a wireless message addressed to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh from the United States saying he and his wife must return home immediately because of family interests. No further details were made available.

PARA, Brazil, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, homeward bound for the Christmas holidays, landed here at 1:30 p. m., eastern standard time, today after a flight from Natal, Brazil.

A light shower was falling as the big red monoplane swooped down and alighted on the water. Mrs. Lindbergh was at the wireless, reporting to Pan-American Airways, for which her husband is technical adviser, as the craft ended the long hop.

ANNE AT WIRELESS

"Reeling in wireless antenna. Raining."

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh made the flight from Natal, 1,094 miles, in 7 hours, 21 minutes, flying at an average speed of 148.8 miles an hour. They have a distance of 3,378 additional miles to cover to reach Miami, Fla.

Pan-American Airways maintains large repair shops at Para and it was believed likely that Col. Lindbergh would have his plane gone over at those works.

JUNGLE FLIGHT RUMOR

A short time before the Lindberghs landed here reports were received that Col. Lindbergh intends to fly tomorrow toward the headwaters of the Amazon, far into the relatively unexplored interior of South America.

It was said the Colonel intends to spend a month in the jungles hunting for the "lost" white pigmy tribes.

No indication was given as to whether the purported trip would include Mrs. Lindbergh.

It was said, however, that the flight into the Amazonian region would be made from here. Para is near the 100-mile-wide mouths of the Amazon.

Painter's Widow, 'Lonely,' Ends Life

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(INS.)—Mrs. Anna Watson, widow of Henry Watson, wrote today that she was "so lonely" and then went in search of her husband by the only way she knew. She was found dead in bed with a gas tube near her mouth in a rooming house.

Her husband, well known painter of outdoor and sporting scenes and former editor of "Field and Stream," died last month.

Hotelmen Blame Price on Distillers

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 8—(AP.)—Expecting to protest to distillers against the prevailing high price of liquor, Philadelphia hotel men meet Monday night, hoping to avert what they fear will result in a public boycott of choice whisky. If the distillers prove amendable, the hotel men plan an immediate revision of price lists.

DRYS MAY PICK PENNINGTON

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—The New York Times says that "a radical change in the leadership of the Anti-Saloon League is threatened as a result of the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment."

Resolutions drawn by the headquarters committee of the Anti-Saloon League of Maryland and calling for a new general superintendent to replace the Rev. Dr. F. Scott McBride have been sent to all national directors, the Times says.

It is further stated that a movement already has been launched to place Commander John D. Pennington, former Prohibition Administrator in Dr. McBride's post.

Commander Pennington has been mentioned here as a possibility for public safety director in Mayor-elect William N. McNair's cabinet, but the suggestion brought this comment from the Mayor-elect:

"I don't know. I'm suspicious of anybody that's ever been connected with that prohibition department, although they say Pennington is a very fine man."

Buyers' Strike Over Rum Price Worries Cafes

Pittsburgh hotelmen and restaurateurs were faced with a new kind of whisky insurrection today—a passive rebellion against the prices being charged for the stuff which became legal last Tuesday.

Out in Woods Run 139 years ago the makers of whisky fought madly when attempts were made to enforce a new tax on domestic liquor. They made history with the Whisky Insurrection.

Today the drinkers, not the manufacturers, seemed entitled to be up in arms.

In some places single drinks, straight or mixed, were priced at 60 and 70 cents.

Bonded whisky was being offered—reluctantly, no doubt—as high as $4.95 a pint in one downtown place. In another place the minimum for bonded stuff was $4.50, and in a third $4.

One whisky being offered at a hotel at $4.50 a pint was on sale at the wholesale dealers at $32 a case—a case of 24 pints! And if you multiply $4.50 by 24 you still get $108, even by using the multiplication system which was popular in the very recent bootlegging days.

Blended—or cut—whisky was generally priced at $2 a pint in downtown restaurants and hotels.

In contrast to Pittsburgh prices were those promised today by the National Distillers Corporation, which announced:

"National Distillery Corporation will soon have ready some whisky to sell to the consumer at $1.50 a full quart, exclusive of state tax."

This price will apply to certain straight and blended whiskies.

Hindenburg Becomes Great-Grandfather

BERLIN, Dec. 8.—(INS.)—A great-granddaughter to President Paul von Hindenburg was born in the village of Crossjestin, Pommerania, today.

M'NAIR CLASHES WITH MAGEE

More than 400 men and women attending the annual dinner of the North Side Chamber of Commerce had "front-seats" at the long expected clash between Mayor-elect William N. McNair and Councilman-elect William A. Magee.

The flareup came after Magee had warned the incoming administration against "serving the party instead of the people" and advising the Democrats that there is "no Democratic way of running the city just as there is no Republican way."

To which the Mayor-elect retorted:

"I'm a partisan and I don't care who knows it. I want to run this city on a Democraitc plan. That is without graft. The only time I know of when this city was without graft was when the Democrat, George W. Guthrie, was mayor."

WARNING SOUNDED

Councilman-elect Magee was twice mayor of Pittsburgh as a Republican. He was elected to Council as a candidate on both the Republican and Democratic tickets. McNair closed the speaking program.

Early in his address Magee said he was a convert to the city

Disabled Vet's 'Superiority Complex' Dooms His Suit to Divorce Wife

Vocational Teacher Given Verbal Spanking

A "superiority complex" today cost August W. Wunderlich, of Swissvale, any chance he had of obtaining a divorce from Mrs. Helen Wunderlich, of Braddock avenue, Swissvale.

Wunderlich, an instructor in the Braddock Vocational Industrial School, not only was refused a divorce but was given a scorching verbal spanking by Judge Ralph H. Smith, who praised the wife.

A disabled war veteran, Wunderlich received $135 monthly while attending Carnegie Tech from 1921 to 1925, according to testimony. And, Judge Smith added:

"After graduation he became a changed man. The woman he was so anxious to marry and accept as a life partner and who had contributed at least share-and-share alike to the building of a home, ceased to be in his mind as acceptable a partner as before. Out of a little book-learning and a few years spent in academic halls, the libellant (Wunderlich) acquired a superiority complex which in the court's opinion gave rise to many of the complaints set forth."

Academic Influence Too Much for Him, Court Finds

Wunderlich, who charged cruelty, complained that his wife was unwilling to meet his new-found social friends in his professional field, but Judge Smith rebuked:

'Three Little Pigs' Run Afoul Society Boy's Auto

Three little pigs, their brothers and sisters, ankled down East Ohio street early today when along came a big, bad wolf in the guise of an automobile driven, police said, by the socially prominent William G. Costin, Jr., 20, of 5126 Westminster place.

The automobile was neither puffing, nor huffing, but was running smoothly on all its cylinders, and therein lies this tale. It ran into the midst of these three little pigs, their brothers and sisters. After the squeals had died down, one of the three little pigs was dead. The automobile with wolfish tactics, damaged to the extent of $10.

Young Costin, whose father is a prominent industrialist and oil operator, faces a hearing in Traffic Court.

'ROOSEVELT DOLLAR SOUNDEST IN WORLD'—JOHNSON

NRA CHIEFTAIN DENIES U. S. DICTATION

Says Political Foes Hope to Wreck Administration

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—The "Roosevelt dollar," in the words of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA chief, is "the soundest money on the face of the globe."

Gen. Johnson told members of the National Manufacturers' Association last night that the President is "on sound ground." Only a few hours earlier the association members had applauded a plea for "rugged individualism" as opposed to "ragged collectivism."

DENIES DICTATION

He scoffed at the criticism that the government had been "dictatorial" in the framing of codes.

He said:

"Every code came by agreement. The agreements came through a long and painful process, but they came by common consent and not by any federal dictum."

He urged the manufacturers to "do your own thinking," and said that criticism from political groups opposed to President Roosevelt is natural. He said:

"The only hope of the opposition party is to make the Roosevelt administration a failure.

"The President is on sound ground. He is giving the inflationist theory an absolute test, but he is doing it without jumping into an unmeasured abyss, and he should be given the support of every prudent man in doing it."

WARNS 'GOLD CENTERS'

The General voiced a warning that if "100 gold centers" continued inflexible in their demands they would increase the chances of the fiat money movement. He said:

"The country is conducting a monetary experiment, but it did not throw away body, soul and breeches to do it, as it would have done if it had gone headlong to the printing presses—either on the urging of the greenbackers or on a congressional rebound for the insistence of the inflexible '100 gold centers.'

"The more the latter insist the greater the danger. Whatever the path may be, the goal of both these groups—with the wish of one and against the wish of the other—the goal is exactly the same—greenbacks or fiat money."

As for the NRA codes, he said he believed a shorter work week than any now provided would eventually be found necessary, but added that "we must not destroy our industries for an economic ideal."

Treasury Elated Over Note Oversubscription

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Amidst administration elation over oversubscription to its billion dollar Treasury note issue by almost three times that figure, the RFC gold price today was held for the seventh successive business day at $34.01 an ounce.

It represented the longest duration of one figure since President Roosevelt's gold policy was established.

Just before the high of $34.01 was reached, the price of $3[illegible].76 prevailed for six business da[illegible].

The unusual repetition of the price coincided with another significant factor as well as yesterday's single day oversubscription to the issue of 2¼ per cent notes. Foreign gold purchases, said Chairman Jones, of the RFC, have not been sufficient for a "good piece of bridgework."

DOMESTIC GOLD

The RFC must take all new domestic gold offered, however, and has paid out $11,750,000 in this way.

Oversubscription in a business day of the $950,000,000 issue of one year 2¼ per cent certificates was not unusual of itself.

But considered as the first major financing since the beginning of the gold program, success of the issue was said in Treasury circles to gain special significance in view of a forecast by Dr. O. M. W. Sprague—who resigned recently as financial advisor to the Treasury—that it might become necessary to resort to greenbacks to meet debt requirements.

ATTACK ON FORD STRIKES LOOMS

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—Henry Ford, victorious in the fight with NRA resulting from his refusal to sign a Blue Eagle code, now must face attack from the National Labor Board over his failure to bargain collectively with striking employes in two of his plants.

Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the board, has announced that he intends to "take action" shortly in the strikes in Ford plants at Edgewater, N. J., and Chester, Pa.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(INS.)—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of the NRA, had called to his attention today the statement of Henry Ford:

"We've all got to pitch in and help the President pull this country out of the hole."

The General, who once threatened to "crack down" on the motor magnate, put on his glasses, read it and chuckled:

"Well, I'm glad to see that he is warming up. I certainly am going to enjoy seeing him go in there and start pitchin'."

OUTLOOK GOOD, BRUERE SAYS

As he left the White House, he told reporters:

"I am very enthusiastic over what I have seen here. And I return to New York very enthusiastic over the whole situation and the way it is moving ahead."

Bruere said he probably would come back to Washington from time to time, but that he regarded the mission which he undertook two months ago as completed.

He was never given an official title and was referred to by the President as his liaison officer.

INFLATION FEAR HELD IN SCORN

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Virgil Jordan, president of the National Industrial Conference Board, today warned the National Association of Manufacturers against what he termed "the long-run implications of the recovery program" and advised them not to be confused by "all the sound and fury that surrounds the word inflation."

He said the bottom of the depression was reached in 1932 and charged that the policies of the administration "have had little, if any, net effect upon the process of recovery in the United States."

In sharp conflict with Jordan's views, were those presented on the same rostrum by Charles E. Stuart, mining engineer, who said:

"Failure of the NRA and a return to the era of laissezfaire, cut-throat competition and rugged individualism would be the shortest and most direct route to Socialism or something worse."

Jordan held that "a genuine antagonism to private enterprise underlies the entire administration program."

Urges New Court To Arbitrate Codes

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—A "supreme court" to arbitrate matters of industrial code policy was advocated today by Wilson Compton, NRA official, who called the present NRA compliance boards "absurd."

MELLON SEES PROSPERITY

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—United States Senator David A. Reed last night quoted Andrew W. Mellon as saying the United States "within the next 15 years" will enjoy a greater measure of prosperity than ever before.

Concluding a speech to the members of the Franklin County Republican Club, Senator Reed referred to a recent conversation with Mellon and quoted his words to emphasize that the internationally known industrialist and banker had not "lost faith" in the future of the United States.

CHECKOFF SNAG IN CAPTIVE PIT CONFERENCE

Appeal to Labor Board Looms; Marty Ryan Strike Call Vain

The questions of union recognition and checkoff today threatened to disrupt the captive mine negotiations between the United Mine Workers' officials, chosen as representatives of a majority of the employes of National Mining Company's No. 3 mine, and company officials.

The questions, discussed informally yesterday at a conference of the three District No. 5 officers and Philip Murray, international vice president of the U. M. W., with General Superintendent George Wilson, of the National Mining Company, were to be answered today.

The point of difference over the recognition of union officials hinged upon the National Labor Board's interpretation of the presidential agreement whereby employes of captive mines voted for representation at the federal supervised elections several weeks ago. The checkoff never has been conceded by the company or any of its affiliated United States Steel companies.

In the event of further disagreement over the questions, both sides are expected to carry appeals to the Labor Board.

Murray, declining to discuss the disagreement at this time, said:

"It will be time enough after we have had an answer from the National Mining Company. Naturally, the Labor Board will review the case."

Marty Ryan Strike Call Unheeded at Frick Mine

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Dec. 8.—Marty Ryan's efforts to call out his followers on another mine strike at Grindstone yesterday failed.

The insurgent leader issued the call after he had been convicted of assault in the county courts and after he had been denied admittance to Frick's Colonial No. 4 Mine, where he has been the checkweighman. Members of the Miner's Independent Brotherhood, a so-called company union, had voted earlier to dispense with a checkweighman.

Ryan said that 400 miners last night voted to strike but changed their minds when the mine superintendent, Clarence Smith, granted some of their demands, including restoration of the checkweighman's position — but not Ryan.

WAGNER TO RULE ON VOTE AT WEIRTON

Steel Company's Plan Expected to Be Modified

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—The National Labor Board was expected to announce the date and methods for election of collective bargaining representatives by workers of the Weirton Steel Company next week.

Indications were that plans of the company union would be modified by the board or entirely ignored following yesterday's hearing of opposing groups, the company union and the Amalgamated Association of Iron Steel and Tin Workers.

On the one hand, the Amalgamated group headed by William J. Long, recent strike leader, and Edward Miller, international vice president of the union, contend the company is violating the strike-settlement agreement in its proposed method of conducting the nominations set for December 11 and the elections fixed for December 15 at its plants in Weirton and Clarksburg, W. Va., and at Steubenville, O.

UNION OBJECTIONS

The union leaders object to the plan of holding the election on company property and demand that the representatives of employes be chosen by majority ballot of the three plants instead of individually; that the ballots should allow the men to express a preference as between company and outside unions; and that the privilege to vote be based on the payroll immediately preceding the strike of 10,000 workers settled through the labor board.

On the other hand the company union representatives, accepted as reflecting the attitude of E. T. Weir, president of the company and of other industrial leaders as well, hold that the plan as proposed by the company is in accordance with the NRA and that the labor board has no right to interfere.

John Larkin, heading the company representatives at the hearing last night challenged the right of the labor board to interpose its authority. He said:

"We are not empowered to agree to any modification or change in our by-laws except as provided therein. Changes have been made to make our rules and agreements with the company fully conform to Section 7 of the National Industrial Recovery Act.

"We think the employes can form their own organizations and we question the right of the board to abrogate our scales and therefore will conduct our election as scheduled and prescribed in our by-laws."

OUSTERS CHARGED

In contending for reversion to the pre-strike payroll for eligibles for voting, Long declared that 400 men have been laid off in the past month because of union activities. He added:

"The only reason there isn't a strike in Weirton today is that we have faith in this board."

Of 10,000 men employed at the Weirton plant, 8,012 have signed up with the Amalgamated, according to Long.

Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the Labor Board, pleaded with the two groups to forget past difficulties and join with the board in insuring a peaceful election. Regarding the election of employe representatives at the "captive" coal mines, Senator Wagner said:

"In preparing for the captive mine elections we were told we would require a great force of police. We did not believe so. We held that election in which 15,000 voted. It was self-policed and you know how peaceful it was."

MARY M'CORMIC

SUMMON MARY FOR 'SLAPPING'

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—In addition to defending herself in a $1,000,000 civil suit, Mary McCormic, opera singer, must face trial on a charge of battery as the aftermath of the slap she gave Miss Grace Williams, biographer of the singer's former husband, Prince Serge Mdivani.

The charge against the singer resulted from a slap given by Miss McCormic to Miss Williams in a newspaper office as the latter sought to sell to the newspaper the secrets of the property settlement between the singer and her former husband.

Miss Williams previously filed a $1,000,000 damage suit as the result of the face-slapping incident.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Informed that Los Angeles authorities had decided to prefer charges of assault and battery against her as a sequel to the Grace Williams slapping incident, Mary McCormic, of operatic fame, says "it's ridiculous and idiotic."

Miss McCormic motored here last night from Detroit, accompanied by Harry Gerguson, known to Broadway — and immigration officials—as Prince Michael Romanoff. He left a short time later for New York.

Here to fill a theatrical engagement, Miss McCormic said she expects to marry Harry Bannister, former husband of Ann Harding, film star, on January 29.

ASKS 10 BILLION WORK FUND

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Senator Robert M. La Follette (Rep.), of Wisconsin, has announced his intention of proposing a $10,000,000,000 public works program to Congress.

The Senator said in a speech last night that he did not think the $3,300,000,000 program of the Roosevelt administration was sufficient, and that he would seek to have it broadened in the next congressional session.

He urged that the administration invoke its full power to crush those seeking to defeat "the only real measure that has been passed to promote recovery."

Opponents of the Roosevelt recovery plans, he said, were "around the corner boys" who were in power from 1929 to 1933.

Congressman Files Bankruptcy Petition

WASHINGTON, December 8.—(INS.)—Representative Gale H. Stalker (Rep.), of Elmira, N. Y., today filed a petition in District of Columbia Supreme Court asking he be adjudged voluntarily bankrupt. He gave his principal occupation as a lumberman and said he had been living at his present residence here six months.

The petition was referred to a referee in bankruptcy with a notation a schedule of Stalker's assets and debts would be filed later.

OPPONENTS RAP COPELAND'S FOOD BILL

Provisions Too Broad, Foes Say at Hearing

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Opponents of the Copeland bill to supplant and broaden the pure food and drug act today assailed its advertising provisions and urged their revision along with other changes.

Charles W. Dunn, of New York, counsel for the Associated Grocery Manufacturers and the American Pharmaceutical Manufacturers' Association, objected to the definition of advertising as false if it created a "misleading impression." a leading opponent, termed the bill duly broad and said a consumers' impression was "a state of mind and may arise out of his own ignorance, stupidity or misreading, although the advertisement may be wholly true."

PROPOSES CHANGE

He proposed a change that advertising be regarded as false "if it is false or injuriously misleading in any material particular related to the purposes of the act."

Dunn, and a long line of other witnesses, said they recognized need for some change in the present 27-year-old-law, but objected to many provisions in the bill. Dunn said the measure gave "to broad" administrative power to the Secretary of Agriculture.

Sebastian Mueller, vice president of the H. G. Heinz Company, Pittsburgh, said the bill was not impracticable or unreasonable, but that he preferred a separate measure to apply to food.

He urged a change to define a food as adulterated if it contained artificial coloring, but would except food from this restriction if it had no distinctive color itself.

Objecting to the provision for factory inspection, he said federal agents should be given free access to inspect methods and processes in a factory only if it was necessary to safeguard the public health.

URGES REVISION

Francis A. Whitmarsh, of the National American Wholesale Grocers' Association, urged revision of the present law instead of enacting an entirely new bill.

John F. Anderson, spokesman for a manufacturer of pharmaceutical supplies, indorsed the purposes of the bill to curb false advertising.

H. B. Thompson, general counsel for the Proprietary Association.

He characterized this an un-"grotesque in conception and vicious in its possible consequences."

He contended it was unnecessary, and cited many judgments against manufacturers under the present law.

Copeland said it was "indecent for the government to make possible the sale of remedies to people who continue to use those remedies when surgical treatment probably is needed."

NRA POSTPONES QUIZ OF PRICES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—The NRA today postponed from December 12 to January 9 a hearing on price increases, announcing this was done because "no properly authenicated evidence of unwarranted price increases has been filed."

Preliminary investigations of profiteering complaints have been carried on for some time by the division administrator, A. D. Whiteside. Numerous complaints of profiteering have been received by the consumers advisory board, but sufficient evidence was lacking.

Small Town Merchants Ask NRA Pay Boost

First request by a group of merchants to have their wage scale raised above the automatic requirements of the NRA retail code was reported today by Wilson K. Ray, district compliance director for Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

The request came from the Four-Town Board of Trade, representing 32 independent merchants in Roscoe, Allenport, Stockdale and Elco, Washington County.

Separately, none of these communities comes up to the 2,500 population figure which requires a minimum wage of between $10 and $11 a week, according to Frank Donovan, of Roscoe, president of the trade group and local compliance chairman. But together they have a total population of 4,500, Donovan pointed [illegible] and a St. Vi

When the retail code became effective, the 32 independent merchants of the four boroughs formed the trade association and voluntarily decided to bring their wages in line with the $10 minimum requirement for larger communities, according to Donovan.

They have requested Ray to forward to the National Recovery Administration at Washington their request to have this voluntary action officially recognized so that three outside groups of stores will be forced to comply with their wage scale.

Ray said:

"It's the first instance of the kind brought to my attention."

But Donovan explains it simply:

Comedian Facing Suit In Hollywood Beating

Universal Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 8.—News of Hollywood's latest and most mysterious fight, with Francis (Bunny) Weldon, dance director and theatrical producer, on the receiving end and a noted comedian assertedly on the giving end, came to light today amid a maze of threats and denials.

Weldon, for years associated with the late Texas Guinan in her theatrical ventures, declared he had engaged an attorney, Leslie Hubbard, and was "going to see to it that justice is done."

The comedian, famous on both stage and screen, denied he had lured Weldon to his home, as the former claimed, and there had beaten him so severely that it was necessary to take him to a nearby hospital for treatment.

Weldon, from his bed at home and flanked by his wife, Blanche, named the comedian as his assailant and told his version of the events that precipitated filmland's latest fight.

Victim Killed Dodging Arrest as Sleuths Storm Church

International News Service.

BEAUMONT, Tex., Dec. 8.—A mob of 500 persons at nearby Kountze today seized from authorities the body of David Gregory, Negro sought for the murder of a white woman, dragged it through the streets and finally burned it in the Negro settlement.

Sheriff's deputies had previously shot the man to death when they tried to capture him as a suspect in the murder of Mrs. Mellie W. Brockman, 33. Gregory fell, fatally wounded, when he barricaded himself in a church at Voth, Tex., and refused to surrender.

The mob took the Negro's body from Sheriff Miles Jordan and proceeded to mutilate it before dragging it through the streets and later burning the corpse. Gregory was an ex-convict.

Sheriff Jordan placed a heavy guard about the Hardin County Jail here to protect two men under arrest suspected of having aided Gregory to evade arrest.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Identification of leaders of the mob that lynched the kidnap-slayers of Brooke L. Hart was awaited by authorities here today after District Attorney Fred L. Thomas announced he would prosecute if "proper evidence" is presented.

Sheriff William J. Emig, injured by the mob as it stormed the jail and seized Thomas H. Thurmond and John M. Holmes, who confessed to killing Hart in a $40,000 extortion plot, said no immediate arrests are contemplated.

The District Attorney's announcement followed a conference with A. L. Wirin, of Los Angeles, attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union, who declared he will produce witnesses to identify at least two mob leaders.

Mercy Killing Scored As 'Savage' by Writer

Fannie Hurst Sees It in Class With Lynchings

By DOROTHY DUCAS
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—"Mercy killings" were put in a category with lynchings today by Fannie Hurst, the writer, commenting on the slaying of Miss Allie Stephens, Atlanta (Ga.) cancer patient, by her nephew, John Stephens, who could not bear her suffering.

Stephens, 32-year-old church worker, was freed by a coroner's jury after he confessed he struck his aunt over the head with a flower pot. The jury decided Miss Stephens died of her disease, despite the blow.

Regardless of sympathy for the nephew, said Miss Hurst, an attempt to kill cannot be condoned. She explained:

"There is too much savagery just beneath the human cuticle. Let it out, and it spreads like a forest fire. There is no borderline, only a hairline between justification and madness. One cannot break the laws of life and justice, no matter what the circumstances."

A protest against allowing the 52-year-old woman to suffer was voiced by Miss Jane Hoey, of the Welfare Council of New York. If she were in the last stages of cancer, she should have been in a hospital, said the welfare worker, where narcotics could have been administered constantly. Miss Hoey asked:

"How could anyone have known surely that she wanted to die? Sometimes people say so when they are suffering, and they don't actually mean it. At any rate, the decision of life and death should not be in the hands of relatives.

"We never know positively that diseases are incurable. There have been cancer patients who have lived from 15 to 20 years. The average practitioner is not a specialist in this disease, and only a cancer specialist could have told if the woman really were incurable."

Judge Aids Fugitive Fighting Chain Gang

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—To allow James A. La Rue plenty of time to seek a habeas corpus writ, Judge Alfred O. Erickson today ordered the Florida chain gang fugitive held for 24 hours in the custody of his court.

La Rue had been ordered extradited to Florida by Gov. Henry Horner at Springfield yesterday.

The prisoner told a harrowing story to the court yesterday and Judge Ericson promised then to give him "every break in the world" in his legal fight to avoid a return to Dade County, Fla., where he would have to serve the remaining four and one-half years of a five-year sentence. La Rue said he had been subjected to extreme cruelty in the chain gang, and asserted he was convicted for breaking into a house although he stole nothin.

Flatly asserting the belief that La Rue was not extraditable, Judge Erickson said:

"If the Governor had looked into the case he would have noticed that this boy is not extraditable under the law. But the Governor is too busy a man to inquire into every case."

Grenville Beardsley, attorney retained for La Rue by Rosita Forbes, novelist who became interested in the case, said he would apply for a habeas corpus writ.

RAILWAYS FIRM HAD WARNING ON BRIDGES

Rankin Span Collapse Brings Revelation of County's Danger Hint

County engineers warned the Pittsburgh Railways Company in 1931 to avoid the Rankin, Glenwood and Homestead bridges with heavy work cars, the County Commissioners were informed today by Thomas O. Hasley, director of the Department of Highways, Bridges and Tunnels.

Hasley presented the commissioners with a copy of a letter written the company on September 17, 1931, by Maintenance Engineer R. H. Helick as the Commissioners began a study of the collapse of the Rankin Bridge Wednesday. Two railways company work cars and a gasoline truck plunged 40 feet when the bridge collapsed.

In the letter Helick suggested that the company reroute all heavy work cars away from the Rankin, the Glenwood and Homestead bridges.

The Commissioners adopted a resolution introduced by Commissioner C. M. Barr authorizing Director Hasley to retain an engineer or engineering firm to make a physical inspection of 10 old bridges and to make a report and recommendation to the commission. His personnel was not large enough to make the inspection, Hasley said.

The bridges to be inspected are: Sixty-second Street, Allegheny River; Highland Park, Allegheny River; Dravosburg, Brown's, Rankin and Glenwood bridges across the Monongahela River; Suterville, Third Avenue and Fifth Avenue bridges across the Youghiogheny River and the Fleming Park Bridge across the Ohio River back-channel.

Hasley was granted authority by the Commissioners to accept bids by letter for removal of the debris from the Rankin Bridge collapse.

WYNEKOOP KIN WINS ON SANITY

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Dr. Gilbert Wynekoop, brother-in-law of Dr. Alice L. Wynekoop, indicted for the murder of her daughter-in-law, yesterday won a court victory when a jury failed to agree on the question of his sanity.

Dr. Gilbert, arrested on a charge of a nurse that he attempted to attack her, was given a hearing before Judge Harry B. Miller on a finding that he was mentally deranged. He was in jail when his nephew's wife was found murdered.

The jury foreman said that after many ballots the jury of 12 was equally divided on the question. Judge Miller set December 12 for a new hearing.

NURSE ADA MARTZ WITH BESSIE GRACE, 22 WEEKS OLD . . SOMEONE'S CHRISTMAS GIFT?

'FOXIE' MADE KY. COLONEL

Pittsburgh today swelled witth overwhelming pride with the news from Kentucky that one of the city's foremost citizens is now a Kentucky Colonel (And aren't we all?)

The citizen is none other than Puncher-Proof Foxie, a self-made man who peddles beer and doesn't like bouncing checks.

Puncher-Proof Foxie, accepting the honor lightly as befits the humble, pushed up the brim of his collegiate hat, straightened his checked necktie, touched up the display kerchief in his breast pocket, lighted a fat cigar, smiled a genial Southern smile, and piped:

"Ah have a wa'm spot in mah heart for mah ol' friend Guy-'nah Ruby Laffoon and Ah'm mo' convinced than ever that Lincoln made a mistake . . . How're ya' doin', mugg?"

Oh, yes . . . . . Puncher-Proof Foxie's name is Harry M. Fox, brother-in-law of that distinguished student of the arts, Henry (Young Eppy) Epstein, who will shortly go to work on Gov. Laffoon with all the heat turned on. Eppy won't settle for less than a full general's commission.

Home Superintendent Seeks Turkey With 23 Legs Instead

At least 200 Pittsburgh families who wanted to entertain children this Christmas will be disappointed.

Some of them won't get them because their homes are considered unsatisfactory, while some live in districts wherein children's ailments abound. Still others never stood a chance.

E. E. Harter, superintendent of the Children's Home of Pennsylvania, 467 South Aiken avenue, issued the edict while shopping for a turkey with 23 legs and a mantel for 23 stockings. Disconsolate at his vain hunt, he murmured this explanation:

"In previous years we've allowed the children in the home to spend the holidays in some one's home. But last year they came back with any number of diseases picked up in strange surroundings. We don't want that to happen again."

Applications now on file at the home request the adoption of more than 200 babies, Harter said. That is 177 more than they have. About 60 were placed in homes during the year.

Investigation of applicants, Harter explained, are very thorough, covering not only the individuals, but the home surroundings.

APPEAL LOOMS IN MELLON SUIT

Judge R. M. Gibson in Federal Court today granted permission to Albert R. Knight, of Lansdowne, Pa., to appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals from a decision dismissing a suit to collect more than $5,000,000 income taxes from W. L. Mellon, president, and other officers of the Gulf Oil Corporation.

Knight, a former employe of the Gulf Oil, had entered suit in behalf of the government, under an old revenue act which entitles the plaintiff to one half the sum collected.

The plaintiff's assignment of errors sets forth that Judge Gibson erred in sustaining affidavits of defense, and raises various questions of law. The plaintiff was required to post $500 bond in each of six cases. Those named besides Mellon are George S. Davison, W. J. Guthrie, F. A. Leovy, Gale R. Nutty and H. L. Stone.

CHARGE FATHER KILLED BOY

Monzingo and A. T. Munson, Deputy District Attorney, who questioned the woman, said she told them Smith beat and kicked the child to death at the climax of a family quarrel. The mother wept and sobbed as she told the story, Monzingo said.

Smith, who was arrested earlier in the day, denied his wife's accusation. He clung to his original story—that the child was killed when it was struck by a door the father opened as he entered the house with a load of firewood in his arms.

Rubber Mat Man Gone, Rubber Checks Charged

Two branches of the police service today sought Eugene Lindquist, 35, formerly vice president of Slack & Lindquist, manufacturers of rubber mats at 133 Lancourt street, now liquidated.

The Missing Persons Bureau was looking for Lindquist in the fear that he has committed suicide. He left a note that "everything is for the best" when he walked out of his rooming house at 5524 Baywood street last November 5.

City Detective John Dean was also looking for Lindquist for an explanation of numerous checks which, detectives said, were returned from the bank marked "no funds." One of these was given to the proprietress of the rooming house, Dean said.

Police hoped to find a telephone operator named "Sue," known to be a friend of Lindquist's. They also planned to question Mrs. N. C. Harris at Tarentum, to whom the note left by Lindquist directed them, they said. He carried $10,000 in insurance policies, payable to his estate.

LOURDES MAID PROCLAIMED SAINT

Elaborate Rites Mark Ceremony at Vatican

By GUGLIELMO EMANUEL
International News Service.

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 8.—In a ceremony rare but traditionally one of the most elaborate in christendom, Pope Pius XI today canonized Bernadette Soubirous, of Lourdes, whose vision in the little French town made it a shrine of world renown.

More than 15,000 pilgrims, many of whom claimed to have been cured at Lourdes, journeyed to Rome for the ceremony, held in St. Peter's Cathedral with a colorful procession of the highest dignitaries in the Catholic church.

ORDERS REPRESENTED

All of the religious orders of the Vatican were represented in the procession, which filed into the portico, then into the cathedral proper and up to the high altar.

The rites proclaiming Bernadette a saint lasted for more than an hour. The Pope, seated on his throne before the altar, listened to three separate pleas for the French woman's canonization, delivered by consistory attorneys, before he formally pronounced the words which gave her sainthood.

The College of Cardinals, in brilliant robes, lent much color to the occasion. The presence of 21 French bishops, led by Msgr. Le Maitre, who was healed by Bernadette, added character to this particular service.

BERNADETTE'S HISTORY

Living with her parents in poverty in the little village of Lourdes, in Southwestern France, Bernadette went out one day to gather firewood.

She came near a great white rock, and there had a vision of the Holy Virgin, "a lady in white," who bade her ask the parish priest to establish a cure.

Bernadette, who was 14 at the time, was so persistent in telling and retelling her story that an investigation was begun. Soon water began gushing from the rock, forming the spring in which great healing properties now are attributed.

This was 75 years ago. Bernadette soon afterward entered a convent, where she died in 1879. Thirty years later an official investigation of her life was begun. Finally, after 133 sessions of inquiry, the case went to Rome.

BOOK'S VICTORY CHEERS JOYCE

PARIS, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—James Joyce, Irish author, rejoiced today in the lifting of the American ban on his book "Ulysses."

Joyce, who continues to write although he is nearly blind, happily telephoned friends the news of Federal Judge John M. Woolsey's decision at New York that the prose epic is not "obscene."

Although Joyce, following a custom of long standing, denied himself to interviewers, friends quoted him as saying:

"I am very pleased with the judgment because it is particularly favorable to me. At least Americans now will be able to get authentic texts of the work."

Friends said that Joyce, faced with a dangerous operation on his right eye, hoped the American decision would increase his income, which never has been large.

Today, the Feast of the Immaculate Conception, was a holy day of obligation for Catholics. As on all feast days which fall on Friday, Catholics today were permitted to eat meat.

CATHOLICS PLAN 1934 RALLY

ROME, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Aristocrats of the church and the lay world met here yesterday under the chairmanship of Archbishop Weylen of Namur to map plans for European attendance at the thirty-second International Eucharistic Congress to be held in Buenos Aires in October, 1934.

The meeting was called by the international eucharistic committees. It was the signal of international eucharistic committees which have been engaged in activities toward attendance of many thousands of Europeans at the religious gathering in Buenos Aires next year.

One of the principal questions before the committee was the coordination of the European eucharistic groups.

VOTE JURY TOLD OF BALLOT TAMPERING

Constable Harry Hart counted and arranged the ballots after the close of polls in the Sixth District, Third Ward, in the 1932 election, a witness testified in the fifth vote fraud trial in Federal Court today.

The witness, Joseph Gady, of 1546 Foreside place, testified that when, as a Democratic watcher, he demanded that the ballots be counted before the vote was compiled, Hart, who was not a member of the election board, was given the task.

A member of the board stated that 61 straight Democratic ballots had been cast, Gady testified. When the ballot box was opened only 36 such ballots were found, the government charges.

66 WITNESSES HEARD

Sixty-six witnesses had taken the stand for the prosecution late today. Most of them testified they had voted the straight Democratic ticket.

On trial charged with conspiracy to violate the election laws are Hart and five members of the board. They are Anthony Sibilia, judge; Jack Frankel and Henry Silverstein, inspectors; Davey Slutsky and Harry Kalson, clerks.

Indications were that at the conclusion of court late today the trial would go over to Monday.

COYNE TRIAL NOT SET

Assistant United States Attorney James I. Marsh and Special Prosecutor Earl F. Reed today stated no date had been set for the trial of State Senator James J. Coyne and other Republican leaders indicted in the vote fraud prosecutions. A special session of court in February has been requested by United States Attorney H. S. Dumbauld for further fraud trials.

With the conviction of four defendants in the trial of election officers of the Tenth District, Fourth Ward, yesterday, the government has increased its total to seven. Those found guilty yesterday were Albert Diulius, judge; Albert Levine and William Kennedy, inspectors, and Joseph Ridge, election constable.

M'NAIR PUTS HIS CAMPAIGN COST UNDER $50

After a last-minute rush, campaign expense accounts had all been filed today, among them a certification from Mayor-elect William N. McNair that his personal spendings were less than $50.

Mayor John S. Herron listed disbursements of $1,490.

Both candidates had filed some time ago, McNair by mail. Although a statement is not required for such expenditure, he dropped into Clerk of Courts S. J. Topley's office to see if it had been received. He commented:

"I always send in my statement the day after the election—even when I've forgotten what I'm running for."

William A. Magee, who polled the largest city vote as Republican and Democratic Council candidate, apparently spent less than $50. Neither he, nor Republican Council candidate Harry A. Little, filed statements.

Among last-minute statements was one from Gustav L. Schramm, elected to Juvenile Court, showing a campaign committee expenditure of $2,245. He received one of the largest county votes.

A. Marshall Thompson, defeated Democratic candidate for Common Pleas Court, filed two statements. One showed a contribution of $100 and a gift from Schramm of a like amount to the Prohibition State Committee.

Schramm, whose name also appeared on the Prohibition ticket, is now a member of the State Liquor Control board. He also listed expenditures of $449.

John J. Kennedy, defeated Democratic Common Pleas candidate, spent $370; Alexander P. Lindsay, defeated for Common Pleas, $125, and John Heinz, candidate in the still disputed sheriff election, $214.

The expense account for Frank A. Piekarski, successful County Court candidate, showed nothing spent or received. James L. O'Toole, Jr., defeated for County Court, had $400 expenses.

McNair Clashes With Magee on Civic Policies

manager form of government, but said to make it successful a manager had to be chosen from some other city — someone "without friends to reward or enemies to punish."

Then he launched into his warning to the incoming administration and voiced the plea that "they be practical and not radical." He added:

"Through my years in public life I've come to learn that those changes that were approached slowly were better for us, that when we moved with caution we made more progress.

WARNS OF ERROR

"The Democratic party organization will fall into error if it uses the municipal offices as patronage to reward the party workers or the police to make alliances with the rackets or the City Council and the Department of Public Works to ingratiate itself with the utility and public works contractors."

Magee promised that he would follow the lead of the new administration if it is "practical and not visionary" and non-partisan. He explained:

"By non-partisan I mean that all the Republican councilmen be invited to cordial participation, that the present city employes constituting 95 per cent of the whole number be not disturbed during good behavior and that certain of those in the exempt class who are of proved value to the city be retained."

McNAIR REPLIES

McNair was not slow to reply to the warning of the man he lost to in 1921. He said:

"I tell you people of the North Side what's slowing up your tempo. Your land values are too high. It's true throughout the city. And why are land values high? Because land monopolists are holding on to their property, taking thousands in rent out of the city and not paying anything for the privilege.

"The land racket is the biggest racket in the city. The way to eliminate it is to extend the graded tax. Once before Pittsburgh raised the tax on land and cut in half the tax on buildings. I propose to do this again. Cut the tax on buildings in half again.

"If it's disturbing to change overnight, then I'm here to disturb you. It's time to experiment.

IF THIS BE RADICALISM!

"You want to put men back to work, to bring back prosperity to Pittsburgh. I've suggested a free port, which would fill our rivers with shipping. I've suggesied a five-year tax exemption for new buildings. This would create employment.

"If this is radicalism then I'm a radical."

President, Frank E. Tencate; vice presidents, John O'Neil and George Blumenschein; treasurer, D. R. Stitzel; secretary, Paul H. Dillman; drectors, Walter Ahlers, H. F. Burnworth and Fred H. Horst.

15 VOTE REFORM BILLS BEFORE ASSEMBLY

By G. EVERETT DOYING
International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Dec. 8.—Fifteen bills to give Pennsylvania's election laws teeth to halt abuses which have resulted in stolen elections are before the special session of the Legislature today.

They represent the answer to Gov. Gifford Pinchot's demand for reforms in voting laws.

One of the bills may go to the Governor for his signature next Monday night and a number of the others have started on the route to enactment.

Still others, however, contain plenty of material for factional disputes and these may encounter rough sailing if they come out of committee. At least one bill is likely to meet with a gubernatorial veto if passed.

'PARTY RAIDING' BILL

This is the Howard "party raiding" bill in the House, similar to but phrased differently than the Woodward measure, which Gov. Pinchot killed during the last regular session because he said it was unconstitutional. Like the Woodward measure, the Howard bill would prevent candidates for other than judicial offices to file for more than one party nomination.

Gov. Pinchot made no mention of "party raiding" in his message to the Legislature. Recommending laws to prevent any candidate from being elected who cheats at the election and permanent registration for cities, he said:

"The call opens the door also to other election safeguards."

Bills to disqualify "cheating candidates" and to set up permanent registration in all cities have been presented. The Howell bill providing permanent registration for Scranton will go to the Governor Monday if the Senate concurs in House amendments acceptable to the sponsor. Similar bills for other cities either are on the calandar or are expected to be brought out of committee next week.

HARRIS MEASURES

Senator Frank Harris, Allegheny, is sponsoring half a dozen measures to close loopholes in present laws. One bill empowers returning boards to disqualify the vote of any district where more votes are found to be cast than there are registered voters. The check would be made before the vote is recorded.

Another sets up an elaborate system whereby the number of ballots cast in election districts would be determined by booth officials before the count is begun. The bill also provides that minority party judges read the votes while majority judges tabulate.

Paid party "watchers" would be eliminated by a third Harris document. Candidates seeing primary nominations would pay a fee of one dollar for each two signers required on the petition, with a minimum of $500, under another bill. The fee would be returned only if the candidate's party polled two per cent of the total vote—or enough to give the party official recognition on the ballot.

Utility-G. O. P. Fight Looms in New York

UTICA, N. Y., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Lashing out at H. Edmund MacHold, former Republican state chairman, W. Kingsland Macy, the present party head, today told the county chairmen of the organization that the "fight is between the public utility interests and an uncontrolled Republican party."

3rd Ward Democrats Meet This Evening

M'CLURE JURY FIX QUIZ SET

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Recall of a special federal grand jury to investigate alleged attempts to tamper with the jury which convicted State Senator John J. McClure and 70 other men in a liquor "protection" conspiracy has been set for December 14.

Michael J. S. Stoney, assistant United States Attorney, announced last night Federal Judge Welsh had ordered the jury to reconvene.

GIRL, REFUSED DRINK, FIGHTS

Miss Anna McCall, 25, from somewhere on Zephyr avenue—she gave police three numbers—was another who had a hangover today.

Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court fined her $5 after she said she went into the Roosevelt Hotel grillroom last midnight, but didn't remember what occurred afterward.

Charles P. Heitler, special officer at the hotel, however, did remember. He said:

"She demanded a drink, Your Honor. When we told her it was after hours she picked up a salt shaker and hurled it. It broke a lamp and one of our patrons was struck in the eye with a fragment of glass. I arrested her when she wouldn't give me her name or address."

In court the young woman said she is a telephone company clerk.

STATE RUM SHOP SITES CHOSEN

HARRISBURG, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Pushing preparations for opening state liquor stores on January 2, the State Liquor Control Board today took options on several sites.

Licenses to hotels, restaurants and clubs continued to go forward to applicants, and at noon 1,774 had been issued—1,041 to restaurants, 449 to hotels, 282 to clubs and two to importers.

In a few days tentative sites for all of the 240 stores allocated to date are expected to have been chosen.

The sites will be advertised for five days to give residents of the various communities an opportunity to protest.

Book Sellers Balk At Retail NRA Code

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—The New York retail code authority was appealed to today by the American Book Sellers Association to stop "predatory price cutting" on books.

The book sellers said that unless something is done some 1,500 retail book stores, employing 6,000 persons may be faced with bankruptcy.

Waitress Who Sued Baer Weds Laborer

RENO, Nev., Dec. 8.—Miss Olive Beck, Livermore, Cal., waitress, who recently sued Max Baer, heavyweight pugilist, for $250,000 for breach of promise and settled out of court, was married here today to Charles V. Walsh, 30-year-old San Francisco laborer. They plan to return to California in a few days.

Councilmen 'Wisecrack' As Terms Near End

Little Urges Letting Bugs Choose Their Own Fate

The wisecrack hit a new high during Council's budget sessions yesterday afternoon. What was voted the best "crack" came when the solons turned their deliberations on a bug-spraying machine for the division of shade trees.

Somebody suggested the Works Department report to Council as to whether machine spraying was or was not superior to hand spraying. President of Council Harry A. Little offered this suggestion:

"Let's get a report from the bugs, too, so we can determine whether they want to be killed by hand or machine."

An item calling for the expenditure of $10 for tacks in the health department, and another for rubber tubing, gave Councilman Little and P. J. McArdle the chance to offer the following remark and rejoinder:

"Ten dollars for tacks! They must use them for chewing gum.

"Yeah, tacks and rubber tubing."

McArdle raised his batting average at the expense of Councilman Clifford B. Connelley when the North Side Carnegie Library budget was brought forward. Connelley, who is much interested in the affairs of that institution, remarked to Council:

"The library expenses have been cut to the bone."

McArdle answered:

"Well, let's start on the bone."

Little scored with:

"Oh, yes, I've been near it. I was in that place across the street once."

The "place across the street" could be either the North Side Market or the police station. Little was not specific.

ELECTION PROBE JUDGES NAMED

HARRISBURG, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Special courts to decide judicial election contests in Western Pennsylvania counties were named today by Gov. Pinchot under authority of an act more than half a century old.

He appointed President Judges James R. Macfarlane, Allegheny; Albert H. Sayers, Greene, and Thomas H. Hudson, Fayette, to preside in the Washington County contest brought by Arl E. Gibson, Democrat.

In the Clarion County case, he named President Judges J. Frank Graff, Armstrong; Lee A. McCracken, Venango, and William T. Darr, Jefferson, to decide the contest initiated by Harry M. Rimer, Republican.

Both contestants assert they were defrauded of the election.

WOMEN HEAR MRS. DENMAN

The outlook for election reform legislation is better than it ever has been, according to Mrs. Mary Denman, of Greensburg, state legislation chairman of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs and a former member of the Legislature.

Addressing the Legislative Council of Pittsburgh this morning, Mrs. Denman explained various bills pending before the Legislature. She dwelled especially on the proposed child labor bill which would make school attendance compulsory up to 16 years of age and would do away with continuation schools.

The Legislative Council, which is made up of representatives of various civic women's organizations throughout the city, plans to act as an emergency legislative committee until the end of the special session in Harrisburg.

Mrs. Harvey Fause is president of the group.

VOTE VERIFIED AS CORRECT

An order has been made by Common Pleas Court directing that the election board return as made by the board of the Eighth District of the Seventeenth Ward be entered as a correct return of the votes cast at the general election.

Attorney Leo Kostmas has obtained an order from Judge Ralph H. Smith, directing that a recount be made of the votes cast in the Second District of the Second Ward, Braddock.

Attorney John R. Frankel obtained an order from the same jurist for a recount of the votes cast in the First and Second districts of Upper St. Clair Township.

Taking the Chase Out of Purchase

ADVERTISING benefits the man who buys as well as the man who sells. It is part of the Golden Rule of Business and it works both ways.

Don't miss the advertisements in this newspaper. Many of them are interesting just because of their news and educational value alone.

But more than that: Advertisements take the chase out of purchase and make every penny do its full duty.

This last statement is one particularly to be remembered when common-sense economy is not only a national duty, but an individual necessity.

GORDON DENIES BANK RELIEF LAXITY

HARRISBURG, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Answering criticism attributed to Joseph F. Guffey, Democratic leader, concerning the liquidation of closed banks, Dr. William D. Gordon, state secretary of banking, says his department will continue to refuse "to permit anything except the interests of depositors to influence its actions."

He denied Pennsylvania is not taking advantage of federal aid in giving speedy relief to depositors in arrested banks. The secretary said:

"Guffey states that Pennsylvania has not obtained more than $100,000,000 offered by the federal government for closed banks. I wonder if he knows that an application to the RFC in behalf of the Bankers Trust Company of Philadelphia we were offered upon assets with a book value of $25,000,000, appraised at more than $13,000,000, a net loan of about three-quarters of a million, or a dividend to depositors of 2.77 per cent."

Concerning a charge that fewer operating banks in Pennsylvania had applied for membership in the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation than in any other state, Dr. Gordon said:

"The fact is all but 17 non-member banks already had applied for membership on December 6."

He continued:

"Guffey's statement that only 31 of the 379 non-member banks in Pennsylvania have applied for the purchase by the government of blocks of their preferred stock is easily answered.

"The Pennsylvania Department of Banking has absolutely no authority to force any banking institution under its supervision to sell preferred stock.

"We are going ahead in our efforts to obtain this relief as fast as it is humanly possible. The Pennsylvania Department of Banking has refused to permit anything except the interests of depositors to influence its actions. It will continue to function on that basis."

RFC Head Pledges Gordon Co-operation

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(INS.)—Commenting on criticism of Dr. William Gordon, Pennsylvania state secretary of banking, that the RFC's policy was hindering the liquidation of closed banks, Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the RFC, said:

"The RFC is ready to co-operate with Dr. Gordon on the liquidation of banks and desires his co-operation likewise. The present policy is designed to expedite rather than hinder liquidations. Advances by the RFC naturally must be protected by the required collateral."

BANKS' STOCKS BOUGHT BY RFC

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—The RFC, seeking to stimulate the flow of credit by making banks more liquid, has invested $425,000,000 in capital notes and preferred stock of 1,275 banks, including some of the nation's largest.

This amount in purchases has been approved, and Jesse H. Jones, chairman, said the corporation regards approval by its board as closing the transactions. Authorizations by the board, he explained, were not subject to subsequent approval by bank stockholders.

The chairman said securities of 256 banks, of which 11 were large New York institutions, accounted for $108,000,000 of the purchases, or slightly more than one-fourth.

ASKS SPEED ON BANK CLAIMS

Officials at the new First National Bank at Wilkinsburg have asked that depositors who have not yet proved their claims on the old First National Bank of Wilkinsburg do so as early as possible.

Several thousand persons have not done so, it is reported. A large number of new deposits are reported in the new bank.

The remaining assets of the old bank have been turned over by the former conservator, Martin L. Moore, to a receiver, Harry T. Aufderheide, who will turn them into cash as soon as possible for the benefit of depositors.

25,000 Jobs in N. Y. Created by Repeal

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—The local NRA administrator, Grover A. Whalen, estimated today that 25,000 new jobs had been created in the city by repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. He said:

"It is by far the most potent tonic New York business has had since the Blue Eagle drive opened last August."

Woman Sought In Taproom Killing

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 8.—(INS.)—With an overcoat and a hat as their only clues, police today sought the "woman in the case" in connection with the slaying of Joseph Greco, 26, in a taproom.

The woman is believed to be the wife of the man who fired two slugs into Greco's chest after heated words in the taproom.

ROB FILM MAN'S HOME OF GEMS

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Jewels and furs valued at $35,000 were stolen last night, police were informed, from the residence of Harry Rapf, film executive.

Detectives John Rasmussen and Harry Stromwell said that almost everything of value had been removed, but the intruders failed to find a number of valuable watches.

Rapf discovered the robbery upon return from visiting friends.

Authorities said the robbery was carried out in the same manner as those of a year ago, when burglars looted the home of Zeppo Marx of $37,500 worth of valuables. Helene Costello lost $30,000 worth of jewels, furs and clothing and others, including Mae West, suffered losses.

Father of 15 Given Work at Postoffice

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Benjamin P. Vochatzer, one of 15,000 men who applied for extra Christmas work at the postoffice, will get a job. He said he was the father of 15 children. Postmaster Alexander W. Graham said the 45-year-old father would be given at least one week's employment.

Man Draws 8 Aces In Pinochle Hand

In a four-handed game in which each player received 12 cards from a double deck Evans drew eight aces before melding. The hand was good for 1,000 points.

Brunet Sisters Fool Boss; Now They're Volunteers

This perfect solution was found in Pittsburgh today for those folks who don't want to work—get yourself a twin!

Erma was working in a downtown Penn avenue establishment. One day, feeling indisposed, she decided against reporting for work.

Elva was more in the mood. She reported in Elva's place, distributed cheery good-mornings and was accepted without question as her sister.

For several months Elva was Erma—did her work—drew her paychecks.

Today they're on another job. Both are workers for the Volunteers of America and will solicit your Christmas contributions at a downtown stand.

SLAYER TO DIE 'LIKE A MAN'

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Joe Corey, 44, of Charleston, who is doomed to hang tonight, says he is going to "die with a smile—die like a man."

Convicted of slaying Mrs. Katherine Ghiz, a cousin of his estranged wife, Corey smokes incessantly as he waits for the hour of 9 p. m., when he mounts the gallows in the state penitentiary.

To a reporter he last night told the story of the crime for which he was sentenced to die, but he asked that publication be deferred until after the execution. He also was accused of killing his wife at the same time he shot the cousin, but he was not tried for that shooting.

In requesting that publication of the crime story be withheld, Corey said he did not want to hamper the efforts of relatives to save him. He already has had three stays of execution.

SEVEN PERISH IN HOME FIRE

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Seven persons were burned to death here early today when fire destroyed the home in which they were sleeping.

The dead are: Mrs. Genevieve Hibblen, 31, and her four children, Genevieve, 8; Catherine, 6; Jerome, 5, and Ernest, 2, and Mrs. Erline Orr, 19, and her daughter, Constance, 18 months.

The fire, which apparently started from an overheated stove, was not discovered by neighbors until it had made considerable headway. Firemen said that all the occupants apparently had been burned to death before they could escape. Mrs. Orr's husband, Albert, was said to be employed on a dredging project in the Detroit River near Amherstberg.

Silent Film Actor Returns to Screen

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—George K. Arthur, a comedian in the days of the silent film, announced his return to the screen today. He has signed for a role in Norma Shearer's new starring vehicle.

COURT HEARING BROOKLINE'S MINE FIGHT

Judge Frank P. Patterson is hearing testimony on the appeal of Mary A. Campbell, 2536 Wenzel avenue, from the decision of the Board of Adjustment in granting a permit to the U. S. Coal and Supply Company for the construction of a trestle and fan house at 2520 Wenzel avenue.

The proposal of the company, a subsidiary of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, has brought a storm of protest from Brookline residents. They assert it would violate the city's zoning ordinance.

The company wants to remove approximately 93 acres of coal and haul it away by truck. It was suggested that at the present rate of operation it might require 100 years to remove the coal.

The proposed fanhouse would be near the Brookline junction or to the right of West Liberty avenue, facing toward Brookline from the downtown.

Counsel intimated there might be a settlement to recompense the company for its rights in the property. This was done in Dormont and Mt. Lebanon, where similar situations arose.

Policemen to Wear Red Lights to Avoid Bumps

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Sacramento police officers directing traffic past congested intersections at night are to wear nice large red taillights so they won't get bumped.

This is Superintendent of Traffic Fritz Kaminsky's latest idea on how to reduce the mortality rate among corner traffic directors. He said:

"Motorists complain they can't see the traffic officers from behind and we can't afford to put in overhead lights. Therefore, we shall hang three-inch red reflectors on the back of the officers' belts."

NAVAL DEFENSE PUSHED BY JAPS

International News Service.

TOKIO, Dec. 8.—Creation of three new naval defense squadrons was announced today as a step toward naval preparedness.

Miscellaneous vessels heretofore under the command of various port commanders now will be grouped under separate authority at Yokosuka, Kure, and Sasebo. This applies to ships outside of the organized Japanese fleet.

The step was taken, according to the announcement, to improve administration and training.

WORSHIPPERS' CAR CRASHES

While Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Penbein, of 1203 Brookline boulevard, were at the 9:30 mass this morning in the Resurrection Church, 1114 Creedmore avenue, the brakes of their parked sedan gave way and the car crashed into a grocery store.

The runaway car slid backwards down the Creedmore avenue hill and wove its way between two telegraph poles and around a third before crashing into the window of the John Neuser grocery store, 1094 Brookline boulevard.

Jail Man Saved From Chain Gang

DETROIT, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Jesse Crawford, 20-year-old Negro, for whom Gov. William A. Comstock last spring refused to grant extradition to Georgia, where, he said, he had escaped from a prison chain gang, was found guilty yesterday in an attack case and sentenced to a 10 to 20-year prison term.

Early in November he was convicted of a statutory offense.

SEATTLE, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Helene Madison, Seattle's former queen of the swimming world, will take another try at the movies.

Returning from Chicago after appearing there as a professional swimmer at the Century of Progress Exposition, she planned to spend the holidays with her parents, then to go back to Hollywood.

RUM BLENDING FINE ART OF INDUSTRY

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—Whisky blending is one of the fine arts of the distilling industry.

There is no specific formula as to the proportions of old and new liquor or of alcohol that goes into the blended product, each rectifier submitting a method, Internal Revenue Bureau chemists explained today.

Little surprise was expressed that some of the blended whisky available immediately on repeal was of inferior quality. This undoubtedly has been occasioned with careless blending.

It was given as a general rule that heavy whiskies and to a lesser degree old whiskies, could be cut to a greater extent than the lighter types. An excellent grade of whisky may be cut 10 times with green whisky and probably five times with pure alcohol and distilled water, one expert declared.

BRANDY USED

Brandy also is used as a rectification element for whisky.

The cheap blends of whisky frequently are made up of a small proportion of liquor five years old or more, cut with alcohol, prune juice and distilled water.

Chemists said the character and proportion of grain employed in the distillation process had a bearing upon the susceptibility of whisky for cutting.

No regulations have been issued with relation to rectification of whisky. It was expected that the Federal Alcohol Control Administration and the Agriculture Department under the pure food and drug act might issue regulations on the subject.

New regulations probably will be prepared concerning the labeling of liquor as to the character of the contents of the bottle, such as age, blend, name and address of the distiller and the trade name of the product.

AGEING REQUIRED

Whisky sold as "bottled in bond" must have been aged in wood at least four years. This was the requirement before prohibition and was continued during the effective period of the Eighteenth Amendment as applying to medicinal spirits.

Chemists, calling attention to the fact that the initial 3.2 per cent beer put on the market was of inferior quality, said a gradual improvement would be noted in the quality of blended whisky sold. Bonded whisky now on the market, however, is of excellent pre-war quality since it has been aged in the wood for at least four years.

Most of the whisky that was placed in bond before prohibition probably will be used for blending purposes, since the price asked for it at retail virtually would be prohibitive. Most of the bonded liquor sold will be that produced since distilling was resumed in 1929, and imported products.

Don't Rush Drinking, Frank Asks Students

MADISON, Wis., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—President Glenn Frank, of the University of Wisconsin, at a student convocation yesterday urged students to abstain from drinking liquor until after graduation.

Not until students days are over should an individual decide whether such a "minor disadvantage" as drinking is permissible, Dr. Frank said.

Erie Liquor Stored 14 Years on Sale

ERIE, Pa., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—From out of a cellar sealed nearly 14 years ago is emerging a supply of choice liquors, wines, brandies and cordials for sale under a special state permit.

The spirits are from the cellar of Samuel D. Ostrow, wealthy real estate operator and former wholesale liquor dealer who has kept the supply under government seal since prohibition became effective.

Rum 'Real Stuff,' Analyses Reveal

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(Universal.)—Repeal liquor is "real stuff," analyses by expert chemists here showed today. Here's the result of tests on three standard products—rye, Scotch and gin:

Gin—no trace of denaturants, 92 per cent proofage; rye—pure in quality, 98 per cent proofage; Scotch—pure in quality, 82 per cent proofage.

Distillers Post $100,000 More In Test of Law

Joseph S. Finch & Co., distillers, yesterday posted another $100,000 bond in Federal Court to cover the $2 tax on pre-repeal liquor that, under the Cordier act, might be removed from its warehouse pending a hearing on an action brought by the company to test the constitutionality of the new state act.

When the action was instituted, November 27, the distilling company posted a $220,000 bond and last Saturday one of $100,000, which with the new bond, makes a total of $420,000 posted.

Under a temporary order of the Federal Court the state authorities are restrained from instituting suits against the company for failing to file an inventory of its liquor, pending a hearing on the company's application for an interlocutory injunction against Leon D. Metzger, secretary of revnue of Pennsylvania, and others.

A hearing on the application is scheduled December 14, at which two judges of the Federal District Court and a judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals will sit as statutory court.

NEW RUM FEES BILL SIGNED

HARRISBURG, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot today signed a bill eliminating the Alcohol Permit Board and increasing permit fees for distilleries, breweries and wineries.

The measure was sponsored by Representative Thomas B. Wilson, McKean.

The new fees are $2,500 to $25,000 annually for distilleries, depending upon the amount of production; $1,000 for breweries, and $250 for wineries. The old scale was $1,000 for distilleries and $100 for breweries. There were no wineries in the state.

The duties of the Alcohol Permit Board will be assumed by the new Liquor Control Board, created by the Legislature to supervise state liquor stores and perform licensing functions.

DRUG CONCERNS TO SELL RUM

Pittsburgh wholesale drug houses, caught with supplies of medicinal whisky when repeal came, today were granted authority to sell their stocks.

In Harrisburg the State Alcohol Permit Board granted certain Pittsburgh houses permission to dispose of their stocks to anybody before January 2, when the state stores open.

A spokesman for the W. J. Gilmore Drug Company said the company probably would dispose of its stock to the druggists who have been selling their medicinal whisky heretofore.

A similar permit was granted George A. Kelly Company and Harry I. Neaman, Homewood businessman.

Milton Statler Killed in Crash

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 8.—(INS.)—Milton Statler, of New York, an official of the Statler hotel chain, was killed today in an automobile accident near the Mexican border. His wife was seriously injured.

New Rum Racket Worked on Beer Dispensers

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Dec. 8.—(INS.)—Jail bars loomed today for L. T. Myers and S. L. Nowsalka, both of Shamokin, for the "misguided" help they gave the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in enforcing its beverage law regulations.

Police arrested Myers and Nowsalka for selling cards, bearing the chief "dont's" of the state beverage law, to Williamsport beer retailers. As their clinching argument in their sales talks, the Shamokin men declared that the state is requiring such notices to be posted.

Becoming suspicious, one beer seller took the card to E. L. Lamphier, local representative of the Department of Revenue, who had Myers and Nowsalka arrested.

SEEK FAIR PRICE

Dr. Doran said:

"There is no one group as anxious to see the business get under way on a fair price basis as the distillers themselves.

"This confusion over prices isn't strange. We knew that these local difficulties would be inevitable. There, of course, is a chaotic condition with the distillers not knowing to whom they can ship or where they can sell.

"The strange thing is that whisky is as available as it is under these conditions but, within a week, these things are going to be largely historical."

Word from Western Pennsylvania that several padlocks had been knocked from the doors of establishments closed under the prohibition law brought from the Justice Department an unofficial explanation that these matters were entirely up to the federal courts.

TAXES PROPOSED

In its recommendations the committee also proposed that all beers be taxed $5 a barrel, the same as the present 3.2 brew. The present tax on beers of alcoholic content in excess of 3.2 is $6 a barrel.

The committee recommended a 16 cents per gallon tax on still wines of less than 14 per cent alcoholic content compared to the present 4 cents.

Wines of from 14 to 24 per cent alcohol would bear a 40 cents per gallon tax, and all wines above 24 per cent, including brandies, $2.60 a gallon, the same as for distilled spirits.

Sparkling wines not containing more than 24 per cent alcohol would pay 80 cents a gallon while those over 24 per cent would be assessed $2.60 a gallon.

The proposed rate of 80 cents a gallon on natural sparkling wines is the same in effect before prohibition. Artificial sparkling wines containing not over 24 per cent alcohol would bear a 40 cents a gallon tax.

The committee recommended that an additional 16 cents per gallon tax be assessed on blended and rectified spirits over and above the $2.60 gallon levy, bringing it to a total of $2.76. The present law provides an additional 30 cents a gallon tax on rectified and blended liquor.

Time Limit Halts Sales, Not Drinking

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Although a city ordinance prohibits liquor sales after 1 a. m. on weekdays, Joseph F. Grossman, second assistant corporation counsel, says he sees "no reason why the customers can't linger on as long as they wish in the bars to consume supplies purchased before the 1 a. m. deadline."

Al Steps to Bar And Orders— Beer!

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(INS.)—Al Smith came out of hiding last night and showed up, with Mrs. Smith, at the town's smartest bar in the lobby of a Park avenue hotel.

The crowd greeted him with the usual applause, then leaned forward—to a man—as he seated himself to order his first public drink.

What would he have? Said Al:

Bootlegger Problem Now Worries Canada

MONTREAL, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—The Montreal Gazette said today a "serious problem" has been created for provinces which "lean so heavily on the sale of liquor" by the repeal of constitutional prohibition in the United States.

The Gazette said there was "danger that the bootlegger will return the compliment and instead of Canadian whisky going to the United States, the much cheaper liquor of the United States will flood this province and Canada generally."

PROBE BORDER RUM BRIBERY

EL PASO, Tex., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Nick D. Collaer, district director of the immigration border patrol, planned to confer in Juarez with high Mexican officials today concerning reported bribery of Mexican customs agents by liquor smugglers who attempted to cross the Rio Grande into the United States early yesterday.

American border patrolmen said Heriberto Alamis, one of the four suspected members of the smuggling gang under arrest here, told of the "contrabandistos" being "bid goodby" by two Mexican "fiscales" who at the same time collected the "customary smuggling fee." The band of 16 smugglers crossed the river directly opposite the Mexican fiscales' station in Eastern Juarez.

The smugglers encountered a border patrol, a battle ensued and when the firing ceased, the band of smugglers had been dispersed and two of its members slain—Francisco Gonzales and Higinio Perez, both of Juarez. A patrolman, Joyne C. Melton, also was slain.

RAIDERS FREED, RUM SHIP HELD

HALIFAX, N. S., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—The Royal Canadian Mounted Police announced today that four members of the crew of the police cuttter Stumble Inn, kidnaped aboard the Kromhout, a suspected rumrunner, were landed safely last night, at St. Pierre. The crew of the Kromhout was jailed.

While every available craft of Canada's police service combed the Atlantic for the four captives, they were landed on the rocky island off Newfoundland's coast at 9 p. m., some 12 hours after their abduction.

Capt. Ross Mason of the Kromhout and his men were arrested immediately and placed in jail at St Pierre.

The four seamen had been placed aboard the Kromhout, which was seized by the Stumble Inn and taken into tow. They were overpowered, the towline was hacked and the captured vessel escaped in the morning mist, despite shots and pursuit from the police boat.

DRINK AMERICAN WINE, GIBBONS URGES

Drink American—help the American wine merchant and manufacturer, the American farmer and the unemployed—American-made wine stimulates recovery. That is the message from Floyd Gibbons in his article, "Wine Goes Native!" in the January Cosmopolitan.

He hails the return of legal wine as an opportunity to build up a great American wine industry aiding agriculture and commerce, a source of revenue and employment. He considers it also as a check to the ambitions of the wine producers of Europe who have been hoping to win the American market. He enumerates the following immediate advantages:

"Six hundred thousand acres of vineyards, with a prohibition-time value of $300,000,000, back on a paying basis. Annual production of 2,000,000 tons of grapes—and going up. Jobs for 400,000 workers. Four hundred wineries recommissioned at once and working full blast to increase the present capacity of 72,000,000 gallons a year. Release from storage of 36,482,000 gallons of wine. Coast-to-coast railway haulage; new casks, bottles, labels, advertising, glassware, restaurant and hotel preparations, and other factors in distribution. Federal revenue, $50,000,000 to $100,000,000. Tax revenues—who knows?

"Right there the curtain goes up on a full-grown industry that puts more than $500,000,000 a year in circulation!"

AMERICAN MARKET

Americans—especially the Californians who own 85 per cent of the grape industry—believe they have captured the American wine maket which has been dominated by Europe for two centuries, he contends.

During the 13 years since prohibition, they studied wine production, grape culture, soil conditions and the perfecting of fine native wines, and now have a product equal to famed imported wines.

Expert vintners say that all the talk about the superiority of the French grapes is just propaganda because most French grapes have been grafted on American roots, their own having been virtually killed by Phylloxera, a grape eczema which our hardy vines are strong enough to resist.

FANCY LABELS

Our wine-makers have hired wine-producing chemists from all the world, who find that our grapes grow in the same longitudes as the best in Europe, and that the soil is chemically the same. They experimented with 435 kinds of grapes and picked out 60 that will produce every known kind of wine.

Gibbons says:

"About the lowest-grade American wine made by our most reputable winers is superior to the foreign ordinary which is dolled up under fancy labels and passed off as special vintage."

Because of the excellence of American wines and of the low prices at which they can be obtained, American vintners believe that "drink American wines" will be the rule in American households.

Expert Describes Proper Serving Of Sauternes

By A. ALBERT
Maitre D'Hotel, Hotel William Penn

(This is the third of a series that will specify the proper wine to serve on every occasion; deal with question of temperature, etc.; and list the proper type serving glasses. Mr. Albert, recognized as a wine authority, was born in Switzerland and reared in the wine areas of Europe. He comes of a family of hotel owners and wine merchants. Beginning his catering career at 12 aboard famous liners as wine boy, he was graduated through famous Paris cafes, London's Piccadilly Hotel, New York's old Waldorf Hotel and exclusive clubs in this country, before coming here five years ago.)

Enough can never be said about the wines of Sauternes, grown south of the city of Bordeaux. Their soft, sweet, golden colored splendor and highly perfumed boquet cannot be imitated. They are produced in the communities of Barsac, Preignac, Fargues and Sauternes.

Known properly as Sauternes wines or "Vins de Barsac," they sometimes are incorrectly referred to as white wines of Bordeaux. The same French government protection and classification assures proper wines.

The outstanding Sauternes, referred to as the first grand growth in the government classification, is the incomparable Chateau Yquem, grown in the small vineyard of Yquem. The first classification leader is Chateau La Tour-Blanche from Bommes; the second classification leader being Chauteau de Myrat, a product of Barsac.

Considering the care of these wines, it is not necessary the containers be laid horizontally in the "cave" or wine cellar, since they are free of sediment. They need not be served at the table from a wine cradle or basket, as is claret. Neither are they to be decanted.

The proper temperature of Sauternes should be 54 degrees in the cold months and not more than 40 to 45 degrees in the summer. Of course, Sauternes should never be iced.

Dry Sauternes are appropriately served with oysters and fish courses, while the sweet Sauternes should be served with or following the dessert. At a formal meal, the correct host would want a white fish to match the wine color. The wine should be served in a tulip type stem glass that is slightly narrower at the top than at the bottom.

I cannot conceive a more artistic, palatable and noble finishing touch at a lengthy dinner than a well chosen dessert and a rightly chilled bottle of golden Chateau Yquem in thin crystal glasses.

The healthful qualities of Burgundy wines will be discussed tomorrow.

Chicago Police Say City Has No Speaks

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—Take the word of Chicago police for it—there are no speakeasies operating in Chicago.

The reason for this, they said, is because all the proprietors of the "speakies" bought 3.2 beer licenses under which they can sell "hard stuff" until January 1.

Responding to an alarm late last night, J. O. Bower, 59, of 98 North Sprague avenue, Bellevue, president of the Columbia Road Hook and Ladder Company, Bellevue Volunteer Fire Department, collapsed at the fire house and died two hours later. Over-exertion was believed to have caused his death.

Mr. Bower had been elected president of the company Wednesday night. It would have been his second term during 20 years of service with the department. While fellow firemen went to the scene of the fire, Mr. Bower remained at the fire house and rallied for a time under the ministrations of a physician, but died early today.

He was North Boroughs chairman for the NRA, chairman of the NRA compliance board, chairman of the Home Loan Mortgage Association of Bellevue, member of the board of governors of the Y. M. C. A., a member of the Bellevue Presbyterian Church, the Knights of Malta and I. O. O. F.

Mr. Bower is survived by his wife; a daughter, Alice; two sons, Paul and Kenneth; a brother, George, of Steubenville, and three sisters, Miss Anna Bower and Mrs. Charlotte Harris, of Steubenville, and Mrs. Elizabeth Kenny, of Phoenix, Ariz.

STATE RUM SALE IN OHIO LOSES

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—State monopoly in the handling of hard liquor was virtually displaced by a licensing system before the Ohio Legislature today as retail sales by the glass gained in favor.

The licensing system was substituted in the administration liquor control bill for the state monopoly system by the Senate Judiciary Committee, last night, after the joint committees of the two houses had informally disapproved monopoly by a vote of 14 to 5 and expressed preference for a general licensing system.

The joint committees also stamped approval of retail sales by the glass in hotels, restaurants and clubs by a vote of 15 to 1. The bill carried such provision, but it generally had been considered one of the major controversial points.

Senator William H. Handley gave notice he will attempt to eliminate the provision which prohibits the transportation of opened packages of liquor in automobiles.

STORES HELD UP IN EAST END, NORTH SIDE

A gunman who seized $75 in the holdup last night of the Maryland Pharmacy, 5741 Walnut street, was sought by police today.

Al Hinkes, the proprietor; Lawrence Stillwagon, 919 Maryland avenue, the clerk, and P. Macy, of 5812 Howe street, a customer, were forced into the back room by the thug after he took about $75 from two registers.

He ordered Hinkes to open one and forced the clerk to hand over the contents of the other. After taking the cash, the robber fled.

The proprietor and a customer of the Economy Pants Store, 505 East Ohio street, were held up by two bandits, one of whom spoke German.

From the owner, George T. Ehrenfeld, the pair obtained $130 in cash, a watch, chain and a Masonic charm, and a diamond stickpin valued at $365, and $44.68 in cash from the register, police said.

Homer Stofer, of 318 Cremo street, the customer, was robbed of $5. The bandits overlooked $15 Stofer had hidden in a safety match box.

After robbing the victims, the pair forced them to close their eyes and lie on the floor, kicking Ehrenfeld several times. One of the gunmen talked to Ehrenfeld in German.

NEW LABOR LAW UPSETS CUBA

International News Service.

HAVANA, Dec. 8.—The Cuban situation reached one of its most critical stages today as the new 50 per cent Cuban labor law went into effect.

The Cuban army and all police were on duty in anticipation of threatened outbreaks against the law, which requires that all firms must have Cubans for at least 50 per cent of their personnel. Spaniards were affected more than any other one nationality by the decree.

The Grau San Martin Government has a serious problem to solve regarding the American-controlled Cuban Electric Company, which threatens to close down its plants. President Grau stated the government stands ready to seize the plants if the company should refuse to operate them.

CARBON DIOXIDE WELL GOES WILD

NILAND, Cal., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—A dry ice speculator's dream of riches from a carbon dioxide well he was drilling went berserk yesterday as it came in a roaring, miniature volcano that all but swallowed his truck and rigging.

E. J. Piatt started drilling six days ago for carbon dioxide with which to manufacture the dry ice. As he reached the 100-foot mark the well came in. No casing had been placed, and the well steadily increased in size until it measured 16 feet across. Hot mud, steam and gas spurted over the landscape.

Resident ranchers near Mundo complained to the oil and gas division at Sacramento while drillers frantically tried to stop the gusher.

PUZZLES SHOW TENSION HELPS TIME TO 'FLY'

By GOBIND BEHARI LAL
Universal Service Science Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—That time seems to fly faster when the mind is under a tension has been experimentally demonstrated at Harvard University's department of psychology.

This is reported by the two experimental psychologists who did this work, Saul Rosenzweig and Aase Grude Koht. Experiments were made upon Harvard and Radcliff men and women undergraduates.

Certain types of jigsaw puzzles were given to be solved. Time measurements with chronometers were kept by the observers, so that clock time duration was accurately registered. At certain critical moments during the process of puzzle solving the man or woman under test was asked as to his feeling about the passage of time, how many minutes had passed, or whether 1 to 10 minutes were up.

Tallying of the estimates of time passage with actual clock records gave the observers information concerning the changes in the perception of time.

It was observed by Rosenzweig and Khot that the state of tension affected the estimate of time. Differences of sex, individual temperaments and so on were also noticed.

The tests roughly bear out Dr. Albert Einstein's reported explanation as to relativity of time: that a second seems an eternity to man accidentally sitting on a red-hot stove, and an eternity but a moment to persons in love.

TRUCKERS FLAY RAIL METHODS

Withdrawal of the American Trucking Association, Inc., from the National Transportation Conference because of domination by the railroad interests who were "openly flouting the National Recovery Act," was announced here last night by Ted V. Rodgers, president of the association.

The withdrawal was announced at a meeting of members of the Pennsylvania Motor Truck Association in the Bendix-Westinghouse Air Brake Company, Center and Morewood avenues last night. Benjamin G. Eynon, former registrar of motor vehicles in Pennsylvania, spoke. Edward McCready, Jr., presided.

Rodgers said the conference was organized to study and recommend legislation pertaining to transportation but it was failing to take into consideration the fact that the trucking industry is subject to a code of fair competition. Rodgers added:

"No good end can be served by the participation of the trucking industry in a conference where the principal consideration is the problem of the rails."

TWO FIRE DEATH SUSPECTS HELD

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Rocco Diccardo, of Dunmore, and Frank Bruno are charged with arson and murder as the result of the burning of Riccardo's home and the death of 12-year-old Marion Myers in the flames.

Alderman Davis yesterday ordered the men held without bail after Ben Riccardo, a brother of the defendant, testified he heard them planning the fire and asserted Bruno wanted $500 for his part in the alleged plot.

Bruno was sentenced to prison some time ago on charges of incendiarism. The home was burned in March, 1932.

Iron Worker Hurt Dismantling Bridge

'TAX' ON CRITICS OF ROOSEVELT

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—The right of free speech has been barred members of the Interfraternity Club and it's proving a financial boon to charity.

Warren Piper, a diamond importer, who has been named "dictator" of the club for a period of five weeks, explained today that the idea was his and was instituted as a sort of test.

Upon entering the clubrooms one comes face to face with a large sign headed by the word "proclamation." It goes on to state that the word "depression" is not to be used within the confines of the club and among other things says:

"Criticize if you must the Congress, cabinet, codes and the Washington Merry-Go-Round . . . But lay off Franklin D. Roosevelt. Within the walls of this American club of educated men the President of the United States is entitled to respect."

For every violation members are requested upon their honor to deposit a silver coin in one of the numerous banks placed conveniently to raise funds for the club's charities.

Jersey CWA Job Puts Froglegs on Table

PAULSBORO, N. J., Dec. 8.—From a gastronomical standpoint, the civil works program is a huge success in Paulsboro. In addition to providing work for 50 men, it has enabled their families to enjoy those highly prized delicacies—frogs' legs.

Atlie B. Adams, director of emergency relief and the CWA, said in a report, the men engaged on a drainage project found large numbers of bull-frogs, some from 14 to 18 inches long.

Roosevelt Data Embroidered On Bedspread

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—A bedspread on which is embroidered statistics and other information concerning President Roosevelt's presidential and last gubernatorial campaign has been placed in the Roosevelt Museum at the foundation here.

The spread, which shows the work of months with a needle, was sent by a group of women in Muskogee County. In the space for the pillows are verses which show the majority and plurality he received in the presidential campaign as for his second term as governor of New York.

The main portion of the spread is divided into states and worked into each are figures showing the number of votes majority the President received in that state and the number of electoral votes for the state.

RAIL PASS ENDS MARRIAGE

INDEPENDENCE, Kan., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—W. T. Brown, 72, complained in a divorce petition life has been just one train ride after another since he married Fay Brown, 23, of Vilonia, Ark.

Brown said he wished to settle down; she wished to use Brown's railroad pass, and, as a result, in their three months of married life, they visited the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago, went to the Pacific Coast and made numerous trips to Kansas City, St. Louis and in Arkansas.

URGE TARIFFS OF 1928 BE RESTORED

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—The Pan-American conference was called upon yesterday to restore tariffs to a basis of those in effect in 1928, before the United States' Smoot-Hawley act went into effect.

Sponsored by Uruguay, a resolution was introduced providing that on July 1, 1934, the 1928 duties go into effect for five years.

Asking immediate action, Uruguayan delegates said they hoped it would be possible to cable all Pan-American governments within a fortnight asking adherence to the truce, pending the five-year agreement.

The high Smoot-Hawley tariff measure has drawn criticism from several South American countries, who claim it virtually bars their products from export to the United States. The resolution provides for restoration of duties to those in existence at the time of the Pan-American conference in Havana five years ago.

The resolution came after the steering committee had postponed action on the motion of Cordell Hull, head of the United States delegation, to "re-examine" the request of the League of Nations and possibly of Spain and Portugal for official observers.

It veered the conference into the channels of economic discussion, which has been the aim of several delegations since the opening.

The steering committee adopted a sub-committee recommendation to refer Mexico's financial plan, involving a moratorium on public and private debts, to the inter-American high commission.

HAWAIIAN HOP AIM OF NAVY

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Dec. 8.—(INS.)—Definite indications that six giant Navy patrol planes will attempt a non-stop flight to Hawaii early next month was seen today with receipt of orders at Eleventh Naval District headquarters for two aircraft tenders to put to sea next month, apparently for patrol duty along the line of flight.

The U. S. S. Wright has been ordered to leave here January 5 to arrive at Pearl Harbor January 15 and the U. S. S. Sandpiper was ordered to take a position 300 miles west of San Francisco by January 10.

Six planes which recently flew from Hampton Roads to the Canal Zone, and then here, have been overhauled and additional storage space for gasoline installed so that the craft now have a cruising radius of 2,500 miles.

STEERS BRED ON HEARST RANCH TRIUMPH

Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 8.—Sleek, fat Hereford steers, bred on William Randolph Hearst's Piedmond Land and Cattle Company ranch, achieved an impressive double triumph as the auction sale of prize-winning cattle brought the great Western livestock show to a close.

The steers, worthy descendants of the first Hereford herd in America, brought to California from Australia by the late Senator George Hearst 70 years ago, were sold for the highest prices paid in a major market this year.

The Safeway-Piggly Wiggly stores were successful bidders for the grand champion steer of the show, a 930-pound Hereford bought from the Piedmond breeding herd by Colyear Burres, 19, a student at California Polytechnic School, San Luis Obispo.

And the stores likewise acquired the reserve grand champion carload of yearlings past Hereford steers entered by the Piedmond Land and Cattle Company and raised under the supervision of Frank Will, veteran Scotch herdsman.

The success of the Piedmond carload was even more pronounced. The yearlings went under the hammer at $13.25 a hundredweight, $3 a hundredweight more than was paid for the grand champion carload at the Kansas City show.

Both sales were negotiated through the Sterling Meat Company. The price for the reserve grand champion carload was double the open market quotation.

High tribute was paid the breeders by Alex McDonald, of the University of California Agricultural College, judge of cattle at the show, who declared young Burres' steer was one of the five best Herefords he ever had seen.

Forgetting his oration when about halfway through, William Olson, Youngsville, Pa., youth, was given a second chance by the judges after the other contestants had completed. His work was so impressive that the judges awarded him first place in the annual Wakefield Oratorical Contest.

REPORT 40 DEAD ON CONVICT SHIP

PARIS, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—A rumor that 40 prisoners on the convict ship La Martiniere were killed by jets of hot steam in a mutiny after the vessel left the coast of France en route to Guiana Prison Colony reached Paris last night from Algiers.

The Ministry of the Interior was unable to confirm the rumor.

There were 280 convicts aboard the vessel when she left France, bound for the "dry guillotine" of French Guiana. The human cargo was crammed into heavily barred cages.

STERN BUYER OF N. Y. POST

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—The New York Evening Post, which Alexander Hamilton founded in 1801, will have a new owner tomorrow.

He is J. David Stern, editor and publisher of the Philadelphia Record, the Camden (N. J.) Courier and the Camden Post. He announced yesterday he had bought the paper from Curtis-Martin Newspaper, Inc., which succeeded to the ownership acquired by the late Cyrus H. K. Curtis in 1923.

Stern will issue the first edition under his ownership on Monday. Whether the paper will retain its present tabloid format or resume standard size has not been disclosed.

The new owner, who has been publishing newspapers since 1911 when he bought a paper in New Brunswick, N. J., announced that the Evening Post will be independent politically. He said he is supporting President Roosevelt "because he is a Liberal, not a Democrat."

Curtis-Martin Newspapers, Inc., publishes the Philadelphia Public Ledger, the Evening Ledger and the Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Evening Post has had a distinguished line of editors including William Cullen Bryant, Carl Schurz, E. L. Godkin and Oswald Garrison Villard. Villard sold the paper in 1918 to Thomas W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan & Co., who four years later sold it to a syndicate including Franklin D. Roosevelt, Owen D. Young, George W. Wickersham, Norman H. Davis, Paul M. Warburg, August Heckscher and Marshall Field. This group sold it to Curtis December 23, 1923.

WHITE HOUSE FETE INCLUDES OLD REGIME

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—The White House last night had one of its most democratic diplomatic receptions in many a year, with the Marine band gathering around the gold piano to play for the dancing that ended it.

Before it was over, Secretary Dern was dancing as gaily as the President's daughter, Mrs. Anna Dall.

For an hour and 25 minutes the President and Mrs. Roosevelt stood in front of a palm bank, beneath the crystal chandelier in the blue room, shaking hands with nearly 2,000 guests.

DIPLOMATS IN THRONG

By the time they had partaken of the fruit juice and cake refreshments in the state dining room, "the line" had caught up with them and they were rubbing shoulders with the Democrats and Republicans that this city knows best.

Former Vice President Curtis, Mrs. Dolly Gann, and her husband, Edward Everett Gann, and former Secretary of War and Mrs. Pat Hurley joined in a buzz of gay conversation about the dining table with members of the present-day cabinet and their wives.

The processional of President and cabinet, instead of sweeping down a stairway with pageantry of flags, moved from elevator to red room, with no more fanfare than "Hail to the Chief."

The one-time "cabinet only" rule for that bit of pageantry had been stretched to include two acting cabinet members, Acting Secretary of State Phillips and Acting Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau.

MISS PERKINS TARDY

Labor Secretary Frances Perkins, wearing a black gown, was late, and was whisked in past the palm screen by Mrs. Dall, in white brocade. Being late just wasn't known in more formal days.

Mrs. Roosevelt was gowned in white brocade, low cut in back, held to a high neck line by a jeweled clasp. The long skirt was finished in four points. Slippers and orchid-decorated bag were of the same brocade.

Circling through the crowds were Mrs. Roosevelt's girlhood friends, Representative Isabella Greenway, of Arizona, and Mrs. Mary Rumsey, of NRA.

PRESIDENT RETIRES

After the President retired about 10:30, Mrs. Roosevelt, on the arm of Capt. Vernou, naval aide, took refreshments, moved through the rooms chatting, and went into the east room to watch the dancing.

When she retired, Mrs. Dall entered the east room, was speedily whisked to the ball room floor, danced first with John Philip Hill, who was cut in on by a young diplomat, and then by a newspaper man.

Then Secretary of War Dern started circulating, and soon some of the most dignified gray hairs in officialdom were dancing under the famed chandeliers.

Carnegie Tech Men Join Phi Epsilon

Dr. I. Estermann, of Carnegie Institute of Technology, formerly of the University of Hamburg, Germany, last night addressed a meeting of the XI Chapter, of the Phi Lambda Upsilon, national honorary chemistry fraternity, in the Hotel Schenley at which 11 University of Pittsburgh students were initiated.

They were: M. S. Morgan, E. G. Ford, T. H. Clarke, W. Goodwin, T. Mackiewicz, W. Armstrong, J. F. McAnulty, A. Junge and E. A. Stitt.

$10,780 in Liberty Bonds Found Buried

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 8.—(INS.)—Registered liberty bonds and war savings certificates totaling $10,780, which were found buried in the yard of a Kansas City home here, will be returned to Washington, officials declared.

The bonds were in two jars. The contents of one jar, amounting to about $2,000 were identified as having been stolen from a bank in Circleville, Kan., 10 years ago. Officers believe the contents of the other jar had been stolen, but the identity of the rightful owner has not been determined.

SHANK HEARS CHAIR DOOM

Universal Service.

BENTON, Ark., Dec. 8.—Mark H. Shank, Akron, O., lawyer, formally was sentenced yesterday to die in the electric chair February 2 for the poison murder of Alvin Colley, an Akron friend and employe of Shank.

The lawyer's wife, who stood by him throughout the trial, walked with him as he appeared before Circuit Judge Thomas E. Toler. She collapsed when sentence was pronounced.

Judge Toler denied the new trial motion of H. F. McDaniel, Shank's attorney. McDaniel later announced an appeal to the State Supreme Court which automatically will stay sentence unless the high court arrives at a decision before February 2.

Shank was tried only for the murder of Colley, but he was accused also of killing Colley's wife, Ethel, and their two small children at the same time by putting poison in cups of grape juice the family drank at a picnic near Malvern, Ark.

ADMITS KILLING, GETS 10 YEARS

BEDFORD, Pa., Dec. 8.—Samuel Rochelle, 37, Beaver Falls, Pa., pleaded guilty in Criminal Court to the murder of Conda Johnson, Chaneysville, this county, on the night of October 31. Judge Harry C. James after hearing testimony for several hours to fix the degree of the crime as second degree murder and sentenced Rochelle to serve 10 to 20 years in Western Penitentiary.

Rochelle, a member of the C. C. camp in the Pennsylvania State Forest, 15 miles south of here, while intoxicated, stabbed Johnson, a young married man in the home of Oscar Ault, who is suspected of selling the men liquor. A bench warrant has been issued for Ault.

Rochelle enlisted in the civilian service from Beaver Falls. He has a wife and several children there.

CATTLE TRADE PLIGHT TOLD

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Charles E. Collins, of Kit Carson, Col., president of the American National Livestock Association, declared today that "things in the cattle industry are going from bad to worse." He said:

"Agriculture continues to be the sick man of America's economic household even though beneficial effects of the President's recovery program are being felt in other industries.

"A condition now exists for the beef-grower which calls for an important change of program if the whole industry is to be saved from irremediable disaster."

His statement was issued as a formal call to livestockmen to attend the national association's annual convention here January 10, 11 and 12.

LOUISIANA VOTE FIGHT MAY GO TO HOUSE

BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Louisiana's Sixth District congressional election dispute today appeared to be headed for a settlement in the House of Representatives, with opposing political factions in the district deadlocked and refusing to give ground.

Apparently, the district will send two "Congressmen" to Washington in January, unless the administration nominee, declared elected last Tuesday, should enter and also win the "citizen's popular election," which has been called by mass meeting action for December 27.

If two are sent, it will be for the National House to decide which was legally elected.

CHARGE FAKE ELECTION

Anti-administration leaders, sponsoring the citizen's election, have openly branded the procedure by which Mrs. Bolivar E. Kemp, Senator Huey P. Long's candidate, was "elected unopposed" last Tuesday as "a fake election."

The administration has characterized the proposed "citizens election" as an extra-legal movement which will not be recognized.

Mrs. Kemp, admitting she acted against the wishes of her "political advisers," has offered to cancel her disputed election on condition that the citizens would also cancel their proposed "popular election" and suggested that everybody start all over with all candidates given an equal chance in a primary and election to be regularly called.

TIME HELD LACKING

Nobody took up her offer. Gov. O. K. Allen issued a statement asserting there was not time now to call primaries and a general election before the January session of Congress, and pointing out that technicalities attaching to the expiration of voters' registrations in Louisiana on January 1 would make it "impossible to hold legal primaries and an election before next April 15."

In a letter to the citizens' election committee, which had also petitioned for a regularly called primary and election, Allen offered to call a new general election on April 15.

The citizens' committee's reply to Mrs. Kemp's proposition was an invitation for her to come into the December 27 citizens' election as a candidate "if she really wants a test of strength."

SUDDEN CALL

With five candidates running for the vacant Sixth District Congress seat, Gov. Allen last week suddenly called the election to be held eight days after his proclamation which permitted no time for elimination primaries.

The Long-controlled district Democratic committee immediately met and named Mrs. Kemp—widow of Representative Bolivar E. Kemp and Senator Long's candidate — as "the unopposed Democratic nominee."

Her name and none other appeared on the ballot submitted to the voters last Tuesday. The day was marked by disorders and protesting demonstrations and only about 5,000 persons voted in an area with a normal voting strength of 45,000.

Jesse Jones Pays Old Bill With 25-Cent Check

DENVER, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—C. W. Harris, of Denver, received a check for 25 cents today from Jesse H. Jones, head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation at Washington, in payment for five newspapers Harris sold Jones in Houston, Tex., 25 years ago.

"I sold papers in Houston in 1908 and Mr. Jones, a wealthy lumber dealer, was one of my customers. He never used to have any small change, so I sold him papers on credit.

"I wrote Mr. Jones recently and told him I believed he owed me for five papers and I would like a check for a keepsake."

BLOOD IN AUTO MURDER CLUE

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Police detectives said tonight that at least one of the gang believed responsible for the slaying of Samuel T. Daugherty, near San Francisco, November 20, has been traced to Los Angeles by the finding of a blood-stained motor car at a wash rack in Westwood.

Officers found a .38-calibre bullet in the upholstery of the machine, later followed a Negro chauffeur when he drove the car to a residence, and there learned the owner had left the city hurriedly.

San Francisco police officers examined the machine and said it is the one in which Daugherty was killed. Authorities said Daugherty was believed to have been a member of the Waxey Gordon gang in New York.

Testifies Husband Was Unconscious, Wins Insurance

ERIE, Pa., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Testimony that her husband was unconscious the day before he died brought Mrs. Edith May Lamb, of Erie, a jury award of his $2,000 life insurance policy.

She gave the testimony in a suit brought by Lamb's mother, Mrs. Savantha Lamb, of Penfield, who asserted her son wrote the mother's name in the policy a few hours before he died. The wife asserted the writing was a forgery.

Boston Man Named To U. S. Arts Board

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(INS.)—Charles A. Coolidge, a Boston architect, today was appointed a member of the Federal Commission of Fine Arts, filling the vacancy caused by the death of John L. Mauran.

DISPUTED ART UP AT AUCTION

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—An oil portrait of the late Henry Clay Pierce, St. Louis oil magnate, which survived his threat to burn it, will be sold at a New York art auction next Thursday. The picture was painted by Anders Zorn, noted Swedish artist, who also painted portraits of Pierce's wife and daughter.

Pierce was dissatisfied and ordered extensive alterations in all three pictures. He then refused to pay $12,000, the price the artist asked. Zorn sued, but Pierce settled before the case went to court, saying he wanted possession so he could destroy his portrait.

Pierce set no time for the burning of the picture and it was found after his death. It was said, however, no one was permitted to see the picture during his lifetime. News articles of 1927 said the portrait was valued at $30,000, while that of his wife was set at $20,000.

'YELLOW PERIL' HELD REAL MENACE

The so-called "yellow peril" is a definite menace, Dr. M. A. Rosanoff, professor of Duquesne University, told members of the Duquesne University Guild, meeting to hear him speak on "Russia" in the school library today.

Led by an armed Japan, "a modern Genghis Khan," the yellow races of the world will threaten some day, he said, to overrun white Europe and white America. And he predicted that only a close union between Russia and the United States will at least stave off such a disaster. He said:

"I applaud the swift, decisive action of President Roosevelt in recognizing Russia. It will not only win the United States a large volume of trade for at least 25 years to come, but it will act as a check against the militant ambitions of Japan."

The present government of Russia, a communistic dictatorship, Dr. Rosanoff asserted, was born of necessity—the necessity for rapidly industrializing Russia. As the years pass, he believes, Russian government will settle down until there is little real difference between the Soviet "experiment" and other world systems.

And as for the question of religious persecution, the Russians have learned, he said, that religion thrives on persecution and it will not be long before they will learn that toleration is the best policy.

U. S. SEES BAR TO DUCE'S PLAN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Mussolini's new plan for a sort of super-league of great powers, ruling affairs in three world zones, is looked upon by some State Department officials as already well on the way toward rejection, although they are withholding final judgment on the idea.

One reason is that these officials do not believe France would accept an arrangement which, as this does, would remove from the Versailles treaty some of the guarantees of security the French have tried to strengthen.

Mussolini's proposal, roughly, would let the United States take primary control of affairs in the Americas; Japan and Russia those in Asia; Germany, France, Great Britain and Italy those in Europe.

It would eliminate from the League of Nations covenant articles which guarantee the territorial integrity of members and other sections which empower the league to use military, economic and financial force against nations found to be aggressors.

Vatican Seeking Chaco War Truce

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Negotations are underway in the Vatican to bring about a Christmas truce in the Chaco warfare between Bolivia and Paraguay such as it obtained last year, it was reported today.

Although there was no official confirmation forthcoming from Vatican City, hopes were voiced that such a truce might be arranged—perhaps a longer one than last year.

BULLITT LANDS IN FRANCE

International News Service.

HAVRE, France, Dec. 8.—William C. Bullitt, en route to Moscow to assume his duties as first American ambassador to the Soviet regime, arrived here today aboard the liner President Harding. He said:

"I am an ambassador now and I can't talk much. We had a rough voyage. I am going to Berlin tonight, and then will proceed on to Moscow immediately."

Evidence of the "rough voyage" was the fact the liner touched port a full day late.

FREEDOM FIGHT TO GO ON, SAYS DE VALERA

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—President Eamon De Velera, of the Irish Free State, will carry on his fight for independence, despite what he termed England's threats of armed force to prevent a split with the British commonwealth.

In an exclusive cable to the Associated Press yesterday, De Valera recalled that "for 750 years Ireland has striven to win back her independence. He added:

"She will not cease now."

Although the fighting Irish leader and former professor reiterated his determination to strive for freedom, he was silent on what his next move would be.

He expressed bitter dissatisfaction with the recent refusal of Dominions Secretary J. H. Thomas to reply directly to De Valera's recent question as to what would be done if the Free State should sever connections with the commonwealth.

Thomas, before the House of Commons, replied with a refusal to discuss what he termed an hypothetical question.

De Valera said in his cable:

"We have since told him in plain terms that the will of the Irish people today, as always, is to be free and independent.

"We ask him to say straightforwardly that the exercise by the Irish people of their right to sever the forced connection with the British commonwealth would not lead to war.

"Mr. Thomas refused to answer.

"He has done so because he knows and the British government knows that the present relationship with Great Britain would not last 24 hours if the Irish people were free to end it."

TOKIO, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Yosuke Matsuoka, Japan's spokesman at the League of Nations sessions which preceded her withdrawal last March, formally resigned today from membership in the Seiyukai majority party in the National House of Representatives.

At the same time, he resigned his seat in the House. He said he wanted to cut all political ties.

Farmer Refused Tooth Prints Of Prisoners

FOND DU LAC, Wis., Dec. 8. (AP.)—Carrying an apple in each hand, a farmer appealed to county jail officials here for permission to take tooth marks of two prisoners.

The farmer explained that thieves visited his place last summer and ate some apples. He said he examined the cores and was positive he would recognize the tooth prints.

Jewish Refugee Relief Advanced

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Eighteen organizations, nine of them non-Jewish, were selected by the advisory council of the Jewish refugees' conference yesterday to co-operate with the governing board in handling relief work.

The conference decided to furnish the refugees identity cards when it is necessary to move them from one country to another. Lord Robert Cecil, of Great Britain, was elected permanent chairman of the governing body.

Prussian Art Schools Pit Limit on Jews

The order, which went out from the office of Bernhard Rust, Nazi Prussian commissioner for culture and education, provides that only 1.5 per cent of the students may be Jewish.

Democrat Legislators to Consider Action on Impeaching Judges

By MARK SHIELDS

Democratic legislators, at their weekly dinner in Harrisburg next Monday night, will consider possible action on impeachment charges against three judges of Pennsylvania's appellate courts.

Mr. Shields

The three are Justices John W. Kephart and William Irwin Schaffer, of the Supreme Court, and Judge Thomas J. Baldrige, of the Superior Court.

During investigation by a committee of the United States Senate it was disclosed that their names appeared on what was termed a J. P. Morgan "preferred list," and that stock was made available to them at a price below that at which it was placed on the market.

At the time of the disclosures Gov. Pinchot said he would remove Justices Kephart and Schaffer had he the power. Simultaneously Warren Van Dyke, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, asked that a special session of the Legislature be called to institute impeachment proceedings. Some time later Joseph F. Guffy, Roosevelt leader in Pennsylvania, asked the Governor to act in opening the way for impeachment of other judges, his statement being made on election night last month.

Then this week Mr. Van Dyke again urged the Governor to broaden his legislative call to permit the impeachment of judges.

* * *

State Constitution On Special Sessions

To this plea the Governor made prompt rejoinder that the way was open for the Legislature to act. The state Constitution, dealing with subjects which can be considered in a special session says:

"When the General Assembly shall be convened in special session there shall be no legislation on subjects other than those designated in the proclamation of the Governor calling such session."

Impeachment proceedings would not come under the head of legislation, the Governor intimated, which left the next move up to the Democrats if they really wished to do something more than issue statements. It is this move which they will determine Monday night, according to some leaders of the party.

The last attempted judicial impeachment which made any stir occurred in 1925. On that occasion the House refused to adopt the resolution of impeachment, rejecting the majority report of a committee which reccommended action against Judge John A. Berkey, of Somerset, after protracted hearings.

The procedure is for a member of the House to present a resolution demanding the impeachment of the specific public official against whom he thinks such drastic action should be inaugurated. The resolution under normal conditions would go to the Judiciary General Committee, the chairman of which would appoint a sub-committee to take testimony.

* * *

Senate Acts As a Court

Recommendations of this subcommittee would be laid before the whole committee, and then a report on an advised course of action would be made to the House. If the House decided there was basis for impeachment charges the subject would be laid before the Senate, which would act as a court. Managers or attorneys would be appointed by the House and the officials under fire, and a two-thirds vote of the Senate would be required to impeach and remove from office.

Democrats have seized upon the Morgan lists as excellent campaign material. Their leaders have made some speeches on the subject recently, and they are counting on dramatizing the issue for use in the general election campaign of next year.

They would be the more easily able to do so if an actual resolution of impeachment became a part of the legislative records. Admittedly the proposal faces a hard battle, if for no other reason than that it would prolong the session. However, if the Democrats could get a vote on the subject, and register the bulk of their followers as favoring action, they would have a clear-cut division with the Republicans for a 1934 weapon.

CHURCH APPEAL SUNDAY TO GET FUND QUOTA

Need 50,000 Pledges OF $10 Each to Reach Goal

Rabbi Samuel H. Goldenson today sounded a general appeal to all churchgoers of Allegheny County for support of the emergency sharing plan to be presented in all churches Sunday.

Urging men and women to consider results of possible failure of the plan "in human terms," Rabbi Goldenson said:

"Every dollar fallen short of the goal will mean additional heartache to some needy mother requiring medical care for her child, or to some father struggling to hold his family together."

The plan was instituted by Pittsburgh church leaders to put the Welfare Fund's drive for $2,837,000 over by soliciting 50,000 subscriptions for $10 each, payable September 1, 1934. Contributions to the plan to date include ^290 from campaign workers themselves, representing, in most cases, a second gift, and $25 from a Hill District pastor who stated that he has received no regular salary for four years. Total contributions to the Welfare Fund's drive stand at $2,022,752.

JUDGES CERTIFY GOLLMAR VOTE

Election Judges W. Heber Dithrich and Ambrose B. Reid today certified the result of the November ballots and paved the way for a procession of contests in court over the outcome.

Their report gave a majority of 251 votes to Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar, Republican runing for reelection against John Heinz, Democrat.

The total was 166,752 for Gollmar and 166,501 for Heinz. Twenty-five districts in the vote for Sheriff are to be contested and Gollmar will have served almost six months in 1934 before the final result is known. Twenty-one local contests also are to be filed.

The final count in the race for judges of Common Pleas Court also were certified.

Judge M. A. Musmanno, candidate on five tickets, polled what is apparently the largest vote received by any county candidate. His total was 320,888.

Judge Ralph H. Smith, Republican, came next with 192,213. Judge Harry H. Rowand, Republican, was also elected with 161,517. John J. Kennedy, Democrat, polled 154,922 and A. Marshall Thompson, Democrat, 146,970. Alexander P. Lindsay, Independent, polled 45,588, and Van A. Barrickman, Independent, 3,831.

BOYS STONING TRAINS WARNED

Hurling of stones at passenger trains by boys playing on the railroad right-of-way brought a warning from officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad today following the injury of an engineer near Crafton yesterday.

The engineer, E. C. Cook, of Carnegie, was hurt only slightly, but officials pointed out the danger incurred by such "play." A complaint was to be filed with Juvenile Court officials today.

Cook, in the cab of the second engine on a through train from Cincinnati to Pittsburgh, was struck on the head.

Numerous similar incidents in the Pittsburgh district have been reported, it was said.

PLEADS GUILTY TO 'SHAKEDOWN'

Lawrence Haser, 32, of Babcock boulevard, Ross Township, is constable no more. He resigned to Judge Sylvester J. Snee and was paroled for one year, when he pleaded guilty to extortion.

It was testified that Haser had "shaken down" the Veteran Firemen's Association August 27 by threatening to raid their picnic in a Ross Township grove if they did not give him $50. John T. Malone, president of the association, said he compromised by paying $40 to the constable. After the picnic he complained to the district attorney, who caused Haser's arrest.

COUNCIL MOVES TO CUT CITY TAX RATE

Plan to Fix 1934 Levy Then Slash Budget To Conform

The first step for a reduction in the city tax rate for 1934 was taken in City Council today when Councilman William Y. English, chairman of the budget committee, announced plans to fix the new rate and then cut the 1934 budget to conform to income.

At his suggestion Council then adopted a resolution to hold a public hearing on reduction of the tax rate next Monday morning.

Invitations to attend the hearing will be sent to the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, the Chamber of Commerce, the Building Owners and Managers' Association and other civic groups interested.

ANOTHER SLASH

Council then slashed $46,000 from the budget, of which $35,000 was for street repairs. Today's cut increased reductions in the budget to more than $100,000.

A motion made yesterday to cut the Mayor's appropriation for traffic planning by $18,000 to $150,000 for the year failed when Councilman Frank L. Duggan rallied support for the Bureau, with whose activities he has been closely connected.

Duggan asked that no cuts for the traffic bureau be made without a hearing, and other councilmen agreed, although several indicated that the financial condition of the city requires that drastic economy action be taken.

LIBRARY, HOSPITALS CUT

Reductions made by Council yesterday were chiefly from supplies, equipment and miscellaneous services. Some small cuts were made in the Shade Tree Division, in the dog pound and the municipal garage.

North Side Carnegie Library and the three city hospitals received some reductions. The Welfare Department's allotment for burials, transporting patients, administering Pasteur treatment and care of the feeble-minded was also cut.

Plan Educational Program at School

Featuring educational films, animated cartoons, addresses, dancing and other entertainment, a series of "Neighborhood Nights" will be inaugurated at the Arsenal Junior High School, Fortieth and Butler streets, tonight.

Included on tonight's program is an address by Dr. L. H. Hetherington, of the Tuberculosis League. The Rev. A. G. Curry, chairman of the Strip-Lawrenceville Community Council, which will sponsor the series, will preside.

Crafton Clubwomen Conducting Exhibit

The junior section of the Women's Club of Crafton, opened a merchants and manufacturers exhibit in American Legion Hall, Crafton, last night. The exhibit will continue tonight.

By Robert W. Chambers

Gail Takes Papers From Gailliard's Baggage

(Republished from Cosmopolitan Magazine and soon to appear on the screen as a Cosmopolitan production made for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and starring Marion Davies.)

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

The deeply carpeted corridor was silent and dim. She could see nobody in it. In her purse was the housekeeper's passkey which she had taken from Operator Cammock.

She looked up and down the corridor again; then, crossing swiftly to Room 23, she fitted the passkey to the lock and opened the door.

On the bed lay a locked valise.

From a leather belt under her dress she drew a long keen-edged knife and slashed and hacked a long slit in the leather.

Through this she pulled out shirts, collars, underclothing and then a packet of papers, taped and sealed. From this she ripped wax and tape, and tore open every envelope.

Here was his commission! Here were lists of men's names and addresses in northern cities. Here was a letter from C. A. Gaston to C. L. Vallandigham. It had to do with a depot of hidden war material in Chicago, and a plan for seizing the U. S. gunboat Michigan.

Here was another letter to Vallandigham, signed by Clement C. Clay; another to John Porterfield from Judah P. Benjamin. These latter concerned a plot to disorganize federal finances and withdraw gold from circulation.

There was a letter from Jacob Thompson to a Col. Robert Martin concerning seven other Confederate officers who had made their way into northern cities to lead the Sons of Liberty in the impending revolution.

There was one more letter in cipher, directed to Vallandigham—no doubt the formal order to begin operating by seizing Indiana, Illinois and Ohio.

Gathering all these papers into a bundle, she left the room, closed and locked the door and sped toward the stairway.

Operator Galt sat in the lobby, smoking. When he caught sight of her descending the stairs he went to meet her.

Not Quite Candid

"Was it Captain Gailliard, ma'am?"

"Yes. Find Dodd and bring him to the Eleventh street side door."

She went on into the passageway and found Cammock at his post. Almost immediately Dodd and Galt came hurrying down Eleventh street.

"Capt. Gailliard was not in his room," she said, "but I found these papers in his valise. Gentlemen, you will be good enough to carry these papers to the office of the provost marshal, examine them, telegraph their contents to Col. Sharpe, and await further orders from him."

"Where did Capt. Gailliard go?" asked Galt, bewildered.

"I think I know where he is going," said Operator 13. "And I am going to follow him."

"You'd better take one of us"—began Cammock, but she interrupted coldly:

"Do I have to remind you again that I am in charge here, Mr. Cammock?"

The spy reddened. "I can't understand how he got out of this hotel," he muttered.

Galt, deeply chagrined, said to Dodd: "Well, I guess we better hurry along to the provost and start our telegraphing."

Dodd said to her admiringly: "This is a fine bit of work you have done, ma'am. Will you keep in touch with us?"

"Perhaps," she said quietly.

"Be very careful of those papers. I hold you three gentlemen responsible for them."

They touched their hats to her. Galt carried the papers. Dodd and Cammock walked on either side of him like a pair of gaunt, watchful hounds.

* * *

A key rattled in the door where John Gailliard sat awaiting the return of his ladylove. The girl came in breathless, radiant, excited.

"I sent my aunt about her business," she said. I'm free! What shall we do darling?"

"I'm expecting some friends," he said: "They won't keep me long Gail. I'll step across to my room a moment."

"Are you really going to Montreal?" she asked dolefully.

"Yes, I am obliged to go."

"When?"

"At six tonight. I'm sorry, darling."

"Are you going alone?"

"With a friend."

"Couldn't you possibly postpone your journey?" she asked wistfully.

"I'm sorry. I already have his tickets and mine."

Duty's Demand

He looked at her face in the mirror, saw her mouth quiver; came up behind her and touched the nape of her neck with his lips. "I must serve my country," he said tenderly.

She turned from the glass, caught him by both shoulders, and whispered excitedly in his ear: "Is your friend a Confederate officer?"

"Not an officer."

"Do I know him?"

"You never even heard of him, dear. His name is Harrison, and he's Gen. Longstreet's chief spy."

"Oh, darling, be careful!"

"You needn't worry, honeysweet. I left word at the office for him to come upstairs and knock. So I'll just step across to my room and call the office."

"There's a speaking tube near the door. You can use that."

So he went over and set his smiling lips to the rim of the wall-tube; blew into it a whistling blast, and when the desk clerk answered: "This is John Halyard, Room 23, speaking. I am expecting a Mr. Harrison from Baltimore. Has he arrived?"

"Mr. Harrison has just gone up to your room, sir."

Emerging Visitor

Gailliard turned to Operator 13. "He's here. I won't be long. Wait for me, honey-bun, and we'll have the rest of the

Synopsis

Gail Loveless, beautiful Union spy known as Operator 13, went to Culpeper, Va., to checkmate the work of Antonia Ford, a Confederate spy who had kept Gen. Jeb Stuart so well informed that Gen. Stoneman, the Union cavalry leader, never was able to surprise him.

Operator 13 became Antonia Ford's house guest. At a party she met Capt. Jack Gailliard, gallant Confederate spy, whom she had once outwitted and captured, only to release him. He did not recognize her now because, in their earlier encounters, she had been disguised as a colored boy.

Now, however, he declared himself in love with her, and she, in love with him, kissed him and promised that some time she would be his wife. Then she saw him ride away with Antonia Ford on a secret mission.

Antonia Ford was captured, but Gail was exposed in turn and fled on horseback for her life. She reached the quarters of Col. Sharpe, chief of the Federal Secret Service. After a day's rest she was summoned by Col. Sharpe and told that Gailliard was somewhere in the North. She was assigned to hunt him down.

Faint with horror at the danger that threatened Gailliard, she accepted the assignment. In New York she found Gailliard in her own hotel. Persuading him to wait in her room while she went "on an errand," she locked him in.

LOAN TO SPEED RELIEF JOBS SOUGHT

$1,400,000 Bond Sale Advertised in Open Market

Unable to sell $1,400,000 of work relief bonds to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, city and Civil Works Administration officials today sought a loan through the state Civil Works Administration to speed work relief here.

Mayor John S. Herron announced that County Civil Works Administrator James L. Stuart will attempt today to obtain the loan through State Administrator Eric Biddle at Harrisburg.

The amount of the loan is to be determined by the CWA officials.

RELIEF BONDS FOR SALE

The Mayor explained the loan would have no effect on plans for selling the work relief bonds, which were advertised today for sale in the open market.

The Mayor, Controller James P. Kerr and Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt were informed in Washington yesterday by Jesse Jones, of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, that the RFC cannot purchase bonds. The city had sought to speed sale of the bonds through the RFC so that the plans to put 25,000 persons to work in Allegheny County on civil works projects might be carried out without delay.

BLAME M'GOVERN

Meanwhile, officials in the CWA office charged that County Commissioner C. C. McGovern was misinformed when he complained of inability to secure sufficient men for the county parks' work program.

The projects, as approved by the state office, would place some 200 men at work in South Park and McGovern complained only 10 men were at work. But, as one CWA official put it:

"If only 10 men reported for work at South Park, only 10 men were requested by the job supervisor."

And that little remark threw the whole question back into McGovern's lap—for the foreman is a county employe.

The number of men employed on Catfish Run road, South Park, had risen today to 145, according to Thomas O. Hasley, director of county highways, bridges and tunnels. He said 110 went to work on the Pearce Mill Run road, North Park.

But with 115,638 men reported at work throughout Pennsylvania

CWA EMPLOYING 2,500,000

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Harry L. Hopkins estimated today that the Civil Works Administration has 2,500,000 on its payroll, on the basis of a telegraph poll yesterday.

Inability to purchase shovels, picks and other tools, and the fact that some of the "work relief" projects which had been in operation in the various states failed to meet the Civil Works requirements, were held responsible by Hopkins for the fact that the program is apparently behind schedule.

For the week ending November 30, Hopkins said, 1,431,748 men were paid, with Missouri, Idaho, Wyoming and Vermont missing from the lists.

The work of putting men on civil works jobs appears to Hopkins to be slow in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Missouri, Michigan, Massachusetts and Illinois.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 8. To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Guess you all heard Mr. Roosevelt on the radio Wednesday night. These old big boys can all get up before their little audiences and yell for stabilization, amortization, gold standard, or platinum finish. Then the President can come to the microphone with that convincing manner of his, and the rest of 'em might just as well wash up their little speeches and go home.

Say, I guess there must be another conference on somewhere. I see where the U. S. is accused of connivery, by noon, and the conference only opened at 11 a. m. What would a conference be without the "goat?" Yours, on CWA projects, all attempts to learn from Harold F. Bucher, employment director here, how many men are at work in Allegheny County, were met with his denial the figures have been compiled.

RFC REFUSES TO BUY CITY BONDS

HOW MANY AT WORK?

Projects approved here would employe something more than 8,000 men — but there aren't, everyone admits, 5,000 men at work in Allegheny County on CWA projects.

Unofficial—but reliable—sources report that Bucher has notified, by mail, some 1,800 men to report to work in addition to some 1,400 taken over from city undertakings.

It was remembered that mailed notifications were tried by the Allegheny County Emergency Association in 1930—and one out of three men called to work reported. Reasons were various, such as faulty addresses and inability to read, but personal notification was resorted to with much success.

Estimates of the number of men who could have reported to work of the 1,800 notified by mail would thus bring the number to around 600.

CRITICIZE DETAIL

Meanwhile, his critics pointed out the enormous amount of detail necessary to put one man at work —the making of four to five copies of the notification, each containing 11 separate entries including serial numbers, dates, names, etc.

Veterans complained Bucher has set up no system to give them preference in employment, as required by act of Congress.

Bucher, however, says he is well abreast of the enormous volume of work pouring through his office, with 49 employes at work on new applications and on notifications.

He says he is trying to favor veterans and that:

"I think we've got as nearly perfect a system as you could get. I don't see a single loophole in it."

Bucher also complains that many men called to work refuse the jobs because of their inability to travel to them or because they want more money for the work. He referred to the county parks as being too expensive for the needy to ready.

Boy Volunteers Sorting Toys for Needy at Christmas

School Children Give Old Toys to Mission

Workers to Gladden Hearts of Needy On Christmas

It's an old Christmas custom for the boys of the Junior School, Shady Side Academy, to share their toys with the Toy Mission. This year, as usual, there is a toy box, like a big red chimney, in every room of the school, and the boys are bringing many of their own toys, in some cases buying new ones.

Yesterday boys in the cast of the Christmas play, to be presented today in the school auditorium, helped to sort out the first week's toy gifts. Collection will continue until December 15, when a truck will carry all the toys, probably more than 1,000, to the Toy Mission headquarters at 100 Wood street, according to E. W. Cole, headmaster.

MANY KINDS GIVEN

The toys are the kind that every little boy likes. There are already half a dozen drums, 50 toy airplanes, toy steam shovels which really dig, and many different kinds of automobiles and toy trains. But there is only one doll! Cole guesses that a sister of one of the boys wanted to share her toys.

The Toy Mission will give the boys, together with other thousands to be collected, to children whose families can't afford to have Santa Claus visit them this year.

Workers at the Toy Mission have had a busy week receiving and repairing toys. They will receive gifts until Christmas Eve.

HOPE TO AID 20,000

The Mission's founder, George L. Bond, plans to play Santa Claus this year for more than 20,000 children—boys and girls in homes where they will find empty stockings Christmas morning.

Bond founded the Mission 40 years ago. He started by giving just a few children toys. But each year the demand has grown greater. The Mission is non-sectarian and is not connected with any other charity.

Hollywood Threats Held Gang Racket

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Threats of bodily harm telephoned periodically to Hollywood and Beverly Hills socialites, first thought by authorities to have been a series of "poison tongue" attacks, were said today by Blayney Matthews, District Attorney's investigator, to have been the work of racketeers drumming up business for bodyguards.

Matthews said his investigation had ended.

GOODWILL ASKS FOR OLD TOYS

Gifts of unused toys parked in attics and cellars were requested today by Goodwill Industries, Liberty avenue and Twenty-eighth street, for Christmas distribution to needy children.

The toys will be presented to the children at a party at the Goodwill gymnasium December 19, under auspices of the Exchange Club of Pittsburgh. Broken toys will be repaired by Goodwill workmen.

Reports of Goodwill inactivity in the North Boroughs, Sewickley, Emsworth and Ben Avon were termed erroneous today by Goodwill officials, who said its benefactions extended to all parts of Allegheny County.

TOWNSHIP MEN ASK FUND

A majority of the township supervistors of Allegheny County, holding their thirteenth annual association meeting today in the Chamber of Commerce Building, favor an amendment to the Parkinson Act, to give the townships $11,000,000 in road funds.

J. E. Long, of Monongahela, president of the supervisors' association, announced this stand, explaining that the original act would set up this $11,000,000 road fund to be administered by the state and not by the township supervisors.

He held that the amendment would distribute the money to the supervisors, who would spend it at the rate of $105 per mile.

'Praying' Ax Killer Freed in Slaying

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Mrs. Daisy Storie, 38, who testified she called her two daughters and held a prayer service after she had killed her husband with an ax, was acquitted by a Criminal Court jury yesterday of a charge of murder.

Mrs. Storie said her husband had menaced her with heavy pieces of iron, that he had often beaten her and threatened her life, and has mistreated her daughters.

Lengel to Join Staff of Magazine

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(Universal.)—It is announced that William C. Lengel, author and former magazine editor for The Delineator and Cosmospolitan magazine, has become associate editor for Liberty magazine.

Lengel, who writes under the pen name of "Warren Spencer," gained considerable fame because of his book "Forever and Ever." He came to New York from Kansas City.

Two Men, 14 Boys Nabbed in Wire Theft

GREENSBURG, Pa., Dec. 8.—Charged with stealing copper wire from the Salemville mine of the Keystone Coal and Coke Company, 14 youths and two men, Clyde Dunn, 39 and Earl Stroup, 35, of Salemville, have been arrested by state police.

The men have been held for court, but the boys, ranging from 11 to 16 years of age, were released after a warning.

GIRL ACCUSES TULLY'S SON

Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 8.—Thomas A. Tully, 22-year-old son of Jim Tully, celebrated hobo author, yesterday was held in county jail on suspicion of beating and attempting to attack pretty Mrs. Violet Robey, 23, last Sunday night.

It was the third time young Tully has been in the toils of the law in connection with attack cases in the last three years.

Tearfully and with her face scratched and one eye blackened, Mrs. Robey yesterday described the asserted attack:

"My husband and I had an argument and I got out of the car and started to walk home. A car containing a man and a woman stopped and offered me a ride home.

"After I got into the car, I recognized Tully as an old school mate of mine and we talked of our days in high school.

"We took his companion home and then he drove back into the pass and attempted to attack me. He beat me and nearly tore my dress off my back. I fought and kicked him and finally he fell out of the car."

RIORDAN SEEKS COSTS REFUND

Leo A. Riordan, special investigator for the County Commissioners, today applied to Judge Elder W. Marshall in Quarter Sessions Court for the remittance of $432 in court costs levied against him by juries in trials growing out of the 1931 election in Kilbuck Township.

In his petition Riordan alleges that he acted as prosecutor in a great number of cases growing out of the election and that in three cases costs were placed on him and in 12 others the costs were divided between prosecution and defense.

Judge Marshall, in entering a rule in the case, ordered the County Commissioners and District Attorney Andrew T. Park to show cause December 19 why the petition should not be approved.

SEEKS CHANGES IN MINE LAWS

Richard Maize, deputy secretary of the State Department of Mines, yesterday urged the rewriting of Pennsylvania's laws governing the mining of bituminous coal. He was speaking at the closing session of the Coal Mining Institute of America in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

He declared that there has been no new mining law in the state for nearly 25 years, and that amendments to the old code have caused many ambiguities and contradictions. He listed a number of mine catastrophies in the country in which there was serious loss of life.

Other speakers were F. W. Howarth, state mine inspector, and J. J. Forbes, of the United States Bureau of Mines.

Purse Snatcher Gets Money and Rosary

A purse containing $1 and rosary beads was stolen last night by a purse snatcher from Mrs. J. Walker, of 515 Emerson street, as she walked in Walnut street, she reported to police.

Boy Scouts Comb City For Toys for Needy

Hoping to collect 150,000 toys for needy children for Christmas, members of the Boy Scout Activities Club, of 708 South avenue, Wilkinsburg, are conducting a "good-turn" canvass of schools and homes throughout the city.

Shot at Fund Workers Gets Boy Fine, Rebuke

His admission that he fired blank cartridges at two Welfare Fund solicitors he said he had mistaken for prowlers nearly two weeks ago drew a $10 fine and "a good talking to" for Albert Gutauskas, 17, of Dailey road, Brentwood, at a hearing last night before Burgess A. G. Kaufmann, of Brentwood.

The boy's admission cleared Charles Zickas and Charles Argot, both of Brentwood, who had been arrested in connection with the shooting.

They were discharged last night by Burgess Kaufmann. At a previous hearing the workers, Edward M. Conlin and William Lehner, both of Brentwood, failed to identify Argot and Zickas as the men who had fired upon them when they called at the Gutauskas residence.

According to the Burgess, Gutauskas said he had been afraid to admit his guilt before. He was fined on a charge of disorderly conduct.

LIBBY MAY GET WIFE'S SHARE OF ESTATE

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Guardians of Smith Reynolds, tobacco heir, who died of a pistol wound after a drinking party at his home here nearly 18 months ago, today reported he left a personal estate of approximately $200,000, but disposition of the property was held in abeyance because of litigation now before the North Carolina Supreme Court.

In addition to this personal fortune, the 19-year-old son of the late R. J. Reynolds, founder of the huge tobacco business bearing that name, was heir to trust funds established by his father and mother with an estimated value of about $20,000,000. By the terms of the trusts, Smith would have come into control of this sum upon arriving at the age of 28.

COMPLICATED BY WILL

In their final report, W. N. Reynolds and R. E. Lasater, the guardians, listed the assets of young Reynolds, which have been turned over to Moses Shapiro, public administrator, for disposition in accord with court rulings expected to settle the rights of various heirs.

Settlement of Smith Reynolds' estate was complicated by a will he executed in New York shortly after arranging a pre-divorce agreement with his first wife, formerly Anne Cannon, of Concord, N. C., and before he married his second wife, who was Libby Holman, the Broadway blues singer.

FIRST AND SECOND WIVES

Anne Cannon Reynolds and her infant daughter were made beneficiaries of a $1,000,000 trust fund upon her agreement to relinquish their claims to the family fortune.

After Smith's death—at first called suicide, but later attributed by a coroner's jury to "unknown parties"—a Concord bank which had been named co-guardian of Anne Cannon Reynolds' daughter, Anne, challenged the validity of the settlement, in so far as it purported to renounce the child's interest in the estate, and this action is now pending before the State Supreme Court. The validity of the New York will is at issue in the same suit.

LIBBY HOLMAN'S SHARE

Attorneys expressed the opinion that Libby Holman Reynolds, who was once indicted on a charge of murdering her husband, but was freed because of lack of evidence, would be entitled to a widow's share or one-third of her husband's personal estate under North Carolina law, regardless of whether the New York will is upheld.

In his will young Smith bequeathed his estate to members of his immediate family, including $50,000 for his divorced wife and $50,000 for their child. His second wife, of course, was not mentioned in the document.

The guardians' report showed that most of young Reynolds' property consisted of Reynolds Tobacco Company stock.

It showed that his "personal allowance" for spending money from February 1, 1932, to June 15, 1932, was $15,500.

STORK BRINGS REYNOLDS HEIR

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—A male heir has been born to Richard J. Reynolds, Jr., who, within a few months, comes into a $30,000,000 trust fund established by his late father, founder of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company bearing his name.

Although a name has not yet been chosen for the nine-pound infant, born at 7:30 last night at Reynolda, the secluded Reynolds mansion near here, it was generally assumed here that he would become R. J. Reynolds III.

Both the baby and the mother were reported "doing nicely."

R. J., Jr., a few weeks ago, was the object of a crude attempted extortion plot for which John S. Lanier, a former employe of the Reynolds family, was sentenced to five years in the Atlanta Penitentiary.

Bath Keeps Man From Making Speech

Ohio Banker, Wife Killed on Crossing

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Raymond F. Davis, 47, vice president of the City National Bank and Trust Company, of Columbus, and his wife, Thelma, 36, were killed last night when their automobile was struck by a railroad train at Cardington, Morrow County.

Mouse Devours Data of Missing Persons Bureau

It's the penchant a certain mouse has for yellow paper that got him that way.

Already, he said, the mouse had eaten paper containing the first names of persons listed as missing in the records of the Missing Persons Bureau, carrying its appetite all the way from the "Smiths" to the Z's."

TRUCK DRIVERS STRIKE HERE

Truck drivers employed by three transfer companies went on strike today. Joseph Kenny, Jr., of the Joseph Kenny Company, said all of that firm's 60 drivers were out, but had not submitted demands to officials. O. R. Weinert, of the Red Star Transfer Company, said about one-third of that company's men, totaling about 60, had not appeared for work, but that he did not know the reason. Employes of the Murphy Garage Company also were reported to have quit.

Michael J. Hannon, president of the Hannon Transportation Company, reported that his drivers were being molested. He said they have an employes' organization and are not on strike.

Deadline for P. R. R. Federal Loan Set

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(INS.)—Secretary of Interior Ickes yesterday set December 14 as a deadline for completion of the Pennsylvania Railroad contract involving a public works loan of $84,000,000.

CHARGES FOOD TO HOOVER

BOISE, Idaho, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—A woman with five children tagging at her skirts entered a cash and carry grocery store, took a basket and began to fill it with things to eat. In appearance the family was decidedly ragged. Depression had written lines in faces, worn tattered clothing thin.

All packages were carefully inspected. It was a heavy laden basket by the time the woman reached the cashier's stall, smiled and said:

"Just charge it to Mr. Hoover."

By the time the cashier had recovered and located the store manager the woman and her brood had disappeared.

COAL FOR NEEDY ASSURED HERE

Needy families of Allegheny County will receive 38,000 tons of coal this month, according to George Mills, welfare administrator. The local allotment is part of the 10,000,000 tons to be purchased by the federal government for the nation's indigent.

Bids have already been received from truckers and Mills said that he hopes to have them assembled by tomorrow. When a fair delivery price has been determined, delivery will start from mines and railroad yards to the homes of those on relief.

When the allotment for December has been distributed, Mills said, new bids will be called for in re-arranging delivery for the following month.

MAYVIEW RADIO PLEA UPHELD BY HAMMERS

Music as a treatment for the insane was praised today by Dr. James S. Hammers, director of Mayview, who declared that all modern homes for mental patients include in their personnel a director of musical programs, arranged to soothe unbalanced minds.

He said:

"Music has established itself as a distinctive feature in the treatment of mental patients. It is becoming as standard as hydro-theurapy or any other scientific method."

Experiments have been tried at Mayview, he said, but they were not of sufficient scope to produce accurate results.

In accordance with Dr. Hammers' theory, he yesterday approved the plan of Dr. David Lang, pastor of the Shady Avenue Presbyterian Church, who is appealing for radios for the wards at Mayview.

Dr. Lang, who has already donated several radios to the institution, said he could use 26 more, and has requested those interested in helping him to call his home or his office.

Through the co-operation of Mrs. Enoch Rauh, head of the City Welfare Department, a truck will call for the radios and deliver them directly to Mayview.

Dr. Lang, who has been interested in the institution for several years, said:

"I am sure that untold good would be done many of the patients who have nothing to do most of the time but brood over their own misfortune. A radio would ot least help them forget their troubles."

PETITION HALTS EXTRADITION

A habeas corpus petition filed with Judge Samuel H. Gardner today in Common Pleas Court, temporarily, at least, halted the extradition of Morris alias Joe Markovitz, wanted in Clarksburg, W. Va., on a holdup charge.

After two witnesses had identified Markovitz yesterday as one of three bandits who last summer robbed an alleged numbers lottery office in Clarksburg of $900, Judge Gardner signed the extradition order, to become effective this afternoon if no habeas corpus writ were sought in the meantime.

Markovitz, who is married and lives in Overhill street, here, claimed that it was a case of mistaken identity and based his defense on an alibi at the hearing. The same reasons are set forth in his habeas corpus petition, filed by his attorney, O. Hicks Friedman.

Judge Gardner, in granting a supercedeas, set a bond of $5,000 for Markovitz. He already was under $2,500 bail on a charge of illegal entering a building in Franklin.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

There'll be another big gathering of all groups of Pittsburgh's social set tonight, and everyone will have a grand time and help the Children's Hospital in the bargain.

And this supper-dance the women's committee of the hospital is giving tonight in the Hotel Schenley ballroom is distinctive—it's the first "party" benefit the Children's Hospital has ever had. Heretofore, the Flower Day, an annual event, has been sufficient to furnish funds.

But this year the Hospital's funds are running low—especially the fund for braces to make well children out of crippled ones.

Scores and scores of social leaders are coming to the rescue by serving as patronesses for the event. Among them, as you might expect, is white-haired Mrs. Herbert DuPuy, a faithful worker for the Hospital since its first flower day!

Scores Helping

Others are Thomas Arbuthnot, Mrs. Herbert DuPuy, Mrs. D. M. Clemson, Mrs. W. S. Flower, Mrs. Frank W. Edmundson, Mrs. Chester Fisher, Mrs. H. H. McClintic, Mrs. F. I. Merrick, Mrs. J. H. Reed, Jr., W. B. Klee, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Nelson, Mrs. W. W. Blackburn, Dr. and Mrs. H. T. Price, Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Boyd and Mrs. Harmar D. Denny.

Also giving their support, are Mrs. Frank Evans, Mrs. John D. Evans, Mrs. Carroll Fitzhugh, Mrs. John G. Frazer, Mrs. E. W. Gwinner, Mrs. Clifford Heinz, Mrs. T. Clifton Jenkins, Mrs. Howard Heinz, Mrs. W. H. Nimick, Jr., Malcolm McGiffin, Mrs. Thomas A. McGinley, Mrs. Joel Burdick and Mrs. W. B. Todd.

Among Sponsors

Also lending their support to the benefit are Miss Mabel Gillespie, Mrs. Carl H. Borntraeger, Mrs. Ferdinand T. Weil, Mrs. George W. J. Bissell, Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Utley and Mrs. J. R. McCune.

Through the Spyglass
Viewing the New

Christmas sparkles in the shops . . . Christmas twinkles in the lens of our spyglass . . . and feverish Christmas glitter in our eye! Do you realize that the grand and glorious event is only two weeks from Monday? And are you doing right by everything and everyone, including your "Nell"?

We're trying to bring you a little of everything from day to day to help out the Christmas list. Today's shops will be named if you call Grant 6500, or send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

* * *

That you may be smartly hatted for your Christmas bustle . . . we bring you the glad tidings of these hats which are scheduled to sell for only $2.45 . . . TOMORROW ONLY!

Little draped crepe turbans in eight different styles . . . eight colors (including black and white) . . . and sizes 21½ to 24½. Many wear flirtatious little veils . . . some have gold sequin gadgets bobbing 'round . . . and well, while we're talking Christmas these days . . . we just thought we might as well get you all hatted up for the event!

* * *

Fond swains aren't carving your initials in the trunks of trees these days! The jewelry business is supplying all the initials any devotee of same could ask. Witness the latest—

Real stone rings, little spyglasses . . . each one wearing an initial in silver and marcasite. (The stones are polished chrysoprase or onyx) $1.00.

And also . . . bracelets, pins, clips and pendants to match . . . initials and all! In fact . . . if you go for plastering your signature all over yourself, you can do it now without the least effort. And cheaply, too . . . these last being 75c to $1.95.

* * *

We get asked the queerest questions (not that we don't like it!) . . . and the other day someone wanted to know where to get a travel clock in a leather case, WITH an alarm!

Now we wouldn't be knowing about traveling (being merely a meek and humble newspaper gal) . . . but it DOES seem to us that if traveling we would forego the alarm end of it! However . . .

They ARE to be had . . . the best bets being red, black, blue or brown leather cases with an unusual closing device which works something like that of a camera. All very trick . . . all very new . . . all very reasonable for $5.

* * *

Rally 'round you lounge lizards. Climb into the new hostess gowns for your stretchy hours! Black velvet or lipstick red with great blobs of Chinese characters slapped onto one side of your little front and the gown buttoning across to the other. Long flowing sleeves . . . much seductiveness . . . and more of everything than you'd expect for $12.95!

* * *

The smile in this case is not "on the face of the Tiger" but on the face of the lucky man who receives a pair of the new Tiger [illegible] come Christmas! [illegible] the most eye-filling specimens of pajama-dom we've seen [illegible]! Of English broadcloth . . . in gloriously "Tiger" marked spots and colors. If we were the man wearing these we'd never go to bed at all but spend our nights stalking about the room admiring ourselves! $2.95 that's all!

* * *

Repeal may have gone into effect . . . but don't blame it for our present state—it's due to the new perfume we've been snuffing!

For if ever there were a scent which makes us feel like a pony let out on fresh grass in Spring, this is IT! Sweet essence of April woods and all such! It's called Arcadia . . . and no small wonder. Sort of a woodsy, Spring-y, tang-y odeur whose gaiety makes prancing seem positively stodgy by comparison! In a bottle resembling a solitaire diamond . . . mounted on three "platinum" prongs for a setting! Just utterly utter . . . and $10 the bottle!

Scout Camp Beats All Records

The largest camp registration in the history of Girl Scouting is the record of the national organization for 1933, according to an announcement from headquarters in New York City. The reports are not all in yet, but to date there are 62,745, an increase of 11,092 over 1932 registrations.

This is the result of the girl's eagerness to have camping experience, and the splendid co-operation of the men and women who are sponsoring Girl Scouting, to give them this experience, Emelia Thoorsell, secretary of the national Girl Scout camp advisory staff, says. In a country town in Vermont, for instance, where the girls could pay only one dollar a week, the problem was solved quite simply.

One 16-year-old member of the troop made menus for a week at camp, figured out the amount of food needed, and allotted to every prospective camper a list of supplies which she was to bring from her home kitchen or garden. In this case, as in so many other similar ones, the number of volunteers for every phase of work, including directors, cooks and nurses, enabled the girls to carry on their camp activities.

In the name of Pittsburgh Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, Mrs. Robert F. Mrs. Metcalfe's daughter, Nancy Bullock Metcalfe, is an alumna of Winchester. It seems especially fitting that Mrs. Metcalfe should make the presentation, as her grandfather, Gen. Robert Bullock, was chosen by the state of Florida to represent its hero dead in the Stone Mountain carvings.

A PRINCESS HAS DINNER AT EIGHT

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THERE are precious few hamlets where the citizens were not apprized that blonde, pretty Barbara Hutton, the heir of the Woolworth millions, and the bride of Prince Alexis Mdivani, had come of age and into her fortune one day recently.

The first public appearance that the young matron made after this good news overtook her was at a party given to her by members of her family and generation at a smart Park Avenue restaurant.

In the American manner, not the Georgian of her new name, the young lady was "surprised" by the affair, and those who watched her pleasure and delight had to admit that any other twenty-one year old girl could not have been more girlish about her good time.

Any woman would like to know what the Princess wore that night, for the most important "debut" of her life. Well, she wore no jewels! Neither real nor costume!

At the bosom of the gown were placed clusters of artificial flowers which exactly matched it. It is she who is sketched in the picture above, wearing that gown.

The other woman sketched in her party is wearing a novelty evening glove of black suede, which is not a mitt, but a half-palm, much in the fashion of golf gloves. The gown worn by that woman had a very low back, as the sketch shows, and it was of black, embroidered with white beads, and trimmed in the front with a cluster of black flowers.

LACK OF FUNDS TO CURB WAR ON DOPE

Universal Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 8.—A period of unprecedented prosperity for dope peddlars may begin in California after January 1.

On that date, with its funds practically exhausted, the State Narcotic Bureau will cease to function unless the necessary money is provided to carry on.

This startling situation was revealed by officers of the Southern California Division, and confirmed here by William G. Walker, chief of the bureau.

The last Legislature reduced the bureau's normal biennial appropriation of $100,000 to $30,000, or $15,000 a year. This annual appropriation will have been spent by January 1. Walker said:

"Although $15,000 will still remain in our appropriation, it is questionable whether we can use it until after July 1."

The Supreme Court is considering the validity of a $25,000 emergency appropriation recommended for the narcotic bureau by Rolland A. Vanderbilt, director of finance. Controller Ray L. Riley opposed the appropriation on the ground that no emergency existed.

PRUDENCE PENNY'S RECIPES

GAY gift remembrances in the form of Christmas candies! Can you think of a nicer, more thoughtful surprise for the many people you wish to remember at Christmas time, than a gayly wrapped box of home-made candies? And aside from the joy and surprise that such gifts bring to those who receive them, you'll find making them brings more joy and real holiday spirit to you than you've had for a long time. No matter how busy and crowded your December days are, you can find time to make candies, and you will thoroughly enjoy doing it!

And here is a hint that will help make your candies more successful than they have ever been before. In each recipe given below, a small amount of vinegar is used, because vinegar will help to make the candy uniformly creamy and fine grained. It changes the sugar to a form that does not crystalize readily, and in that way insures a fine creamy texture. The habit of adding from one-half to one teaspoonful vinegar to all boiled frostings and candies is an excellent one to acquire. You will be delighted with the following recipes and the splendid assortment of delicious candies they yield for gift boxes!

DIVINITY FUDGE—Mix together 2 cups granulated sugar, ½ cup dark corn syrup, ½ cup cold water and 1 teaspoon vinegar. Cook slowly, without stirring, until this mixture forms a very hard, almost brittle, ball in cold water (246 deg. F.). Pour gradually over 2 stiffly beaten egg whites and beat until creamy. Add ¾ cup nutmeats and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Pour into a buttered pan and mark into squares. Candied cherries may be added as well as nuts.

* * *

PEANUT BUTTER FUDGE—Mix together 2 cups granulated sugar, ½ cup milk, 2 tablespoons corn syrup and 1 teaspoon vinegar. Boil until a soft ball is formed when a few drops are tested in cold water (236 deg. F.). Take from the fire and cool until lukewarm, add ¼ cup peanut butter and beat until creamy. Pour into a buttered pan and cut in squares.

* * *

PECAN CRUNCH—Mix together 1¼ cups butter, 2¼ cups sugar, ½ cup water, ½ teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon vinegar, and heat slowly. Boil, stirring occasionally, very gently to prevent sticking, until mixture reaches 298 deg. F. (very brittle stage when tried in cold water). Mix 1 teaspoon soda with ½ cup pecan crumbs (very finely chopped) and add with 1½ cups broken pecan meats to the cooked mixture, stirring only enough to blend. Pour on to a buttered tray makin gthe candy about ⅛-inch thick. When slightly cooled, crease in squares. Top of candy may be covered, when cold, with a thin layer of melted sweet chocolate. Makes four dozen pieces, 1-inch square, ⅛-inch deep.

* * *

CHOCOLATE FUDGE—Melt 3 tablespoons butter in a saucepan and brown very slightly. Add 3 cups granulated sugar, 1 teaspoon vinegar, 3 tablespoons corn syrup, a pinch of salt and ¾ cup top milk. Stir until well blended. Cover and bring slowly to a boil. Add 3 squares unsweetened chocolate that has been broken into small pieces, and boil rapidly until the syrup forms a soft ball in cold water (236 deg. F.). Keep the candy covered during cooking to prevent crystallization on the sides of the pan. Cool until lukewarm, add 1 teaspoon vanilla and beat until the candy begins to cream. Pour into a buttered pan and cut into blocks when cold.

* * *

MAPLE PRALINES—Add slowly 1 teaspoon white vinegar to 2-3 cup fresh sweet milk. Then add 2 cups granulated sugar and 1 cup maple syrup. Stir until all ingredients are thoroughly blended, and cook slowly with a lid on until the sugar is melted. Uncover and boil rapidly until the soft ball stage is reached (236 deg. F.). Take from fire and cool until lukewarm. Beat until smooth and creamy. Add 2 cups broken pecan or walnut meats and drop on waxed paper from the tip of a spoon, making mounds.

* * *

PEANUT BUTTER MARBLES—Mix together 1 1-3 cups shredded cocoanut (¼ lb. package), ½ cup peanut butter and 1 tablespoon vanilla. The cocoanut may be toasted in oven to golden brown. Take up mixture by teaspoonfuls and roll into small marbles. Set in cold place until firm.

* * *

CREAM CARMELS—Cook together 2 cups granulated sugar, ¾ cup of glucose or ¾ cup corn syrup, 1-3 cup butter and ¾ cup cream, stirring constantly until the boiling point is reached. When boiling briskly, add ¾ cup more of cream and continue cooking, stirring all the time, until it forms a very firm ball in cold water (246 degrees F.). Remove from fire, allow to stand for several minutes, then add 2 teaspoons vanilla, ½ cup nutmeats and 1 cup rice flakes. Pour into a well buttered pan and allow to cool. When thoroughly cooled, turn out of pan on to a table and cut into strips, then into squares. Wrap in waxed paper.

The holidays—the young folks back from school—everyone home for Christmas! At this season, for entertaining friends, interesting and appropriate party menus are in greater demand than at any other time during the entire year. December party menus may well be real pictures in food. Colorful salads, hot dishes and festive desserts in great variety, offer unlimited opportunity for delicious party meals. The following menus for afternoon or evening parties will provide novel and distinctive touches to your holiday entertaining:

Creamed chicken and mushrooms in toast cases, hot buttered rolls, turkey fruit salad, drop cookies, coffee, mints.

* * *

CREAMED CHICKEN AND MUSHROOMS IN TOAST CASES—Brown 1½ cups diced cooked chicken or veal in 2 tablespoons melted butter. Add 3 tablespoons flour and blend well. Add 1 medium can cream of mushroom soup and cook until thick, stirring constantly. Add sliced egg whites from 4 hard cooked eggs and heat just long enough to warm eggs through. Salt and pepper to taste. Serve in toast cases or hot biscuit, and sprinkle with the egg yolks which have been put through a sieve. Garnish with watercress. To make the toasted cases—carefully slice tops from hard rolls, remove as much of the center as possible, and brush the cases inside and out with melted butter. Place in oven to become crisp and brown, and serve hot with the meat filling.

* * *

TURKEY FRUIT SALAD—Spread halves of canned pears with soft white cream cheese. Cover with other halves of pears, and coat the whole pears thus formed, using macaroon crumbs or ground nuts. This is to form the body of the turkey. Make the tail by cutting slices of pineapple in half and fastening each half, using toothpicks, to the slender end of the pear. For a neck, cut round pieces of apple about an inch long with an apple corer. Put a toothpick through each, allowing the end of the toothpick to go entirely through the apple. On one end place a whole cherry, and a strip of cherry to represent the head and comb of the turkey. Stick the head into the body. Place the turkey on a bed of lettuce. Serve with mayonnaise.

* * *

POINSETTIA CAKE—Cream together ¼ cup butter or other shortening and 1 cup sugar. Add 2 well-beaten eggs and beat vigorously. Sift together 1½ cups flour, 1½ teaspoons baking powder and ½ teaspoon salt, and add to butter mixture alternately with ½ cup sour milk. Dissolve 2 squares bitter chocolate in ½ cup boiling water, add 1 teaspoon soda, cool slightly and add to the cake batter. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla and pour into an oblong shallow pan that has been greased and floured, and bake in a moderate oven (about 350 degrees F.) for about 25 minutes. Frost with boiled icing and, using a damp cord, mark the frosting into squares. Place a small piece of nutmeat in each square and, radiating from the nut, place strips of maraschino cherry to represent poinsettia petals. Use about six or seven strips of cut cherry for the petals of each flower. When finished, each square has a poinsettia on it, and the cake looks beautiful.

* * *

TURKEY SALAD—Mix 2 cups diced cold turkey, ½ cup chopped stuffed olives, 1 cup chopped celery and 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce. Salt and pepper to taste. Add 3 tablespoons relish and ½ cup mayonnaise. Mix thoroughly and chill.

"HONEYSUCKLE" Is a Gorgeous Doll

Dear Little Girls:

"Honeysuckle" is 18 inches tall, just the right size the average little girl would like to cuddle up to. The word beautiful doesn't really describe her. She's more than beautiful—she's GORGEOUS.

"Honysuckle" has flexible rubber arms and hands and rubber legs that can be washed just the same as you would wash your baby brother's or sister's. And WHAT A SMILE! And behind that smile are the most lovable, most roguish eyes you ever looked into. They open and close and she rolls them from side to side like a real flirt. By pressing her legs or by moving her body forward or back, she says "Ma-ma" in the sweetest voice you ever heard. She's dressed like a little queen in dainty organdy and lace, with bonnet and shoes to match.

Oh, we forgot to mention her cute dimples, and just as this was written "Honeysuckle" looked up and seemed to say, "Yes, you forgot to tell them about my rubber panties."

"Honeysuckle" is really the DOLL OF ALL DOLLS, and she is going to be so easy to get for Christmas. Shall I save a "Honeysuckle" for you?

Sun-Telegraph Doll Lady

Salt Still Important Part Of Man's Diet

Ancients Held Salt in Such High Esteem That Social Standing of Individual Often Was Measured by Amount of it He Owned; Salt Is Needed by Humans Both for its Own Qualities and as Accompaniment to Other Foods.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City,
United States Senator From New York.

Sodium chloride is the scientific name of a mineral known to everyone as common salt. It has been used by man from time immemorial. Many proverbial expressions use the word "salt," each of these indicating its importance even in the earliest days. Primitive peoples, particularly those of the Orient, used salt in their religious celebrations.

Often the social standing of an individual was measured by the amount of salt he owned. "To sit 'above or below the salt'" was a saying derived from the old custom of dividing the gentlefolk from their inferiors, by the position of the salt-dish on the table.

In ancient Abyssinia cases of salt were used as money and employed in commodity trading. On this account it was known as "salt money." This term is believed to be the origin of the word salary.

Salt is as important in the diet today as it was in the days of our forefathers. This goes without saying. Its value in the preservation of food and as a seasoning cannot be overlooked. In its natural form it is given medicinally and it is used in the preparation of certain medicines.

SOURCE OF SUPPLY

Salt is found in salt lakes, salt springs, the ocean and in saltbed mines. There are several methods of obtaining it. Salt can be made by the evaporation of the water of the ocean, salt lakes or salt springs. This method is still in use in certain countries.

Salt obtained by the evaporation of brine from saltbeds is the most common method used today. A well is drilled into the saltbeds. Water is then forced through tubes into the saltbeds and after it has become saturated with the salt, pumped out. The brine passes through various degrees of heat and during this stage impurities are removed from it. It is then evaporated. The first salt is fine table salt. The second is for use in dairies and meat-curing establishments.

IMPORTANT IN DIET

A third method used to obtain this precious substance is to take it from natural mines of salt formed by the evaporation of seas. Such salt beds are found in Louisiana, New York, Kansas and Michigan.

The salt is mined as coal is mined. Sometimes the salt beds are located near the surface of the earth. But it may be necessary to drill to a depth of a thousand feet or more.

Its use in the seasoning of food enhances the flavor of the food and stimulates the appetite. It is a welcome addition to many foods. A famous chemist says that 'while one might live without the addition of salt to food, without the use of salt he would probably not eat much of the foods rich in valuable minerals."

Of course this does not mean that salt should be used in large and unnecessary amounts. But when used in moderation by normal, healthy individuals, it is an important part of the diet. In certain diseases, its use is forbidden.

TELL IT TO ELSIE

Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Do Drunken Fathers Hurt Future of Children?

Should drunken husbands be divorced?

Sad Mina wondered.

She'd stuck to her brutal, unreliable man through thick and thin, for the sake of the children. "They mustn't be left without a father," she told herself, every time she felt like packing up and leaving him to his sottish self.

But then the doubts would come. Would such a break for freedom be cruelly selfish? Was it the best thing for the youngsters? Or the worst? How would it end, if she stayed?

"In tragedy," said most of the Fan Family.

My dear Miss Robinson—

I have just read Mina's letter about her husband who drinks, and whether she should leave him or not. I would like to tell a story about my experience.

I was married at a very early age—18, to be exact. The man appeared to be everything that was desirable, and for a while he was. But after a year or so he began to drink. At first he didn't drink often, but later it became habitual.

In the course of time three children came to us, and my life was one long misery. I suffered humiliation and anguish of every sort. When my husband drank he sank to the lowest depths, sought the vilest companions and made our life a nightmare.

POLITE SNUBS

I often thought of leaving him, but hesitated. The children were small. I thought that if I left, as they grew older they would forget what their father had been, and blame me for not giving them a chance.

Twice I did go to relatives, but found my welcome worn out after a few days. Nobody wanted a penniless woman and three kiddies, and I didn't know how to earn a living. So I felt that abuse in my own home was preferable to polite snubs in some other home, and back I went.

Well, finally the three children grew up—and when they did, they realized what I had gone through. Then they talked to their father and finally he got sense and stopped drinking.

We became prosperous. He has held some splendid positions. The children have good positions, too, and we are respectable citizens now, in spite of what he did during those awful years. The children all have the greatest love and respect for their father now, and he is truly wonderful to us all.

HELPED HUSBAND

I often wonder what the outcome would have been had I carried out my plan to leave, and how the children would have fared—and how he would have gotten along, with no one to give him a helping hand. You know the old saying that "there is much good in the worst of us."

It takes a lot, sometimes, to bring it out, but in my case it was worth it. Someway I feel that by sticking I did right. I don't think it did our youngsters any harm—and it helped him to come back to his real self. CONTENTED.

Yes, in your case it worked, my dear. It worked because, in spite of his wallowing, there was something fine and decent about your man—and there was something in you that kept the balance.

But how often would it work? Your children were saved. But how many have been scarred for life by such an experience?

What's your judgment?

An acquaintance once said to me when she was very much in love, that she could never go on living if anything should happen to separate her from the man she then adored.

Well, a break did come, and lately I saw her again looking rosy, merry and very much interested in life.

How many others have also imagined that they could not adjust themselves to some sudden change in the contented routine of their lives. Imagined they couldn't exist if they lost certain position and prestige. Could never manage on less income and luxury.

One has only to observe the many hale, hearty and happy-looking old persons, who have lived down much and learned to laugh again.

A Sequel Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Mother Graham Leads Guests to Baby Faith

At Mary's offer to get Dicky and my mother-in-law for the "visit of inspection" to the nursery, which Katherine had proposed for the Braithwaites, there swept over me a poignant premonitory feeling of loss. My husband's tempestuous young niece has caused me frequent anxiety during the years that she has lived with us, but never has she failed in affectionate consideration for me. In the bustle surrounding the hurried wedding I had lost sight of the fact that she would no longer be a member of our household, and realizing this, I caught her hand and clung to it, leaving her question unanswered for the moment.

"Mary, child," I said unevenly, "I'm just realizing that I'm losing you—that you won't be living with us permanently any more. What am I ever going to do without you?"

"Silly," Mary said fondly, as she stooped and kissed me warmly. "You'd better ask me what I'm going to do without you. But remember, darling," as her eyes danced, "you're not losing a niece. You're just gaining a nephew."

"Mary" I threatened her with a burlesqued dramatic gesture. "That you should—"

A HARSH TONE

"That I should hand you that!" she finished gaily. "Yes, I'll admit it's pretty bad. But cheer up. I'll bet you'll be crazy about Noel as a nephew. You don't know how dutiful he can be to a charming aunt."

"I'm crazy about Noel already," I told her.

"Don't you get too crazy," she warned me, with a prettily admonitory forefinger. "You're a heartbreaker, you know."

She dashed away without giving me a chance for a retort, returning almost immediately with Dicky and his mother close behind her and my father walking close to her, her hand slipped through his arm.

"Who is with Faith?" my mother-in-law demanded, when she saw Katherine standing with the Braithwaites and me.

I knew that she did not mean to employ toward Katherine the tone in which she couched the words—a tone which I would have been ashamed to employ to Katie unless she were guilty of some almost unpardonable action. It was not the first time Mother Graham had addressed the wife of my cousin and my own very dear friend as if she were a menial in her own employ, instead of a friend standing in my place and caring for my baby, in order to give me time for the production of the play I had written for Philip Veritzen.

It was Harriet Braithwaite who broke into hurried but studiedly casual speech as Katherine's eye darkened and the rest of us stood aghast.

PROUD OF BABY

"Why should she need anyone?" Harriet said, laughing lightly. "If I know Madge, the windows are securely barred, and I don't believe even the most precocious baby in the world—and of course I don't doubt she's that—could get out of her crib at her age."

She had given Katherine time to recover from the thrust, and my little kinswoman faced us with head held high and a gallant, mirthful smile playing around her lips.

"I'm not so sure," she said gaily. "I want you to appreciate that she is the most wonderful baby ever born. I shouldn't be surprised to see her trying the latest dance steps upon the nursery floor when we get there. But she isn't alone. Junior and Roderick are stationed in the nursery, with instructions to call me if she cries."

"Richard Second and Roderick!" my mother-in-law sniffed. "They're probably tickling her to make her laugh. Come on, all of you! I'm going up there immediately."

She swept ahead of us and my father, with his usual courtesy, hurried ahead and offered her his arm. With her finger on her lip and a merry glance at me, Katherine skimmed out of another door, and I knew that her fleet feet would carry her through the kitchen and up the back stairs to the nursery before my mother-in-law should reach the top of the front stairway.

But when we reached the second floor, there came to our ears the unmistakable wail of a baby.

Contract Bridge

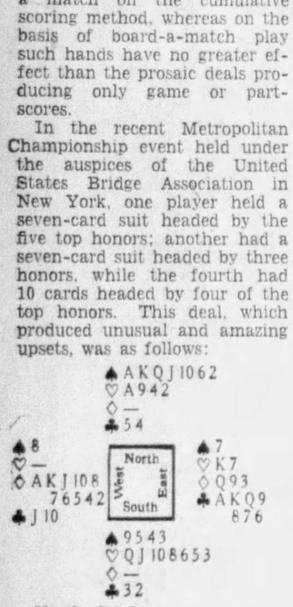
HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Freak Hands

Team-of-four play is recognized as Contract's ideal game. This is especially true when the contest is a prolonged one and scored on the basis of cumulative points rather than on the Howell Match Point System of scoring. However, freak hands, which permit of very strong competitive bidding, even up to the range of a Slam, furnish frequent upsets in this type of contest and may even decide a match on the cumulative scoring method, whereas on the basis of board-a-match play such hands have no greater effect than the prosaic deals producing only game or part-scores.

In the recent Metropolitan Championship event held under the auspices of the United States Bridge Association in New York, one player held a seven-card suit headed by the five top honors; another had a seven-card suit headed by three honors, while the fourth had 10 cards headed by four of the top honors. This deal, which produced unusual and amazing upsets, was as follows:



North, Dealer.

East and West vulnerable.

At most tables North opened with the bid of one spade, but whatever the Opening bid, there was sure to be spirited bidding before the final contract was reached. At one table the bidding went:

North	East	South	West
4 ♠	5 ♣	5 ♠	6 ◇
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

North's Double of the six-diamond bid was unquestionably bad. He realized, no doubt, that his side had been pushed beyond the possibilities of making the contract. However, his hand by no means suggested that the contract of six could be defeated in view of the strong bidding by East and West, who were vulnerable. It appeared improbable, in view of East and West's bidding, that a trick was available in spades, although, as the cards actually lay, one was makable. It is true that the Ace of hearts did appear to be a certain trick, but certainly that was not sufficient to defeat the contract. Probably North's Double was based upon the fact that he had opened the bidding so high that he felt his vulnerable opponents had had no opportunity to exchange information and that in all likelihood the contract of six diamonds was doomed to defeat. In other words, he expected to find trump strength massed in his partner's hand and doubled upon the theory that he could protect his partner against the possible first-round finesse in the trump suit.

It is, of course, obvious that against the Opening of the heart Ace or in fact any card except a spade, seven is made laid down, and in one or two instances this contract was undertaken and made by West.

Where the teammates of the team which bid and made six diamonds doubled were playing the hand, North and South were permitted to play six undoubled, which was defeated 2 tricks, the only losing tricks being the King of hearts and two clubs.

Defense against seven is far from easy if East and West undertake that contract, and there would be few who would blame North for the lead actually made where a contract of seven was undertaken.

TODAY'S QUESTION

If you bid one club, holding:

♠ A 8 4 ♡ K 5 3 ◇ 6 5 4 ♣ A K 8 7

and your partner responds with three notrump, what is your next call?

Answer: A Slam try can be made by bidding four notrump. While the hand is rich in honor-tricks, the fact that partner has not made a Forcing Takeout makes the Slam a somewhat doubtful question.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Let Him Explain

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

This evening while out walking with my sister, we met a young man with whom I have gone out several times, and who was to have called me one evening last week but did not call.

He was standing on the street talking to another man, and we were so startled at seeing him, that we merely said "Hello," smiled and walked on. Were we expected to stop and talk to him, or was it his place to approach us? If I am wrong, should I write a short note?

B.

You did just right . . . to bow and greet this young man. On two counts it would have been very bad form for you to have stopped to speak with him. In the first place he was talking with some one else, and it would have been very "forced" for you and your sister to have interrupted him. And in the second place, his rudeness in not keeping his word with you last week needed a definite explanation. So no kind of good form would have even tolerated your stopping to talk with him, and certainly he is the one who should write a note of apology, or telephone to you to apologize for not keeping his word and his appointment.

Serving the Cocktail

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Will you please advise me which is the proper service for avocado and melon cocktail, spoon or salad fork?

2. Are all cocktails served the same way, whether fish, fruit or any kind. READER.

1—The spoon is the more convenient service for this kind of cocktail.

2—No. With the oyster, shrimp or crabmeat cocktail, we use the oyster fork. With fruit cocktails, we usually find that the teaspoon is the more convenient service, since there is usually a delicious accompanying juice to be eaten.

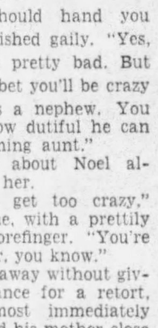
How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

'Recurrent' Diseases of Skin

Nothing is more distressing than an itchy inflammation of the skin, such as the so-called "seven-year itch." I sympathize with sufferers from this affliction. My sympathy would be much greater if I believed that they would be subjected to this annoying disturbance for seven long years, as the name of the disease would indicate. Fortunately, there is no scientific basis for the theory that the "itch" will last for seven years or periodically recur every seven years.



Dr. Copeland

This disturbance of the skin is known medically as "scabies." It is caused by a parasite known as the "acarus scabei." When this is destroyed by suitable antiseptic, the itch disappears and so far as that particular infection is concerned, never returns. Of course, if the victim is exposed to the parasite he may contract the disease.

The parasite is found where filth and unhygienic conditions exist. It is a common affliction of persons who are careless and negligent regarding their personal habits. Yet it may attack some who are unquestionably clean. The parasite may be picked up in public places, such as public bath houses, washrooms or rest rooms.

Since the disease spreads rapidly from one individual to another, extreme care should be taken to prevent its occurrence. This is particularly true in institutions, where many persons are closely housed together. Scabies is likely to be prevalent in camps or places where the necessary sanitary measures are not enforced.

The infection should always be suspected when the skin itches and becomes red. As a rule, it is first noticed between the fingers, under the arms or in the groin and quickly spreads to other parts of the body.

If you have been exposed to scabies or suspect that you have this intolerable "itch," examine the afflicted skin carefully. If this disturbance is due to scabies, you will notice fine, small furrows in the skin. At times a grayish speck is observed at the end of the furrow. This is probably the parasite.

The treatment of scabies is based upon absolute cleanliness and the destruction of the offending parasite. The parasite is best destroyed by the application of a sulphur ointment. Apply the ointment over the entire body just before retiring. Take a warm bath in the morning and remove the ointment by scrubbing with a stiff brush. Repeat this procedure until no trace of the parasite can be seen. There must be fresh clothing after each bath.

Household Hints

Dry cake can be sliced in very thin pieces and utilized as a lining for a jelly mold for a dessert variety.

Do not beat the egg whites too much for angel food cake or it will be too dry. The whites should be beaten until they form a point when the egg beater is removed.

Instead of untidy tapes or buttons that will come off, use a collar stud for pillow slip fasteners. Make small holes where your buttons and buttonholes should be, and through these slip ordinary white bone studs. The studs can be easily removed, and the linen will last longer, as there are no buttons to be mangled into it.

'WAXEY' WEEPS AS MOB RUSHES SON'S CASKET

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8. — Waxey Gordon, who laughed at death so often in that tough, rough kingdom that booze built, followed the body of his boy to its grave today and wept as a mob of the morbidly curious tore the flowers from the coffin.

Waxey, haggard and his eyes red-rimmed, his heavy, paunchy figure that of a broken man, had come under guard from the federal detention prison where he has been held since his conviction for income tax evasion.

Dressed in black he had slipped quietly into a funeral chapel with only a handful to watch him. But the pack had assembled when the casket was taken out. Men and women surged forward to tear at the flowers, to grab them, and then sneak away with the ghoulish souvenirs.

Clothing was torn and women trampled upon as reinforcements of police finally dispersed the mob and the ride to Mt. Hebron Cemetery in Flushing began.

Gordon arrived early for the services. With his wife and his children they went immediately to a small room off the chapel, where a nurse administered smelling salts and other restoratives to Mrs. Gordon.

The dead boy, Theodore, 19, and known in the North Carolina college he attended as Wexler, which is his father's real name, was killed in an automobile accident at Chester, Pa., Wednesday as he was speeding to New York to plead for mercy for Gordon.

Chicago Mayor Says He'd Give Back Bar

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—Mayor Edward J. Kelly took a tour about the loop to see how the legal liquor business was getting on, and noticed there was only half a bar in one hotel.

That reminded him he had obtained the other half in 1919 and sent it to his summer home at Eagle River, Wis., where it was never set up. He said:

"I am going to return it to you so you'll have a whole bar."

Drunk in Oklahoma Admits 3 Too Many

Junior Patrol

Of course, everybody knows that Christmas is the next big holiday. We even know some fellows who are glad the holidays are coming because they are tired of school. We hope no Junior Patrol member is tired of school, but we do know that a holiday is always welcome. It's a change, and people always like something new and different.

We hope every captain is trying to think up new things to do when their club holds its Christmas party. For instance, you could have somebody, maybe your mother or father, tie up some little paper sacks — each one containing a different kind of gift, and put them all in a box.

Then every fellow could pick out a sack and it would be funny to see what each fellow got. First, of course, every fellow in the game ought to write down what he wants the most. Then you could compare what he gets with what he wanted.

Here's a letter from Everett Roscoe Minor, who lives at 224 Bellefonte street. Everett says that he wants to be a captain and he sends the names of 10 of his friends. But he doesn't send any pledges. We must have the pledges before we can send any badges or send a captain an armband, Everett. Have your members fill out pledges, or copies of pledges, and send them to headquarters, the Sun-Telegraph.

And here's an idea for making some money, too, fellows. The Sun-Telegraph pays a generous prize for every subscription anyone gets for it. If you know anyone who would like to take a six months' subscription, write and tell us who they are.

"I think that your clubhouse ought to be real good because you and Butch and Spike are building it. I will be tickled to death to be a member of the Junior Patrol."

And do you notice, gang, that she has the same name as Eloise in the comic strip? Thanks, Eloise, and we will give Junior your offer.

Captains, don't forget to write your club news after every meeting and send it to headquarters. The lieutenant should do that right after every meeting, and the captain should do it if the lieutenant doesn't.

Speakers at the affair, at which Judge Arthur H. James, of the Pennsylvania Superior Court, it is announced, will preside, will be Justice George W. Maxey, of the State Supreme Court, and H. Edgar Lewis, of Columbus, O.

Globe-Trotting

—By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

From Cleveland comes a letter from a brother globe trotter. He's a brother, all right, because he's in distress, at least mildly so. A. C. Stone needs information. He's the stockholder in a building and loan company that has not paid dividends from "away back," but has foreclosed on lots of property. His idea is to transfer the mortgages to the stockholder in place of dividends and then exchange the mortgages for government bonds.

Something might be worked out along those lines, but it seems awfully remote. At present there is no agency authorized by law to facilitate such transfers and exchanges. It wouldn't be in the scope of the Farm Loan measure nor the Home Loan either.

* * *

It will cost me too much to send the monkey solution to all of you who have asked, so here goes:

Let X equal the age (number of years) of the monkey's mother.

Let Y equal the monkey's age. THEN X plus Y equals 4.

If X equals 2 minus Y, when X equals ½Y, when Y equals 3X, when X equals 3Y then—X equals 2½, and Y equals 1½.

Therefore the rope weighs 1½ times (2½ plus 2½ minus 2½) or 1½ times 2½ pounds or 60 ounces.

Q. E. D.—The rope is 15 feet long.

BUT I'm never, never, going through that again.

Salesmen, Not Sirens, Wanted As Radio Announcers

By AIRCASTER

Many aerial eavesdroppers, who have heard of the success of Kate Smith's older but littler sister as an announced on a Washington station, are puzzled over the virtual non-existence of female announcers elsewhere in America.

At the same time, word comes from London and Milan that the lands of gardens and garlic have replaced their women announcers with virile-voice hemen.

Siren or Salesman?

The American networks have tried women announcers and ballyhooers, of course, and have about completely banished them. Not because of inefficiency, but for another good reason.

Primarily, women listeners, who do most of the buying, are more interested in male voices. Secondarily, male listeners are too deeply interested in feminine voices to hear what they are saying.

It is the voice, not the words, that gets the gents all excited and prompts them to write mushy letters that don't mention the product.

And therein we solve the mystery of a male monopoly of the microphones. It's a weird tangle of sex antagonism and appeal.

* * *

Lick'em, Kick'em, Knock 'em Dead!

But there's one smart spot for women announcers that the broadcasters have overlooked, and more power and more listeners to the one who adopts it!

Team up a debutante or Junior Leaguer with a sports announcer broadcasting wrestling bouts, box-fights and other rough-and-tumble tilts, and watch the stampede to the loudspeakers.

* * *

John McCormack hit the nail pretty squarely on the head in a pithy paragraph on the passing of concert singing:

"People won't pay to hear trained singers. They prefer free entertainment by crooners with no musical backgrounds.

"Too little attention is given in radio to voice training, and too much to the knobs and switches. The technique of phrasing and beautification of song is today the job of an engineer."

* *

Benjamin's Boy

NBC has discovered that Jason, son of Benjamin (the old maestro Bernie), probably has more talent than his clowning dad.

The young Bernie will be heard next week in a radio play.

* * *

Paul Whiteman has a bright son, and so has Ed Wynn.

Why not search for other sons of stars and put them all together in one show?

And little Joe Aircaster will pan or plug them.

* * *

Glen Gray, whose orchestra and Irene Taylor inaugurated a new cigarette show over CBS-WJAS last night, will feature twice a week a medley titled "A Decade of Dancing," in which a song from each of the past 10 years will be included.

* * *

The hunch, Glenn tells me, grew out of last year's search for the 10 best songs of the previous 10 years, conducted by . . . a paragrapher whose name modesty forbids mentioning.

IMPORTANT!
Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains nothing but all bran with a small percentage of flavor. It is recommended as much more efficient in relieving common constipation than part-bran products which cannot contain as much "bulk."

Let the clouds go rolling by

The blame for "blue" days can often be laid to common constipation. It may bring headaches, loss of appetite and energy.

Laboratory tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to aid elimination. ALL-BRAN is also a fine source of iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. Inside the intestines, it absorbs moisture, gently extending and helping to cleanse them of wastes. Isn't this better than taking patent medicines?

Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily will correct most types of constipation. With each meal in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

You can be sure of getting ALL BRAN, and not part bran, by looking at the label. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Keep on the sunny side of life

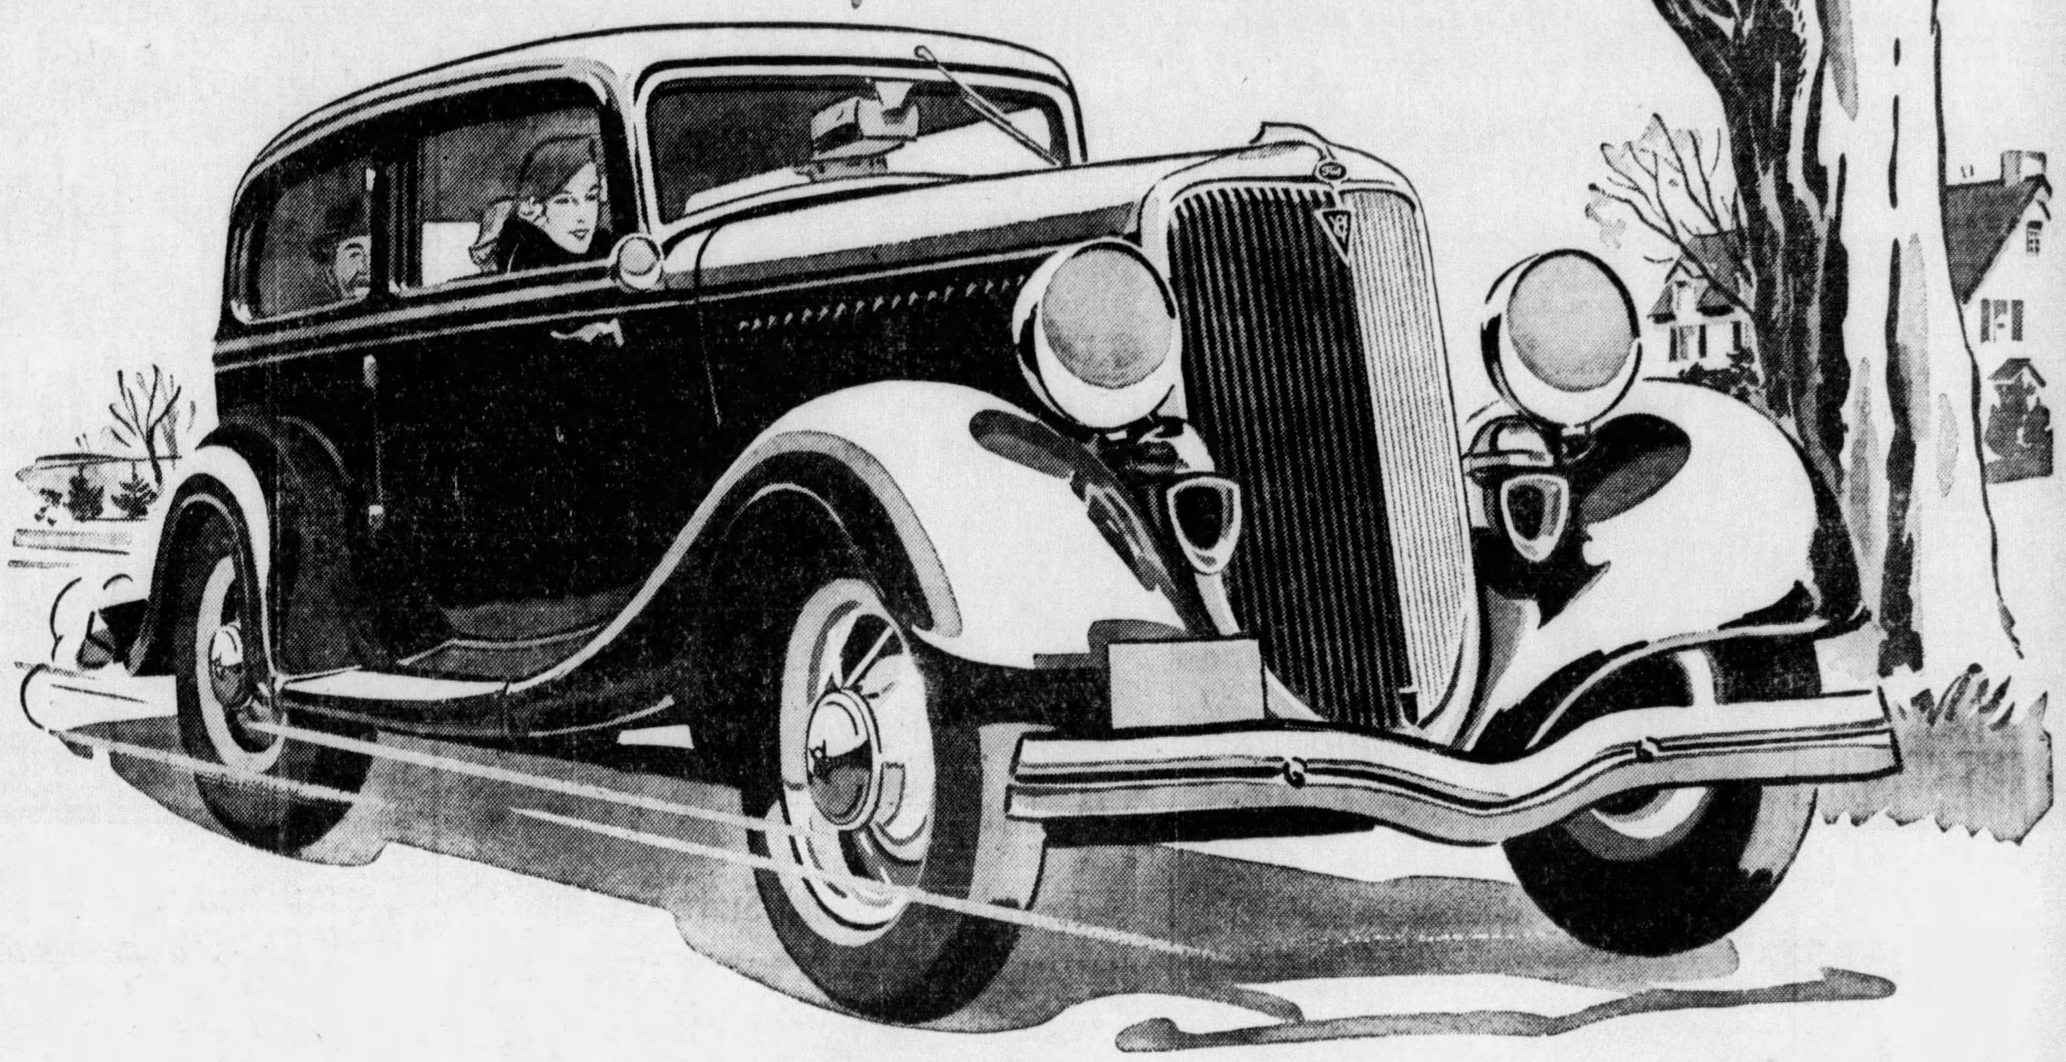
Announcing


NEW FORD V·8 for 1934
THE UNIVERSAL CAR

The New Ford V-8 for 1934 will be on display tomorrow at the showrooms of Ford dealers. Surpassing even the great Ford of 1933 in economy, beauty and comfort, it is truly the car of this modern age—the culmination of thirty years Ford progress. It combines the proved performance of the V-8 cylinder engine with two important new features—Dual Carburetion and perfected Clear-vision Ventilation. See it and drive it at the first opportunity.

OUTSTANDING IMPROVEMENTS IN THE NEW FORD V·8

BETTER PERFORMANCE. Greater power, new speed, quicker acceleration, smoother performance, more miles per gallon especially at higher speeds, and quicker starting in cold weather—all these result from the new dual carburetor and dual intake manifold. New waterline thermostats enable the engine to warm up more quickly and to maintain an efficient operating temperature. Added engine refinements reduce oil consumption, further improve operating economy and reduce maintenance costs.

NEW VENTILATION SYSTEM permits clear vision, prevents drafts and provides desired amount of fresh air in any weather. Individual control for front and rear side windows. When ventilation is desired the window glass is raised to the top. Then the handle is given an additional half-turn. This slides the glass back horizontally to form a narrow slot, as illustrated. Through this slot air is drawn out by the forward motion of the car. This simple ventilation system maintains draft-free circulation, insures passenger comfort, prevents fogging windshield in cold or stormy weather. Both windshield and cowl ventilator can be opened to supply additional air needed for comfortable warm-weather driving.

DISTINCTIVE NEW APPEARANCE enhanced by the newly designed chromium-plated radiator shell and grille, new hood louvres, new hub caps. Interiors are attractive, with new tufted upholstery, new mouldings, new cove-type headlining, new instrument panel, new arm rests, new hardware. Swivel-type sun visors in De Luxe bodies prevent glare from front or side.

FENDERS IN COLOR. On De Luxe cars fenders are in color to harmonize with body colors—wheel colors optional. New enamel finish on all bodies and fenders has greater wearing quality and more enduring luster.

GREATER RIDING COMFORT results from increased spring flexibility. The spring leaves are newly designed for quieter and easier action. Shock absorbers are improved. Seat cushions are deeper, with new, softer springs. New type, individual bucket seats provide increased comfort for front-seat passengers in the Tudor Sedan. Adding to comfort is the new driving ease of the 15-to-1 steering gear ratio.

PRICES REMAIN LOW—Tudor Sedan, $535. Coupe, $515. Fordor Sedan, $585. De Luxe Tudor, $575. De Luxe Fordor, $625. De Luxe Coupe (5 windows), $555. De Luxe Coupe (3 windows), $555. De Luxe Roadster, $525. De Luxe Phaeton, $550. Cabriolet, $590. Victoria, $610. *(All prices f. o. b. MASS MEETING IN DRIVE FOR TAX CUT

A mass meeting of real estate taxpayers will be held in the Robinson Township High School tomorrow night. The meeting, to which the public is invited, will be held under the auspices of the Robinson Township School Board.

C. V. Shoup, executive director of the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners' and Taxpayers' League, will speak on "Tax Reducing Legislation." Shoup recently returned from Harrisburg, where he conferred with legislative leaders in connection with proposed legislation to lower real estate taxation.

The taxpayers league today announced that the school boards of Dormont, Millvale, Rankin and Whitaker have indorsed the proposed legislation pending in the General Assembly to take the burden of taxation off the real estate taxpayer for school purposes.

Included among the bills are the Sterling income tax bill, that would provide state funds for educational purposes, and the delinquent tax bill, which would make possible the payment of delinquent taxes over a 10-year period without penalties.

SKLAR BEGINS 6-MONTH TERM

S. Barton Sklar, of Ellsworth avenue, today began serving six months to three years in the Allegheny County Workhouse for false pretense, in connection with the manner in which he was found guilty of fleecing $588 from his fiance, Miss Nettie Iancu, Waverly street.

Sentence was imposed by Visiting Judge Ivan J. McKendrick, who nolle prossed two other charges against Sklar for lack of evidence and also nolle prossed a charge of conspiracy to indict brought by Sklar against the young woman and her parents, Joseph and Ida Iancu.

Sklar was found guilty November 23. It had been testified he not only courted and proposed marriage to Miss Iancu, but represented himself to be a great inventor and induced her to withdraw money from her bank to put into one of his schemes.

HUGE FAKE CASH PLANT SEIZED

Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—Five men, $300,000 in counterfeit money and one of the most complete counterfeiting plants ever uncovered in the Middle West were seized by United States secret service men yesterday in the most important raid made here in years.

Although Capt. Thomas J. O'Callaghan, secret service chief here, would not discuss the details of the raid, it was learned his men are hunting for three other members of the band which had been operating around Chicago for more than a year.

The plant turned out money in $5, $10 and $100 denominations. The $5 bills had been in circulation for some time, the $10 bills only since a few weeks ago, but the band seems to have specialized in $100 bills, taking night clubs and race tracks for a merry ride over a period of months.

SPEED MERGER OF UNIVERSITIES

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—The Chicago Tribune said today that the proposed merger of Northwestern University and the University of Chicago had reached the stage where it was likely to become effective within the next two months.

Trustees of the University of Chicago, the newspaper said, had pledged themselves not to make the merger a means of securing tax exemptions on property held by the university.

Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, said it was planned to keep the undergraduate work of the two schools apart and consolidate only post graduate and special educational work as a means of saving money.

New York Mayors Favor Sales Tax

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 8.—(Universal.)—By unanimous vote, the New York conference of mayors, in special session here, adopted a proposal of Mayor Marvin, of Syracuse, for a 2 per cent sales tax to be collected by the state as a measure to lighten the real estate tax burden.

The proposed tax, it was estimated, would raise approximately $130,000,000 revenue which, under the plan, would be returned to the communities by the state.

Communists Charge Anti-Soviet Plot

LONDON, Dec. 8.—(INS.)—The central committee of the Communist party for White Russia today published a report charging counter-revolutionists, "backed by the money of western governments," were working within the Soviet borders, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Moscow.

The report asserted the revolutionaries had as their object "transformation of the Soviet republics into colonies of western imperialism."

Prison Head Fired By Pinchot Replaced

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—The board of trustees of the Eastern State Penitentiary, reorganized yesterday, elected Dr. Guy T. Holcombe, of Oxford, president. He succeeds Henry N. Woolman, dismissed by Gov. Pinchot after riots by convicts.

All members were present except Dr. Louis H. Robinson, of Swarthmore, whose appointment to succeed Woolman on the board has not been confirmed by the Senate.

Man Injured, Driver Held in 3-Car Crash

Charles Haman, Jr., 29, of House 162, Harwick, injured in a three-car automobile accident on Freeport road, Springdale, last night, is in Citizens' General Hospital, New Kensington, today.

A driver of one of the other automobiles, William Staymate, of Glassmere, is under $500 bond on a charge of driving while intoxicated, police say. Mrs. Alice Delange, of Tarentum, driver of the third car, was uninjured.

SENATORS PUSH COUCH LOAN INQUIRY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Disclosures before the Senate Stock Market Committee that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation made railroad loans beneficial to the Chase National Bank while Harvey C. Couch, one of its directors, was indebted to that bank were the subject of scrutiny today by another Senate committee.

The stock market committee closed its long two-month investigation of the Chase bank without calling Couch, but its members, who are also on a committee inquiring into RFC loans, indicated they would pursue the case through that agency.

FURTHER INQUIRY

Senator Fletcher (Dem.), of Florida, who is chairman of both committees, said he would discuss with members of the RFC Committee further inquiry into Couch's relations with the bank.

Other members of the committee indicated they would at least determine whether Couch acted on the railroad loans which permitted payments to the bank of more than $10,000,000.

Charles S. McCain, chairman of the bank and a close friend of the RFC director, told the stock market committee yesterday Couch had owed large sums to the bank ever since he has been a government official.

LOANS TO RAILROADS

During that time, he said, the RFC has made loans to railroads which permitted them to pay obligations to the bank of more than $10,000,000. Couch, in a letter to the committee, denied any "irregularities" in his relations with the bank.

After hearing McCain, the committee recessed until December 18 to let Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, prepare the investigation of Detroit's closed banks, scheduled for that date.

After the Detroit banks will come the Cleveland banks, some time in January.

READ TO APPEAL IN CLAIRE THEFT

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 8.—Found guilty of the theft of $11 from the purse of Miss Claire Windsor, film actress, Alfred C. Read, Jr., Oakland (Cal.), broker-boxer, today gave informal notice of appeal. He declared:

"I intend to keep on appealing the case until I win."

"I'm not taking it 'lying down,' I've learned a lot about the law since this trouble started, and I'm going to use what I learned to beat this thing yet. Certainly I'm going to appeal, and keep on doing it till I get a reversal."

Read's former wife, Mrs. Marion Read, recently won a $75,000 love balm suit from Miss Windsor.

CARNEGIE GIFT HERE RECORDED

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Dr. Frederick P. Keppel, president of the Carnegie Foundation of New York, reported today that the corporation distributed a total of $4,855,747.04 during the year ending September 30 to 216 projects throughout the world.

In his report Dr. Keppel estimated 50 per cent of all the grants voted during the year for new projects in the United States were made directly or indirectly as the result of the economic emergency. One of these "emergency" grants was a gift of $100,000 to the Carnegie Institute of Pittsburgh.

Library interests received the largest total of grants with $1,186,300 and adult education was given $227,500.

BANNED AT POOR HOUSE, KILLED

BATAVIA, Ill., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Fate played a strange and fatal trick on John Maxwell, 78.

Maxwell applied to the Kane County Home for the Poor yesterday. Permission was refused on the ground that he did not have an admittance card signed by the supervisor of his township—a rule adopted to keep tramps from making the place a resting spot for the winter.

Half an hour later Maxwell was fatally injured.

He was struck by an automobile driven by Ray Bartholomew, assistant superintendent of the home—the man who had refused the aged applicant admittance.

Gold Policy Results Slight--Chamberlain

BIRMINGHAM, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, said today he hoped that America's monetary operations to raise internal prices may succeed, but he believed little has yet been accomplished. He said:

Ledger of a New York Correspondent

It is not difficult to savvy why the Rockefeller Church on Riverside Dr. includes Prof. Einstein among other Saints—although he is not of the same faith . . . The professor's noble nature and deeds have been noted by the historians, but here are more . . . The Einsteins, it appears, use only what money they have to have for sustenance . . . Every penny that they do not need is sent posthaste to Germany to serve as succor for fellowmen and women and children in distress . . . Mrs. Einstein, frixample, wastes no coin for a cook—she does it all. The legend goes that she also does the washing . . . And so carefully does Mr. Einstein watch each penny—so that others may live—he uses two-cent postage instead of three on his letters, when he writes to locals from New Jersey where he dwells . . . And to callers from Manhattan daily, he requests: "Please mail these for me when you get to New York" . . . Thus, several pennies are not wasted . . . This is the sort of human being Germany exiles.

The sportsmen from everywhere who holiday each winter in Florida, where the dice may be thrown, and a dollar may be wagered, are not happier because Sheriff Hardie has been ousted by Gov. Sholtz . . . Hardie, it was, who took his badge of office to heart—and he stopped gambling when he could—and this, it appears, frightened away important money . . . This season—with Hardie out—Miami Beach is a little more cheerful . . . Already there are thousands of wealthy Cuban refugees who are restless for diversion . . . And the Cubans, you may have heard, are careless with money . . . But the wiser lads from Broadway and the various tracks are not too gay over the former Sheriff's discharge . . . For the word has come how determined he is—to uphold law and order in his community—whether he is accredited or not . . . The Broadway division has learned that Hardie is heading a large army of vigilantes, and with huge axes will batter their way into all the rendezvous of chance. And while they fear Hardie—they respect him and his aim . . . They can't bargain with him, either, and most of them are convinced that Hardie needs a manager, for last year he spurned a combine's offer of $1,000,000—to be a good boy—and go to sleep early . . . If Hardie were a real politician—instead of being jobless, he might be a millionaire and never pay income taxes.

Wonder what type of a man it is who would be that petty? . . . That executive for a famous company, I mean. . . . Who refused permission to the Knights of Columbus of Long Island City to use their balloon hangar, in that community, for a party—to raise funds for Christmas baskets for the poor. . . Another reason why I dodge attending those affairs where people gush over what seems to them important people—is what happened on that radio party to Seth Parker. . . . The affair was a farewell for Mr. Parker, who has an amazingly heavy audience on the radio—with his hymns and sermons. . . . He is now on his way around the world with his own schooner, fulfilling a lifetime aspiration. . . . And the people managing this stunt were so impressed with all the "guest stars" who came—that they used up the time introducing them all, forgetting to introduce the guest of honor!

That cabled story from Vienna in the Sabbath papers which related a few columns of anecdotes with either Hitler or Dollfuss as the butt were Broadway gags a few years ago. . . . How they repeat themselves as the seasons roll on. . . . Sam Behrman, the talented playwright, had a time of it when he was in Hollywood. He wanted a Bible—so he could quote it for a bit in a scenario and couldn't locate or buy one there—until he went to the Public Library! . . . Or so he says. . . . Senator Sutherland, of Coney Island, would like it better if it were noted here that he is not the Senator whose daughter is the bride of Paul Mayo. We didn't say that she was. But if we made it clear, he thinks, then perhaps his phone would stop ringing to congratulate him. . . . I'll bet he just wanted to see his name printed again.

Clara Kimball Young, you know, was permitted to be humiliated by that funny group of Hollywood people until the front pages revealed her plight . . . No rent, no job, nobody who would come forth with a break . . . And she was once the Garbo, Hepburn, Dressler (or name your favorite) of her day . . . People were urged to send her fan mail—so that if she got a trainload of it, I thought, some producer there might believe they really wanted to see her on the screen again . . . See what Mr. Western Union just brought in: "Los Angeles, Dec. 5: Walter Winchell, Mirror, NY—Thanks so much Walter stop I. A. Allen, who is producing Jackie Coogan's new series called me on the phone and gave me the role of Jackie's mother. My sincerest thanks—Clara Kimball Young."

Love Tragedy Nobly Done In Nixon

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Eva Le Gallienne has discovered Shakespeare. He had been laid away in the monument of the Capulets and covered over with the dust and cobwebs of commentaries and stage managers. "Romeo and Juliet," as presented at the Nixon Theater last night, awoke the poetry, the romance, the dramatic flash and fire of the immortal love story. It is the finest all-round performance of the classic in a generation.

Mr. Seibel

First of all, there is Eva Le Gallienne's Juliet. From Margaret Mather to Jane Cowl we have seen many Juliets—none more human and tragic than this Juliet of Eva Le Gallienne's. She played it as the great tragedians played their Hamlets and Othellos. Hers is an acting Juliet—not a lovesick Italian maid, but a great tragic figure. From the time when she is told that she must wed the Count Paris, she moves across the stage with the poignant agony of doom—but she reads her blank verse along with acting such as has been born of Ibsen and Strindberg, the psychologists of the modern stage.

There are other great performances in this production. Leona Roberts as the Nurse rose to stellar heights. Donald Cameron as Mercutio gave the Queen Mab passage a wonderful poetic picturesqueness. Sayre Crawley lent a benevolent dignity to Friar Lawrence. Melvin Fox gave Renaissance emphasis to Tybalt. Ted Tenley was as hungry a caitiff apothecary as Romeo described.

And Romeo himself—Richard Waring was the first really young and really romantic Romeo this many a year. He looked like some one Juliet could love and like some one in love with Juliet. He is handsome—he reads intelligently—he is not afraid to act when Shakespeare gave him passionate lines and business.

In fact, this is first of all an acting production of "Romeo and Juliet." More is left in than the stage managers usually spare, and so the drama is more intelligible. Besides being well acted, it is wonderfully staged—the scenes designed by Aline Bernstein have much to do with the impressiveness of the production. Everything from the first biting of thumbs to the last reconciliation in the tomb was rendered as human and romantic as it might have happened in old Verona. If Shakespeare had been there, he would have felt that he was really a great dramatist whose works might live after the Globe Theater was burnt to the ground.

Joan Crawford Now Is Aunt Of Incubator Baby

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 8.—Reporters who met Joan Crawford at the train failed to get in on a tense bit of drama, which is revealed here for the first time.

The star's sister-in-law, Mrs. Hal Le Sueur, has given premature birth to a baby daughter and is still in a serious condition in the Hollywood Hospital.

Knowing how Joan had been looking forward to the birth of a niece or nephew, friends concealed the news from the star until her arrival in Los Angeles. Joan rushed straight from the train to the hospital, but her sister-in-law was still unconscious.

The baby, which had been expected in January, weighed only two pounds at birth. It was put in an incubator and is getting along all right. The young mother now has regained consciousness, and is believed to be out of danger.

The tiny mite, whose entrance into the world came so near to tragedy, has been named Joan, after it's famous aunt.

Though he's going about it quietly, Nigel Bruce, English actor under contract to Fox, bids fair to succeed Douglas Fairbanks as Hollywood's pal to nobility. Within the past week, the British star has served tea on the set, or given parties, for Lord Tennyson, Baron of Guernsey, the Earl of Aylesford and Prince Ferdinand, grandson of the ex-Kaiser.

* * *

With Bing Crosby on salary since December 1, Paramount is rushing a story into shape for him. Even so they probably will not be ready until January 1. Meanwhile, Bing likes to return to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to play with Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone in "Sadie McKee."

Is this a laugh? Bill Haines, an interior decorator with a passion for getting just exactly the right piece of furniture or ornament, has been trying for weeks to find two statues for Carole Lombard's living-room. Guess where he finally located them. In an undertaking parlor. . . . With plans to leave for France at an early date, Baron Jaunez, house-guest of Constance Bennett and the Marquis Henri De La Falaise, goes instead to a hospital, suffering from typhoid fever. . . . Lenore Ulric, in town for RKO pictures, insists that her Mexican divorce from Sidney Blackmer is final enough. Neither party contested any point. . . . The Frederic Marches will talk of little else but the New York vacation they hope to take in February. They'll take their adopted son along and will return in time for Freddie to make his first 20th Century picture. And don't be surprised if it turns out to be "The Firebrand" instead of "Les Miserables." . . . Isabel Jewell is back in town from the desert, and very miserable from a cold.

Odds and Ends

FRANK MERLIN—producer, director, actor and hard-boiled philosopher—is now occupying the Little Theater, in this city. He is producing worth while attractions, and it's only a question of time before he lands a solid hit.

While casting "The World Waits"—closed because the box office waited—a young woman stepped into his office. She said that she wanted to associate herself with Mr. Merlin's Little Theater group.

The producer explained very patiently that the theater's name was the Little, and that it had nothing to do with any group. Whereupon the young lady became very glum.

"Couldn't you find something for me anyhow?" she questioned. "I don't want to be an actress. I want to start at the bottom and be a director!" . . .

A CERTAIN film actor, tremendously conceited, visited New York recently and lived at the home of a pal he had known for years. The pal had a girl in one of the current musicals, and was really very much in love with her. He introduced the film player to his girl and announced that he wanted them to be good friends.

The actor, very sure of himself, watched his opportunity. As soon as he was alone with the girl, he placed his hand on hers.

"Not that I want to double-cross my pal," he whispered, "but I'm really falling for you. Will you have dinner with me sometime?"

The girl withdrew her hand and looked at him coldly.

"No, thank you," was her response. "I never get that hungry." . . .

AMONG the contributed stuff of the day is the story of Mrs. Callahan and Mrs. Ginsberg, who were tenement house neighbors. Mrs. Callahan went to the public school one morning to attend a parents' meeting. She returned in much excitement.

"Oh, Mrs. Ginsberg," she cried. "The matin' was wanderful. They had some o' the foinest spakers ever I heard. One of the spakers was talkin' about the toime thot Washington crossed the Delaware. Did you ever hear about that, Mrs. Ginsberg?"

The other woman shrugged her shoulders.

"She esks me if I heard it," she said. "How could I hear it, Mrs. Cellehen? You know I live on the third floor, rear." . . .

UP FROM nowhere pops the old barber pole story. It actually happened some years back. And since I haven't seen it in print for a long time, it might be just as well to revive it here.

The scene was a fair-sized city in upper New York. Into a barber shop one morning walked a young man who offered to buy the barber pole outside the door. The barber agreed to give it to him for $5, and wrote out a receipt for that amount.

The youth placed the pole on his shoulder and walked on. Before he had gone two blocks, a policeman nailed him. The young man was evasive in his answers, and the cop brought him to the station house. There, after a few words with the lieutenant, the youth produced his receipt. Whereupon, he was, of course, permitted to leave.

This time he went four blocks before another officer arrested him. Once again he was brought to the station house, and once again he was freed. He then walked seven blocks with the pole on his shoulder, and another cop brought him to the station house. By this time, the lieutenant was frantic. He grabbed the phone and issued a request to every cop in town.

"If you see a guy with a barber pole," he roared, "for heaven's sake, let him alone. He's okay. Don't make any arrest."

The next morning, every barber pole in town had been stolen! . . .

NO matter how long you live, you will never again hear such an amazing statement from a public official as the one issued by Gov. Rolph, of California, after the San Jose lynchings. Coming in what we are pleased to term our modern civilization, it is almost beyond belief.

I don't doubt that Gov. Rolph had the best of intentions. None of us regrets that those two fools have gone to their death. But what any thinking person must bitterly regret is the manner of the passing, and of the effect it will have upon the average moron.

It's fine to cheer a heroic statement, and to feel that kidnaping has been dealt a knock-out punch. But what good is a knockout if you break your back delivering it? This thing goes far deeper than kidnaping. It strikes at the very foundation of all civilization. And that foundation is law and order.

When you condone lynchings, you condone mob violence. And when you condone mob violence, you might as well admit that your entire governmental structure is a failure.

There will be far more lynchings now than there ever were. And I'm afraid, Gov. Rolph, that they won't be for kidnaping, either . . .

Four performances in two days mark the close of the engagement of the Eva Le Gallienne Repertoire Theater Company in the Nixon. Two of them will be matinees of "Alice in Wonderland," one at 10:30 o'clock Saturday morning, the other at 2:15 o'clock in the afternoon. Tonight the second showing of "Romeo and Juliet" will take place, and the engagement will close Saturday night with the presentation of "Hedda Gabler," Ibsen drama with Miss Le Gallienne as Hedda.

With a queue at the boxoffice that was maintained throughout the day, the sale of seats for the new Ziegfeld "Follies" began in the Nixon yesterday morning, and in the afternoon it became necessary to open the auxiliary box office so that customers of Billie Burke and Miss Le Gallienne could be kept separate. Fannie Brice, Willie and Eugene Howard are the comics of the new revue.

Choir Boys of Vienna Sing Here Tonight

The Vienna Choir Boys, who will give the third Art Society concert at Carnegie Music Hall tonight, are members of a musical organization begun when the Emperor Maximilian ordered a group of boy singers to sing a daily mass. For nearly 500 years the organization has been kept intact. Haydn, Schubert, Mozart and other illustrious composers received musical training from the Saengerknaben Institution. In addition to the program of church and folk numbers, the boys will present the operetta, "Wedding by Lanternlight," by Offenbach tonight. The entire ensemble of 30 boys will appear in costume in the operetta.

MUSIC

Hotel Schenley

As the first series of Hulda Lefridge's morning musicales at Hotel Schenley now draws to a close the same loyal patrons are still there, enjoying what local talent has to say for itself in a musical way.

Mr. Lissfelt

The last but one concert was given yesterday morning with Martha Eaton Brickman, soprano, and Marie Vierheller and Marjorie Selkovits, pianists, as soloists.

The pianists have been heard to better advantage before. Yesterday they seemed to have forgotten to listen to themselves or to have suddenly gone deaf, for the audience was surely in accord that there had not been such a racket in the Schenley Library for many a day.

Suite No. 2 ..... Rachmaninoff

Songs—
Die Post, Auf dem Wasser zu Singen.
Die Junge Nonne ..... Schubert
Mrs. Brickman.

Pierrot Goes to Harlem..... Harry Gaul
Coronation Scene ..... Moussargsky
Misses Vierheller and Selkovits.

Songs—
White Hours Like Snow..... Grist
Portrait of an Old Man.... Harvey Gaul
Black Petaled Roses ..... Sibelius
Aria—"Aida" ..... Verdi
Mrs. Brickman.

The Rachmaninoff Suite No. 2 is dull enough music of itself, not to be compared with his other music for two pianos, but to have it reeled off with such bombast was too much for musicians.

In the two-piano arrangement of the "Coronation Scene" from "Boris Goudonoff" the tone was little better, and only in Harvey Gaul's new "Pierrot Goes to Harlem" did these players show what kind of music they could make.

In Mr. Gaul's work there is much joy for the player and the audience. Better than in anything we heard from Gershwin does he preserve the blues and the jazz without overloading his staff with any kind of filler. The music is straightforward and spontaneous.

Later in the program Mrs. Brickman sang one of Mr. Gaul's recent songs in which he records a lovely bit of pathos of a grandfather strolling into his youth.

It was a pleasure to hear Mrs. Brickman's brilliant soprano again in three fine songs of Schubert and excellent songs in English, the best of which was the "Black Roses" of Sibelius. Few sopranos dare this song because of its tremendous range. There is a glow in this lady's singing that holds her audience.

Miss Lefridge, having played much for this singer, was at her best in this concert.

CLOSEUP OF NEW IRISH MENTOR

Prominent figures in the elevation of Elmer Layden, Duquesne University football coach, to the post of head coach at Notre Dame, his alma mater, where he will succeed Hunk Anderson next fall, according to news from South Bend today. Coaching the Dukes since 1927, Layden had his greatest team this year, losing only to Pitt, 7-0, with Krankota, an end, as his captain. Assistant Coach Joe Bach is mentioned as his likely successor here, although Layden may take him along with him to South Bend. Mike Layden, younger brother of Elmer, is a member of the Notre Dame squad. Elmer was famous as a member of the Four Horsemen of Notre Dame, playing fullback on the 1924 Irish eleven. PIRATE STARTERS LIFTED 84 GAMES

Further evidence that the failure of the Pirates to win the National League pennant last season was due to pitching weaknesses, and that nothing better could have been hoped for in 1934 if the staff had not been bolstered by the acquisition of Red Lucas, may be found in the official hurling averages.

Larry French

Like the column in the batting table showing runs scored by opponents, these mound records make it clear that the Pittsburgh chucking corps, with the exception of Larry French, wasn't far above the level of the tailend outfits. French was the only Pirate pitcher to allow an average below three earned runs per game, whereas the New York, Chicago and Boston clubs each had three men in that ranking.

Only three Pittsburgh flingers—French, Swift and Meine—completed 10 or more games. The Cubs had five, the Giants, Braves and Dodgers four each, and the Cardinals and Reds three. Only the Phillies, with one, ranked below the Buccaneers.

The extent to which George Gibson was handicaped by a wobbly pitching department is apparent again in the number of times he had to yank his starting slabmen. Only 70 times out of 154, or less than half of the contests, was he able to get through a game with a single pitcher. In 84 instances, the starting flinger had to be derricked. Only two clubs in the league, the lowly Reds and Phillies, with 53 and 41, respectively, had poorer records for complete games pitched. The Cubs were able to go through 88 games without changing pitchers, the Braves 85, the Giants and Cardinals 74 each, and the Dodgers 70. It isn't hard to see what was wrong with the Pirates. They had second-division pitching.

SEBASTIAN AND HOGAN ON ALL-NORTH TEAM

Post-season honors have come to two more Pitt stars of 1933. Halfback Mike Sebastian and Quarterback Bob Hogan have been selected to play on the all-North team in the annual game against an all-South eleven, to be staged in New York under the auspices of the American Legion on Sunday, December 24.

With Joe Skladany and Frank Walton picked for the all-East team, to play in San Francisco on New Year's Day, the Panthers will be strongly represented in the annual fixtures.

REIDER AND HELLER REUNITED ON GRID

One of the greatest pairs of halfbacks in Pitt football history will roam the gridiron again. Paul Reider, Panther captain in 1932 and the last to gain the distinction of being appointed field leader for a full season, and Warren Heller, all-America choice in the same campaign, are to be reunited on cleats and will work together in double harness once more, Reider having yielded to the entreaties of his old buddy to join the latter in action on Heller's professional team at Reading when it plays its final game against Passaic next Sunday.

This will be Reider's first appearance in the pro ranks.

ROCKNE PROPHECY FULFILLED AT FINISH

Vangs to Meet Cavalry Poloists

Launching their third effort to regain polo supremacy, the Three Hundred and Eighth Cavalry poloists face the Vangs in an Indoor Polo League tilt at Hunt Armory tomorrow night.

Possessing the advantage of a veteran trio as well as an eight-goal handicap start, the troopers are in an excellent position to duplicate the feat of the Artillerymen, who trimmed the Vangs last week.

GREAT RECORD AS COACH SET BY LAYDEN

Elmer Layden came to Duquesne in 1927, and since that time the Dukes have enjoyed ever-increasing success in football. Adding to the difficulty of his schedule from year to year, the former Irish fullback this season achieved his aim of lifting Duquesne to a place of national prominence as his team won 9 of 10 games, losing only to Pitt, and piled up 173 points to 26 for the opposition.

Among Duquesne's victims this year were Waynesburg, West Virginia University, Bucknell, Western Maryland, Detroit, Westminster, Washington and Jefferson and Geneva.

GREAT RECORD

Duquesne was the only team to defeat Detroit in the 1933 campaign, and the only team to hold Bucknell scoreless.

From 1927 to 1933, inclusive, Layden-coached teams have won 47 games, lost 16, and tied six. In 1927 the Dukes won four, lost four and tied one; in 1928 they won eight and lost one; in 1929 they were undefeated, winning nine and participating in one tie; in 1930 they won seven and lost three; in 1931 they won three, lost five and tied three, and their 1932 record showed seven victories, two defeats and one tie.

DECLINES OFFER

Layden's great record attracted the attention of many colleges seeking new coaches, and resulted in his receiving many offers to transfer his activities to better known universities. A few years ago he declined an offer to go to Georgetown University as coach, and only yesterday declined a similar offer from the University of Kentucky.

Layden today intimated that in the event he should receive and accept an offer to become head coach at Notre Dame he would take Joe Bach, his line coach, to South Bend with him. Bach has assisted Layden as line coach here since 1929, and the Dukes' forward walls have compared favorably with those of all opponents.

IN POST-SEASON GAMES

The Dukes' fine showing this year resulted in their receiving several offers to engage in post-season competition. Layden is to lead a team made up of Duquesne Seniors and Duquesne gridders of former years against an all-star team in St. Louis Sunday, and his varsity is to oppose the University of Miami in a Carnival of Palms game at Miami, Fla., on New Year's Day.

Layden is to leave for St Louis at 6 o'clock tonight.

Yanks Send Moore To Newark Farm

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(INS.)—Wilcy (Cy) Moore, famous sinker ball pitcher of the New York Yankees, today had been released to the Yankee farm at Newark, N. J. The Yankees also sent Leroy Schalk, a young infielder, there on option.

The New York Giants today denied they had any intention of trading Lefty O'Doul, one of the heroes of the last world series, or of letting Travis Jackson get away to manage the Cincinnati Reds.

Records Fall to Klein In Greatest Season

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

In his banner year of baseball, Charles (Chuck) Klein, Philly slugger and National League batting champ, overlooked few details in the matter of records in the 1933 campaign. As Chuck heads for the Cubs he carries along with him many marks, including that of driving in runs.

Official figures published today show Klein to be the leader of the sluggers of the circuit with a card of .602. He drove in 120 counters, only two other players in the league being able to reach the century mark in this connection. They were Walter Berger, of the Braves, and Mel Ott, of the Giants.

Arky Vaughan, of the Pirates, was close to the coveted goal with 97 runs driven in. Vaughan slipped near the finish of the race or he would have cleared the barrier. The miscellaneous records:

KIZER'S BOOM FADES WITH HARPER

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Elmer Layden, one of the Four Horsemen, will replace Heartly (Hunk) Anderson as head football coach at Notre Dame next fall as the result of a drastic shakeup of the Notre Dame athletic staff. Jess Harper also will retire as director of athletics.

Harper's successor probably will be announced within the next two weeks. The most persistent report, however, is that Layden will hold both the athletic director's and coaching jobs. Layden is now coach at Duquesne University, Pittsburgh, but will leave his post in time to take charge of spring football in 1934.

In the absence of Father Charles O'Donnell, president of the university, who has been recuperating from a long illness, no official statement on the changes was expected before his return tomorrow, but they were readily admitted by authorities in charge, although none wishes to be quoted personally.

HARPER RECALLED

Harper and Anderson stepped into their positions after the tragic death of Knute Rockne in an airplane crash, March 31, 1931. Harper formerly coached the Notre Dame football team and was instrumental in making the Fighting Irish nationally known. It was under Harper's coaching that Rockne learned the game and he ultimately succeeded his teacher when Harper decided to retire. Upon Rockne's death, Harper was recalled.

KIZER PLAN FAILS

The retirement of Harper, who has wanted to return to his ranch in Kansas again, eliminated his plan to ultimately install Noble Kizer, of Purdue, as head football coach at Notre Dame. It was known that Harper planned to call Kizer to the post and up until today the chief of the Boilermakers was considered a sure choice for the coaching post at Notre Dame.

In three years since Rockne's death, Notre Dame football teams have won 16 games, lost nine and tied two. In 1931, Notre Dame started out brilliantly, but lost to Southern California in the 16-to-14 thriller and then ended the season with its second defeat, falling before the Army. In 1932, the Irish won seven and lost to Pittsburgh and Southern California. In the season just ended, they won only three games, lost five and tied one.

GREAT AS PLAYER

Layden, a 160-pound marvel in his college days, was one of the lightest and fastest fullbacks that ever galloped over a gridiron. He began his football career at Davenport, Ia., where he was an all-round high school athlete. He entered Notre Dame in 1921, and played quarterback on the freshman team as an alternate for Harry Stuhldreher.

When he was ready for the varsity, in his sophomore year, he was forced to do relief work. The next fall, as a junior, he was given the regular fullback assignment, and gained national fame as Notre Dame went without defeat until the last game of the season, when Nebraska beat the Ramblers. In 1924, Layden and the other members of the Four Horsemen developed into one of the highest polished scoring machines football ever has known. The team was undefeated, and was recognized as the national champion.

After graduating in 1925, Layden played professional football for one year with an all-star team composed largely of ex-Notre Dame players. In 1926 he became coach at Columbia College at Dubuque, Ia. Duquesne University offered him the coaching job there the next year, and he signed, becoming head coach in September, 1927.

DUKES' MENTOR SUCCEEDS ANDERSON

to say, and Anderson said he could not confirm or deny something he knew nothing about.

According to the Herald-Examiner, the only survivor of the storm that has been brewing since the Irish embarked on their disastrous 1933 gridiron campaign is Tom Conley, end coach, who came to Notre Dame a year ago as the personal choice of Father O'Donnell.

The university had planned to proceed quietly with the removal of the present regime and the installation of a new one. Definite and official announcement was to have been withheld until tomorrow, but it was impossible to keep any collegiate upheaval of such proportions a secret for long

COMES AS SURPRISE

The naming of Layden as successor to Anderson and Harper came as a surprise as he had not been prominently mentioned among those slated to take over the coaching reins. Noble Kizer, of Purdue, was the coach generally expected to get the job.

Harper, who coached at Notre Dame prior to the advent of Knute Rockne, returned to the university in 1931 to take charge as athletic director when Rockne was killed. Anderson, Rockne's first lieutenant, was entrusted with the job of handling the coaching reins.

Anderson's career has been a stormy one, full of trials and tribulations. This year's eleven, his third, lost five games and was tied once. Internal strife was reported between Anderson and his assistants [illegible] between certain members of the squad.

WON OVER ARMY

After the great comeback staged by the Irish last week when they defeated the Army in New York, sentiment was believed to have swung back in Anderson's favor, and it was felt in many quarters that he would be permitted to remain in charge.

He presided at the football dinner tendered the squad last night and gave no hint of the fate that is reported to have overtaken him. At the dinner, Dominic Vairo, an end, was elected captain for 1934.

HARPER SILENT

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Jesse Harper, director of athletics at Notre Dame, and Coach Heartly (Hunk) Anderson today refused to either confirm or deny reports published in the Chicago Herald and Examiner that they had tendered their resignations along with three other members of the coaching staff.

Harper, who came from a Kansas ranch to take over the destinies of Notre Dame's athletic teams in 1931 after the tragic death of Knute K. Rockne in an airplane crash, referred all questioners to the Rev. John F. O'Hara, C. S. C., vice president of the university. He said:

Anderson, whose team this year wound up its season in a blaze of glory by defeating the Army after dropping five games, winning two and fighting to a scoreless tie in another, was just as non-committal. He said:

"I can't confirm or deny something I don't know about, and I don't know anything of these reported resignations."

By HOWARD JONES

Member All-America Board of Football.
(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

Selection of an all-Pacific Coast team for the season of 1933 is more difficult than usual because of the fact that all of the teams are more evenly balanced.

I have seen all of the Pacific Coast Conference teams in action except the universities of Washington and Montana, and therefore am basing my choices for the coveted positions on the strength of having seen the men in action, together with having had at hand excellent reports on their entire seasonal performances.

THE ENDS

On end play it is my opinion that Smith, of Washington, and Palmer, of Southern California, meet all the requirements. Both are excellent pass receivers, strong in down the field work on punts, splendid blockers and fine defensive players.

THE TACKLES

There have been more good tackles on the Coast this year than usual. I have chosen two California men because their play has been outstanding.

Lutz, while only a sophomore, is a real tackle, exceptionally active and powerful on defense. Boone, playing his second year at California, has proved himself to be in a class with Lutz. Both of these players weigh well over 200 pounds. Reynolds, of Stanford; Yezerski, of St. Mary's; Field and Schwammel, both of Oregon State, would all make as fine a set of reserve tackles as any coach would want.

THE GUARDS

Rosenberg, of Southern California, and Corbus, of Stanford, get the call in the guard positions because of the fact that they are both excellent interference runners. Rosenberg has been called upon most of the past season to back up the line on defense, and has qualified in this duty 100 per cent.

Gilbert, of St. Mary's, and Stevens, of Southern California, are not far behind in general ability, and in defense would be equally as strong.

THE CENTERS

Christie, of California, is my selection for center. Because of his brilliance in backing up the line, his game has been outstanding. In picking centers one cannot overlook the work of Youel, of Southern California. Unlike Christie, he always has played in the line on defense, and statistics will prove that very few yards have been made over his position in the last two years.

Coats, of U. C. L. A., surely deserves more than ordinary mention in this center position, because he always has played a strong, consistent game.

THE QUARTERBACKS

In naming a man for the quarterback position, I have taken into consideration many qualifications. A quarterback should fulfill the necessary requirements in forward passing, punting, defensive play, field generalship and most of all, open field ability.

In the latter requisite, Warburton, of Southern California, was in a class by himself. His individual brilliance against Stanford with a 43-yard run for a touchdown from scrimmage; his 75 and 80-yard runs against Washington State for touchdowns; his 60-yard run against California, and his reception of a pass and subsequent run of 50 yards against Oregon are performances that I don't believe have been equalled in major competition this year.

Franklin, of Oregon State, also has turned in some splendid football games, and I am willing to rate him second only to Warburton, in this position.

THE HALFBACKS

For the two halfback positions, I cannot figure any better men than Nichelini, of St. Mary's, and McNeish, of Southern California. It is hard to find good backs who can run to the left, which Nichelini has been able so successfully to do.

McNeish, of Southern California, has not been heralded as much as many other ball carriers because he has not been required to do the work of packing the

SPORT VIGNETTES

In yesterday's Vignettes, I told you of meeting Milo Steinborn, the German Strong Man, who was one of the wrestlers on Wednesday night's card at Motor Square Garden, and of how we got to reminiscing and he told me he began wrestling with Youssof Hussane, the Terrible Turk, who often told him of his two bouts with Joe Stecher, the scissors king heavyweight champion, at the Exposition Building here, back in 1921, and, when he learned that I had witnessed these bouts, asked me to tell him about them.

Youssof, now in retirement as the owner of a hotel near Constantinople, with a 28-year-old son to help him, was a very good wrestler. At one time he was a stablemate of the great George Hackenschmidt, the Russian Lion, and he never feared the man whose rivalry with Frank Gotch developed into a historic fiasco.

It was a long story, as I told Steinborn in the beginning, but he was all cauliflower ears for the details. Here it is:

About a year before the first meeting between Stecher and Hussane, whom one of the local scribes in a moment of hilarious levity labeled You Sniff Cocaine, a young light-heavyweight wrestler named Leo Hyatt blew into Pittsburgh, broke and seeking an opportunity to ply his wares. The wrestling game was dead here, deader than the proverbial doornail, so Leo applied at the old Victoria Theater, in Liberty avenue, then a burlesque house, later the Aldine, where he asked permission to stage exhibitions one night a week as an added attraction. He promised to build up the patronage on the poorest night, which was Friday, and asked only a percentage of what extra business he could attract to the box office. He was told to try it, and, after a few weeks, his plan to lure in more customers bore fruit and for many weeks he kept bringing in opponents for himself, all of whom he threw, and thus established himself as quite an attraction.

Having built himself up, he induced a promoter to stage a real bout for him in the Labor Temple, and they brought on Hussane. That was the end of Hyatt and the beginning of Hussane in Pittsburgh. Hussane was altogether too big and too good for Hyatt and punished him severely, laying him up for repairs. Leo went his way and he hasn't been back since, although he has fared well in other fields. With his wife he won second honors in a perfect man and woman contest, Earle Liederman the physical culturist, and his wife placing first.

And so we are through with Hyatt and take up with Hussane. On the strength of his showing against Hyatt, Hussane was matched with Stecher, then a reigning sensation. But the fans and the press here still were skeptical of wrestling, and the wrestling people decided to do something about the situation, Walter Lloyd was the promoter. With the aid of some wrestling folks he discovered that one of the local sports scribes was a wrestling bug as a result of a long residence in Washington, D. C., where wrestling was a big sport, boxing being banned They asked this man to serve as referee, with the stipulation that if he thought the men were not wrestling on the level he could toss them out of the ring and order the fans' money refunded. The brother scribes went along on this plan.

Well, the bout went on, following a series of preliminaries, and they wrestled for more than an hour. The referee was getting tired moving around with the grapplers, and, finally, with both men on the mat and Stecher on top, he slapped Joe on the back and declared him the winner.

Then—pandemonium! Hussane's manager hopped into the ring and branded the referee a fraud. He declared the fall was not legal, that it was a rolling and not a pin fall, in other words that only one of his man's shoulders were touching the mat when he was declared the loser. He made a speech to the crowd while police guarded the amazed referee-scribe in his dressing room and later escorted him from the building.

It was a near scandal and could lead to only one thing, a return bout. After several weeks, the men were rematched and again they grappled for more than a hour before Stecher again won, this time with his deadly body scissors, than which there never were any better in the game. This time there was no doubt of the result.

You would have thought that wrestling then would have gone on in Pittsburgh, there being no boxing commission to keep things under control. But it didn't. The revival died aborning. Hyatt had started it, Hussane had carried it on. It ended with Stecher. Several attempts to blow life into it since have met with only scant success. Now the Steinborns and others are making a sincere effort to put it over as they believe it should be put over, in line with the requirements of the State Athletic Commission.

That, in effect, is the story as I told it to Milo Steinborn, Youssof Hussane's protege and friend.

As I finished, Steinborn's face lit up from ear to ear. He said:

"There is a chapter of which I do not think you are aware. It had to do with Hussane's first bout with Stecher in Pittsburgh. He told me about it several times. After he beat Hyatt your local promoters were keen to bring him back, and, being 'hot,' as you say, he held them up for a guarantee of $1,000 to meet Stecher. He thought it was a good joke on them. He thought they would be holding the bag. Imagine his embarrassment when he entered the building the night of the show and had to fight his way through the crowd to his dressing room. He had outsmarted himself by turning down a good-sized percentage of the receipts for a guarantee."—HARRY KECK.

Hogan Takes Lead In Cue Tourney

L. Hogan holds the lead in the city pocket billiard championship tournament today as a result of his 100-to-93 victory over W. Wilson in the Roosevelt parlors last night.

In another match, J. Hoffer downed D. Callahan, 100 to 80. It was the latter's first defeat. Wilson meets Monarchy tonight.

ALCOMA BUILDS NEW GREEN FOR NO. 2

By TOM BIRKS

When members of the Alcoma Country Club swing into action next spring, they will have a new No. 2 green at which to shoot, Arthur Snyder, professional and greenskeeper of the club, announced today that the green had been rebuilt entirely and should be in great shape by the time spring comes around.

Ever since Alcoma was laid out considerable trouble has been experienced with the green. It has an elevated tee, and the green lies in a decided drop, 145 yards from the tee.

Emil Loeffler, professional and greenskeeper at the Oakmont Country Club, is taking his annual fling at the Pinehurst courses. Dutch likes that yearly trip to the North Caroline resort, where quite a number of the Hulton members play during the winter months.

The golf committee of Edgewood Country Club eliminated the usual caddie banquet this year, and gave 150 caddies each a sweater.

Tee to Green

Charley Manning, professional at the Shannopin Country Club, and Jimmy O'Donnell, professional at Churchill Valley, have teamed up to open a practice and teaching school in the William Penn Hotel. Both have a large following among local golfers.

Vincent Eldred, professional at Highland, West Penn open champion, has started on his annual trek to Florida. Vince intends to play in the Miami open tourney and will be rooting for the Dukes when they clash with Miami in football on New Year's Day.

Wonder what happened to Ted Luther, the popular Valley Heights professional. Ted disappeared following the playing of the Tech-Notre Dame game, played quite a number of games in Cleveland after that time, and was reported headed for the West Coast tournaments.

Toots Erath, Edgewood professional, is out in the woods this week with three members of the club hunting deer. A certain golf writer has been promised some venison steaks, and is hoping that Toots is not topping his shots.

William S. Haddock has been named chairman of the committee in charge of the national public links championship scheduled for here next year. Chauncey Depew, chairman of the public links section of the U. S. G. A., notified J. D. O'Neil, local commissioner that this should be done without delay, and the naming of the county parks athletic director followed.

THREE IN TIE FOR CUE LEAD

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—A pair of veterans and one of the younger stars today were tied for first place in the world pocket billiards championship tournament and were certain of remaining there until tomorrow.

The shareholders were Andrew Ponzi, of Philadelphia, and Erwin Rudolph, of Cleveland, the veterans, and 23-year-old Jimmy Caras, of Wilmington, Del. Each won his second-straight match yesterday and had nothing to do on today's schedule.

Ponzi defeated Pasquale Natalie, of Chicago, 125 to 109, in eight innings, while Rudolph, winner of the 1930 tournament, polished off Charles Seaback, of Astoria, N. Y., 125 to 65, in six innings and set a high run mark for the tournament to date of 80. The game also was the shortest of the competition.

George Kelly, Philadelphia, who handed Greenleaf his first defeat in 23 starts in Wednesday night's match, was matched with Seaback today, and William Mosconi, the rest of the Philadelphia delegation, had Natalie as his opponent. In the night match Greenleaf will tackle Allen.

Amateur bouts at Keystone A. C.

BARRY TO BOX GALENTO HERE

The Moose Temple Boxing Club has come up with a heavyweight main bout for its show next Monday night, and it looks like hot stuff on paper.

Reds Barry, of Washington, D. C., who recently knocked out Sunny Jim McVey at the Moose, creating a very favorable impression, will appear in the main bout, pitted against Tony Galento, who knocked out George Panka with his first punch at Motor Square Garden a few seasons ago and then was outpointed by Natie Brown in the same ring.

Galento is the modern Willie Meehan, or Fat Boy, of the ring.

An amateur boxing show of 10 rounds, open to the public, is being held at the Keystone A. C., tonight. It will get under way at 8:45 o'clock.

Bottomley Likely To Manage Reds

NOKOMIS, Ill., Dec. 8.—(INS.)—The report that Jim Bottomley, first baseman, is to become manager of the Cincinnati Reds gained added impetus today when Bottomley admitted that he had been in conference at St. Louis during the past week-end with Larry McPhail, vice president of the Ohio club. Asked if he had been offered the job of manager, Bottomley replied:

"I can't answer that question point-blank. Donie Bush still is manager and, for that reason, I could not even consider the job, even if it were offered to me."

ALL-STAR TEAM OFF TONIGHT

Coaches Elmer Layden and Joe Bach, of Duquesne University, will lead a squad of 22 or more footballers out of the city this evening, heading for St Louis where on Sunday said gridders will engage a team of seniors from St. Louis, Washington and Missouri universities in a charity game.

The squad in charge of the Dukes' mentors will consist of the 11 seniors of the Duquesne varsity and at least 11 former Red and Blue stars. He was assigned to the Myers and Tate block in Toledo, and has continued to deliver mail there ever since. The block is the only one left on his route of 43 years ago. Wilder now takes in the four sides of the original block and his unusual record is evidenced by two gold stripes on his sleeve, each stripe denoting 20 years of service. ELECTED IN JAIL—After qualifying for the office of constable in Ward 2 of Natchitoches Parish, La., Frank Brigman was arraigned in court charged with violation of the Eighteenth Amendment on November 20, 1931. MONONGAHELA HIGH SQUAD WINS DRAW

Blair McMillan's Monongahela High School basketball squad has been drawn to serve as the demonstration unit at Pitt's fourth annual basketball clinic, scheduled for an all-day stand in the Pitt Stadium Pavilion tomorrow. The draw was made last evening by Graduate Manager of Athletics Jimmy Hagan. Zelienople was drawn as an alternate. A crowd of 2,500 is expected.

A full day is assured for those attending the clinic tomorrow, every minute of the day from 9:30 in the morning until 10:30 in the evening being accounted for by those in charge of arrangements. To date over 100 high school coaches have signified their intentions of being present, and as many more are expected to be present early tomorrow morning.

The morning session will show in detail the development of the Pitt system. To use a team unfamiliar with the Carlson style of play should serve to prove the practicability of the system.

At noon there will be a luncheon at Webster Hall. For those who have not already planned to attend, there will be tickets on sale at the Pavilion. At the luncheon basketball movies will be shown.

The afternoon session will be featured by talks by the following tri-state coaches: Dr. H. C. Carlson, of Pitt; Max Hannum, of Carnegie Tech; John Lawther, of Westminster; Chick Davies, of Duquesne; Ken Loeffler, of Geneva; Waldo Tippin, of Allegheny; John Knight, of Bethany, and James Miller, of Indiana State Teachers College.

Following the talks by the various coaches there will be a rules interpretations meeting, under the supervision of the new officials' associations.

At 5:30 there will be a dinner at Webster Hall and at 7 o'clock the Pitt freshmen will meet Perry High School and then at 8:15 the local collegiate court season will be inaugurated with the Hoyas of Georgetwn University opposing Pitt's Golden Panthers.

ball. But he has been a splendid blocking back, a certain tackler and has few equals at throwing or catching a forward pass. There is no better all round back on the Coast.

There have been many fine halfbacks this season, of whom I should particularly mention Maentz and Hamilton, of Stanford; Wilson, of St. Mary's; Joslin, of Oregon State; Williams, of California; Sulkosky, of Washington, and Blower, of California.

THE FULLBACKS

I can't arrive at a better man for fullback than Keeble, of U. C. L. A. Playing on a team which has fought some of the best on even terms, he has shown tremendous drive.

Other fullbacks of prominence have been Griffith, of Southern California; Grayson, of Stanford; Hillman, of Stanford; Sherry, of Loyala; Paglia, of Santa Clara; Mikulek, of Oregon, and Muczknski, of Washington.

Picking all-star teams is a difficult task, but I'll stick with the one above, and I would not hesitate to use the men mentioned as reserves, at any time.

Long's Sport Comment

good. "He'll be in our backfield next fall," Rockne said. "He will be as good as Gipp and maybe a little better. His name is Nicholas Lukats. Remember the name. He will be the talk of the country in the next three seasons."

Nick Lukats

It was not until the closing minutes of his college career, in the great drive that beat Army last Saturday, that Lukats fulfilled Rockne's prophecy. For three seasons Nick was just another back. His name rarely reached the headlines, and no one ever mentioned him as an all-America possibility. But in the last 10 minutes of his career he was at least the equal of Gipp. In six plays he gained 55 yards to carry Notre Dame 52 yards to a touchdown, making up three yards that Carideo lost. His deadly kicking put Army in a hole three times, and the Irish capitalized on one of them to win. Plunging, slanting, sliding, sweeping with speed, precision and a deadly fury, and kicking with astounding power and accuracy, it was Lukats who lifted the Irish and carried them to victory.

PETROLLE MEETS LOAYZA TO AID PROMOTER

Billy Petrolle and Manager Jack Hurley did not appear to be greatly concerned about the interests of patrons or promoters in Pittsburgh when Billy met Tommy Grogan at Greenlee Field in 1932 and had to be ordered to quit stalling, but in the East they are rated an unusual combination, often going out of their way to give club operators a break. The Stanley Loayza match set for next Tuesday night is an example.

When Petrolle fought Sammy Fuller at the Ridgewood Club several weeks ago, Promoter Johnny Attell made the mistake of jacking up the prices and lost money as a result, though Petrolle accepted a reduction in his guarantee. Following the postponement of the Ross match, Petrolle and Hurley saw a chance to do Attell a good turn. They told him they did not want to leave any promoter in the red, and offered to accept any match he might arrange. Loayza was chosen.

CRONIN COMES EAST TO ATTEMPT TRADES

Bill Terry may consider his Giant lineup good enough to win another pennant in the National League, and may be content to stand practically pat, but the same is not true of the manager of the other major league flag winner of 1933. Joe Cronin is coming from San Francisco for a conference with Owner Clark Griffith, and the two will proceed to the big meetings in Chicago next week prepared to make a determined effort toward swinging several trades.

Joe Cronin

Cronin and Griffith are reported to have decided that the Senators will have to be speeded up in four spots for next season before they can be expected to repeat. The spots are behind the bat, in the box, at third base, and in the outfield. Two of the men desired are said to be Pitcher Oral Hildebrand and Outfielder Joe Vosmik, of Cleveland, with Pitcher Walter Stewart being offered as part of Washington's side of the proposed trade.

Said $1,400,000.00 Public Work Relief Bonds, 1933, Series C, are issued to provide funds for providing supplies, materials, equipment, labor and supervision (including engineering expenses) for the improvement of streets, parks, playgrounds, wharves, sewers, water lines, bridges, and other public properties of the City of Pittsburgh, the labor to be provided from among the unemployed, and were authorized by the Electors at an election held April 26th, 1932.

Said bonds will be coupon bonds of the denomination of One Thousand ($1,000.00) Dollars, exchangeable at the option of the holder at any time for a registered bond or bonds of the same maturity and of the denomination of One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars or a multiple thereof not exceeding the aggregate principal amount of the coupon bond or bonds surrendered in exchange therefor.

No bid for such bonds at less than par and accrued interest from the date of said bonds to the date of delivery will be accepted. The right is reserved to reject all bids and any bid not complying with the provisions hereof will be rejected. All bidders are required to deposit a certified check drawn to the order of the City of Pittsburgh, on a National Bank or Trust Company for two per centum (2%) of the principal amount of bonds bid for. Checks of unsuccessful bidders will be returned upon the award of the bonds. The City of Pittsburgh reserves the right to deliver to the successful bidder temporary typewritten or printed bonds, in the form of one temporary bond for each issue, or one bond for each maturity of each issue, which shall be substantially in the same form as the definitive bonds, with appropriate omissions, insertions and variations as may be required. Until their exchange for definitive coupon bonds, the temporary bonds shall be in full force and effect according to their terms, and shall bear interest from December 1st.

Proposals should be addressed to James P. Kerr, City Controller, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and enclosed in a sealed envelope, marked on the outside "Proposal for Bonds." Bids must be made upon blank forms which may be obtained from the City Controller.

PROFIT-TAKING CUTS DOWN STOCK GAINS

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Profits tempted speculators in both stocks and staples today and prices sagged moderately before support appeared.

Despite the mild reaction in equities, sentiment continued rather optimistic as business and industrial news seemed to have supplanted, at least for the time being, the monetary controversy as a market influence. With the gold rate again unchanged, the dollar moved narrowly in foreign exchange dealings. Grains were off about a cent a bushel at one time and most other commodities were somewhat lower. Cotton dropped after early steadiness. Rail loans led the bond market in another advance and United States government securities showed some improvement.

A decrease in car loadings of 85,922 for the week ended December 2, which included the Thanksgiving holiday, was not unexpected. There had been an estimated seasonal decline of some 74,000. There were predictions of a sharp rebound for the week ending tomorrow. The past week's loadings were 51,670 under the 1932 period which, however, did not include a holiday.

The recent sagging of foreign exchanges, dealers pointed out, may not have been due altogether to covering by European speculators or to the fact that the domestic gold price has remained stationary for the longest period since the RFC started its buying operations. Sterling, at this time of year, it was said, is normally depressed by the drawing of bills in connection with payments for cotton and other staples. Notwithstanding some shippers are leaving the proceeds of their sales abroad, bankers say the financing of British imports tends to keep the pound in supply.

COTTON VALUES RULE HIGHER

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Cotton futures opened quiet, 3 to 5 higher in response to steadier Liverpool cables and on trade and commission house buying. December 9.99; January 9.99; March 10.14; May 10.27; July 10.39; October 10.57.

There was a scattering demand from the trade and commission houses which was supplied by liquidation and a little southern selling, with the market holding fairly steady within a range of 3 or 4 points. At the end of the first half hour December was selling around 9.97 and May 10.25, or about 2 to 3 points net higher.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Cotton, 19,000 bales, including 8,200 American. Spot moderate business done; prices 4 points higher; quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 5.90; good middling, 5.60; strict middling, 5.40; middling, 5.25; strict low middling, 5.10; low middling, 4.85; strict good ordinary, 4.65; good ordinary, 4.35. Futures closed quiet. December, 5.02; January, 5.02; March, 5.03; May, 5.05; July, 5.07; October, 5.10.

Treasury Offering Oversubscribed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(INS.)—Subscriptions to the Treasury offering of $950,000,000 in 2¼ per cent one-year certificates amounted to $2,714,000,000, Acting Secretary Morgenthau announced today.

While other oversubscriptions of the past have been greater, Morgenthau was highly gratified at the confidence expressed in government securities through subscriptions of investors.

Sugar Market.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Raw sugar was quiet early today, but the tone was easy and sugars were offered at 3.25 for spots. Futures opened at declines of 1 to 3 points under liquidation and selling by houses with Cuban connections, promoted by the easier ruling of the spot market. January contracts declined from 1.19 to 1.16, while March eased off from 1.23 to 1.19 under this pressure, or 4 to 5 points net lower, with the market at midday ruling at or a point above these levels.

In refined trading was light and mostly of a hand-to-mouth character and prices were unchanged at 4.50 for fine granulated.

TAX PROVISION HITS STOCK PROFITS

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Tucked away in the tax revision report submitted to the House Ways and Means Committee by its subcommittee, is a provision setting up a new basis for taxation of capital gains which, if adopted, would have a far reaching effect in narrowing the opportunity for net profits after taxes from trading in securities or commodities.

Mr. Rukeyser

The language of the suggested provision is obscure, but the susceptibility to taxation on capital gains (such as profits attained from the sale of stocks) would be on a graduated scale, depending on how long the property has been owned.

Plainly the purpose of the recommendation is to penalize the in and out trader and favor the more slow footed investor.

To the extent that such a provision was successful, it would greatly reduce the volume of transactions at the great stock and commodity exchanges in the United States.

Of course, although the language is ambigious, the sub-committee apparently does not mean at all capital gains on property held less than a year would be taxed by the tax gatherer.

It merely means that the tax would be applied to 100 per cent of such gains, whereas it would be applied to only 80 per cent of the capital gain on property held less than two years, and per cent on property held less than three years.

The purpose is to discourage gain speculation, such a tax by would perhaps do more to the practice than almost any other technique, because, prod a high rate of taxation were ried, it would take away the ntive to speculate.

LONDON RAISES GOLD PRICE

International News Service.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—The International gold price was raised nine-pence (about 18 cents) today to 126 shillings, nine-pence per ounce, with a premium of eight pence over the French rate.

This was equal to about $32.37 in American currency at today's opening exchange rate of $5.11½ to the pound sterling.

This is the seventh successive day in which the RFC has posted a price of $34.01 for gold and marks the longest period during which one price has been maintained since the RFC began posting its prices on October 25.

PENNSY LOAN DEADLINE SET

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Secretary Ickes, the Public Works Administrator, had said today the Pennsylvania Railroad had been given until December 14 to complete its contract for a $83,000,000 loan, recently granted, or the loan would be withdrawn.

The Pennsylvania loan was made for the building of new equipment and to complete the electrification of its lines from Washington to New York.

Public Works administration officials explained that the Pennsylvania had agreed to pay the standard public works wages for which the loan was expended, and Ickes said he felt sure the railroad would be prepared to sign the contract within the specified period.

OPERATOR 13

He opened her door and went out. There was nobody in the corridor as he stepped across the hall and fitted his key to his door lock.

As he did so the door opened in his face and a man came out in a hurry, colliding with him in the dusk. Both men sprang back, their pistols half drawn.

"Yes. They've got your papers. We'd better get out of the city!"

Through the partly open door Gailliard could see the slashed valise and the tumbled bed littered with underwear. He turned a white, desperate visage to the other, who nodded back grimly.

"Yas, suh; thar's like to be a right smart o' hangin' in these parts. Yuh reckon you kin make Montreal?"

"I've got to try. And you?"

"Baltimore—or the hangman's jig for me, suh. And I reckon I'll be on my way."

He pulled his heavy pistol free of his hip pocket, cocked it and, still clutching it, thrust his hand into his coat pocket. Then he passed like a shadow along the corridor and disappeared around the distant turn where the staircase descended to the lobby.

Operator 13, coquettishly hatted and gloved, stood by the window looking down at Broadway, when the door behind opened and she heard her lover come in. For a brief moment she dared not turn her head. Then, summoning her courage, she looked around at him with a reproachful little shrug.

"Really," she said, "you've been away so long that there isn't very much of the afternoon left for us, Jack."

In Despair

He said quietly: "There is no time left for us at all." His clever, boyish face was sunken and colorless. "Matters have gone very wrong with me. I must say goodby. I am going now."

"Going!" she repeated.

"I must."

"To Montreal?"

"Yes."

"Is your friend waiting?"

"No; I go alone."

She came to him and rested her clasped hands against his breast. "Do you believe that you are in any danger?" she whispered.

"I don't know. You are not to worry, darling. Goodby."

"If you are going to the railroad station," she said, "I'll say goodby to you there."

"Darling, it might not be safe for you to be seen in my company."

"Do you think you may be arrested?"

"In that event you ought not to be seen with me——"

"Tell me," she interrupted, "have you paid your hotel bill?"

"I paid for my room last night."

"Very well, then; I will meet you aboard the train and go with you to the first stop at much time together!"

"Darling, you had better keep clear of me."

"No! Give me your friend's ticket! There's no danger in my sitting with you as far as Spuyten Duyvil."

On His Way

He was still reluctant, but she had her way with him and when he finally yielded the extra ticket to her she tucked it gayly in her glove, took his arm, and marched him out and into a corridor which terminated in a narrow flight of stairs at the Eleventh street door of the hotel.

When he had been rattled away in his rickety old hack, the girl, instead of returning to her rooms, walked back to the hotel lobby, paid her bill at the desk, displayed her railroad ticket to the head porter and told him to come for her baggage in a quarter of an hour. Then she went up to room 23, tried the door and found it open, and discovered the chambermaid had been inside, had finished her work and left.

The contents of the ripped valise lay neatly piled on the bed and the valise stood on a chair. Through the slit in its side she packed it with its proper contents and lugged it across the hall to her own quarters.

Over one of her valises there was a brown alpaca cover. This she removed and fitted over his valise and buttoned and strapped it tightly.

She had just finished her own packing when the porter came for her baggage. She placed the duplicate checks in her pocketbook along with the railroad ticket and went lightly out and down to the waiting hack.

As she set her foot on the carriage step a Federal detective lounging near, gave her a secret signal of recognition, and she beckoned to him.

"Is there any news?" she whispered.

"Yes ma'am. We're raiding these here Sons of Liberty. We've nabbed better than 300 o' them already. Are you leaving us, ma'am?"

"Yes. I'm going to Montreal with another secret service operator named Halyard."

"Good enough, ma'am. I hope you catch Vallandigham. I hear he's skedaddled that way."

"I'll do my best," she smiled. "Keep an eye on your hotels. There are Rebel spies here waiting for an opportunity to set them afire."

She gave him a friendly warning nod and stepped into the battered old carriage, which rattled away over the stones.

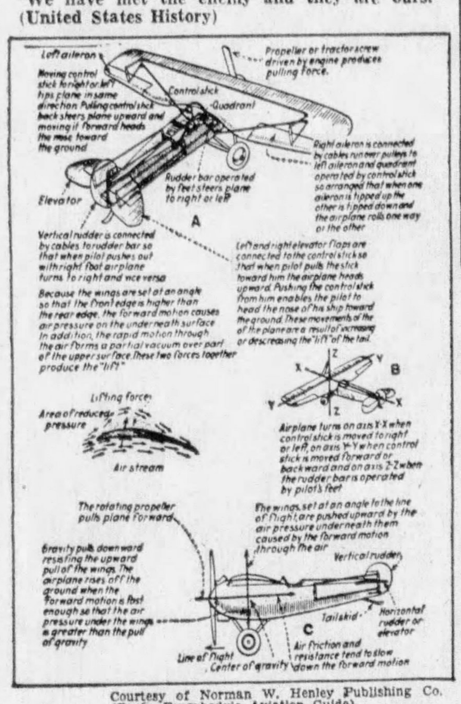
FLAGSHIP DAMAGED, PERRY TRANSFERS FLAG

After a Painting by W. J. Powell

"War Hawks" of 1811 (leader Henry Clay, speaker of House) strove successfully to turn Jefferson's "peaceful" war (by embargo and non-intercourse) into an actual one, picturing the conquest of Canada an easy task. Congress declared war on England (1812) without proper military preparedness. Indians under Chief Tecumseh sided with the British. Changing fortunes of war brought victories and defeats for both sides. One memorable American success in the North was that of Capt. Oliver H. Perry, who with hastily built ships fought and captured the British fleet on Lake Erie, September 10, 1813. His classic report was: "We have met the enemy and they are ours." (United States History)



Left aileron
Control stick
Quadrant
Propeller or tractor screw driven by engine produces pulling force.
Right aileron is connected by cables run over pulleys to left aileron and quadrant operated by control stick so arranged that when one aileron is tipped up the other is tipped down and the airplane rolls one way or the other
A
Vertical rudder is connected by cables to rudder bar so that when pilot pushes out with right foot airplane turns to right and vice versa
Left and right elevator flaps are connected to the control stick so that when pilot pulls the stick toward him the airplane heads upward. Pushing the control stick from him enables the pilot to head the nose of his ship toward the ground. These movements of the plane are a result of increasing or decreasing the "lift" of the tail
Because the wings are set at an angle so that the front edge is higher than the rear edge, the forward motion causes air pressure on the underneath surface. In addition, the rapid motion through the air forms a partial vacuum over part of the upper surface. These two forces together produce the "lift"

B
Lifting force

Airplane turns on axis Y-Y when control stick is moved forward or backward and on axis Z-Z when the rudder bar is operated by pilot's feet
The rotating propeller pulls plane forward
The wings set at an angle to the line of flight are pushed upward by the air pressure underneath them caused by the forward motion through the air
Gravity pulls downward resisting the upward pull of the wings. The airplane rises off the ground when the forward motion is fast enough so that the air pressure under the wings is greater than the pull of gravity

CANNED MILK, A VALUABLE FOOD

Evaporated, condensed or canned milk is made by reducing water content of whole milk about half in "vacuum tanks" (1), heated by steam coils. Vapors are sucked out to allow boiling at low temperature in order not to destroy valuable enzymes and vitamins. Remainder is squeezed through tiny holes (1/10,000 in. diam.) in a "homogenizer" to shutter fat globules for permanent, intimate emulsification.

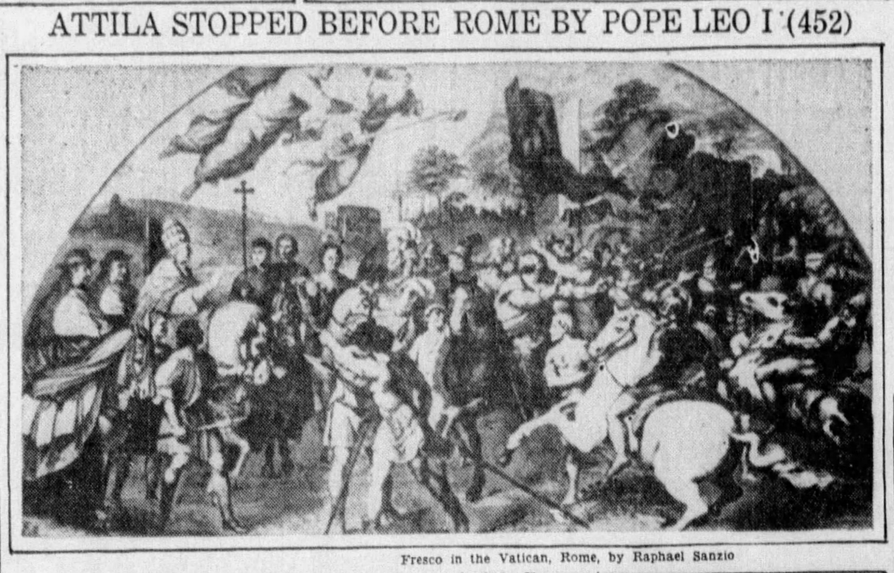
Slight caramelization of the lactose (natural milk sugar) gives characteristic flavor to condensed milk. Properly made condensed milk is about twice as rich as whole milk, not lacking valuable enzymes and vitamins. It keeps without refrigeration as long as can is sealed. (General Science)

ATTILA STOPPED BEFORE ROME BY POPE LEO I (452)



Fresco in the Vatican, Rome, by Raphael Sanzio

Huns (Mongolians) advanced from North of Asia into Europe, driving the people (Goths, Vandals, etc.) to migrate and to invade the Roman Empire. The Huns established a strong empire in Central Europe after devastating lands between the Black Sea and the Mediterranean. Their King Attila (434-453) besieged Byzantium (Constantinople), and exacted tribute from the Eastern Roman Emperor, Theodosius II. In his conquest westward Attila advanced into Gaul, but was checked at the battle of Chalons (451) by the armies of Aetius (Roman) and Theodoric (Visigoth). The next year Attila attacked Rome, saved only through the intervention of Pope Leo I, who entreated the barbarian to withdraw. Raphael presents the "Scourge of God" terrified by the apparition of Apostles. (World History)

ROBERT BOYLE (1627-1691) AND HIS LAW

P, P', P'' standing for different pressures and V, V', V'' for corresponding volumes Boyle's law is expressed: $P/P' = V'/V$ and $P/P'' = V''/V$; from which $PV = P'V' = P''V''$. The product of pressure and volume for the same weight of a gas at same temperature is a constant.

Boyle's law enables us to calculate the volume of any gas under any pressure if its volume under a certain pressure is known, provided the temperature is constant. Similarly the new pressure to the changed volume can be found. (Chemistry)

The Right Triumphs Again

Electoral reform has flapped through the land shedding its wing feathers over the decrepit organizations.

The balloting is over. Except for the counting, the recounting and the discounting. Your indignant citizen has manifested his righteous anger by yanking the handle of a voting machine and letting it fly back.

Surprising municipal acrobatics have taken place in our larger cities. You will be interested in the post-mortified statements of the defeated and in the elapsed promises of the victorious:

Alderman Gargle: "All I want for my share of the plunder is the reform."

Councilman Moofer: "I was whipped in a fair and square election. I win any other kind of contest."

Commissioner Totters: "They got my scalp but they will have a large bill for hair oil."

Supervisor Delunk: "The honest citizens have repudiated me at the polls. They say my administration was founded on graft and corruption. I shall start at the bottom and work my way up again."

Inspector Earewax: "I am for economy even after it gets expensive."

Director Gonggong: "I was a good Republican until I became a better Democrat. How did I know the public was voting on the garbage removal contracts? I was stabbed by an X in a circle."

Chairman Hingegate: "Although defeated I still have the interests of the people at heart. I was going good until I ran out of cigars, promises and reasons."

Chief Grabbs: "I promised the city four years of good government and they elected the other guy. I should have kept my mouth closed. This is the first time I ever campaigned for my opponent."

Secretary Balloop: "The crooks have been run out of town. I would like to catch that reporter who said I was a sucker to give them a four-year start on me."

Commissioner Chissell: "I stood on my record. The city had a five million surplus until good old Chissell balanced the budget."

There were many other self-inflicted claims of honesty and charges of duplex dealing. We congratulate the victorious, sympathize with the defeated and steel ourselves for the reform that barks once, wags its tail forever and bites nobody.

An Obsolete Survival From the Ox-Cart Period

SOON AFTER HIS ELECTION to the Presidency, Mr. Roosevelt, speaking as the Governor of the state of New York, revealed to the American people, North, East, South and West, a challenge and an opportunity when he said:

"We have a system of county government whose general form and structure is no more fit for its purpose than an ox-cart would be for the task of supplying modern transportation between New York and Chicago.

"Other states are hampered and harrassed in the conduct of their affairs of government by the same or similar archaic, expensive and wasteful forms of local government."

Under Maryland's archaic governmental system, the state has no authority to make arrests except through "the standing army" of county and local authorities.

Even the state police are simply traffic officers and the enforcement of the criminal law is in the hands of the officials of Maryland's 23 counties.

This ox-cart system of government broke down in one of Maryland's counties a few days ago. The county officials refused to obey the order of the authorities of the state government to enforce the law.

In this predicament, the governor of the state was compelled to order out the National Guard—trained, organized and equipped not for local police work but as an auxiliary of the national defense—and sent it into one of the remote corners of the state to arrest four men.

UNDER THE SAME outworn system of inefficient and extravagant local government, public education in Maryland is being starved year after year to pay the cost of a horde of unnecessary, overlapping, wasteful and local governments.

The per capita cost of educating a child in the public schools of Baltimore, according to the Federal Census Bureau, amounted to only $97.25 in 1931-32.

But it cost the citizens of Maryland approximately $801 in that year to keep a convict in prison.

In the proportion of tax money devoted to education, Dr. C. H. Katenkamp, head of one of the departments of a Maryland high school, told a Johns Hopkins University audience recently that Baltimore is among the lowest of the 25 largest American cities.

"This year," said the educator, "only one-sixth of the amount of money spent by the municipal government of Baltimore will be spent on schools."

THE ESTIMATED WEALTH of the state of Maryland in 1930, according to the federal office of education, was $4,100,000,000, but the value of the school plant of the state was only approximately $79,500,000, or 1.94 per cent.

Yet public education is one of the most important functions of government possessed by the state of Maryland or by any other state, and under the American system of government, the control and support of education is a responsibility of the state.

Neither Maryland nor any other state of the union will be able to save public education from destruction unless the people who pay the taxes organize to rid themselves of "archaic, expensive and wasteful forms of local government," built up, as President Roosevelt says, "in the days of the ox-cart" and utterly unsuited to the days of the automobile.

This is the challenge and this the opportunity which an outworn system of government presents today to tax-ridden citizens in so-called "souvereign" states all over the union.

Churches to the Rescue

But Others, Also, Should Help to Save the Welfare Fund Campaign From Failure.

To save the Welfare Fund campaign from failure and avert the tragic consequences, church members will be asked next Sunday to pledge themselves to pay to the fund on September 1, 1934, $10 in addition to any other subscriptions they may have made.

What a tribute it is to the churches, what a tribute to the philanthropy and loving-kindness of church people, that it is to them that the social service and character-building agencies constituting the Welfare Fund turn in their distress!

But non-churchgoers should not shirk their share.

The Income Tax Plan

A Supreme Court Decision Strongly Indicates That It Is Unconstitutional.

In his address to the Legislature Tuesday, Gov. Pinchot said, anent his recommendation that a graduated state income tax law be enacted:

"If it be argued that the Supreme Court is likely to declare such a tax unconstitutional, then I invite you to let the Supreme Court make that decision instead of making it yourselves."

There is pretty good indication of what the Supreme Court's decision would be in an opinion handed down in 1899, declaring unconstitutional a law which would have exempted estates consisting of not more than $5,000 of personal property from payment of an inheritance tax.

The court, in a decision written by Chief Justice James P. Sterrett, found that the act was in violation of the constitutional provision that "all taxes shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects." The court said in substance that to tax inheritances at different rates, according to the amount of property involved, would be arbitrary and illegal.

Pinchot's proposed graduated income tax would tax incomes at different rates. Is there any reason to suppose that it would be less arbitrary, less illegal?

'Give American'

This Christmas.

How about making this an AMERICAN Christmas?

You can make it that by using American gifts wherever possible, thus aiding American manufacturers and American labor.

America has the best of wishes for all countries and their peoples, particularly at the Christmas season of peace on earth, good will to men.

But America has had to think about its own people in recent years. It has to think about them this year. It should think about them particularly this Christmas when the outlook is brighter but when thousands of its families still face unemployment and want.

Anything that will give more employment and more wages to Americans ought to be the first obligation on all of us now.

"Buying American" is the shortest way to helping other Americans.

"Buying American" and "Giving American" will mean a better Christmas for ALL Americans.

Polite Americans

A Frenchman Pays a Gratifying Tribute to Our Country

No one ever thought that automobiles would help make people polite and thoughtful and considerate and kind.

Indeed, before the advent of motor traffic any thoughtful person would have been fearful of the effect of such mad locomotion on the nerves and impulses of humans. And, of course, there are many inconsiderate drivers who delight in being rude on the slightest provocation.

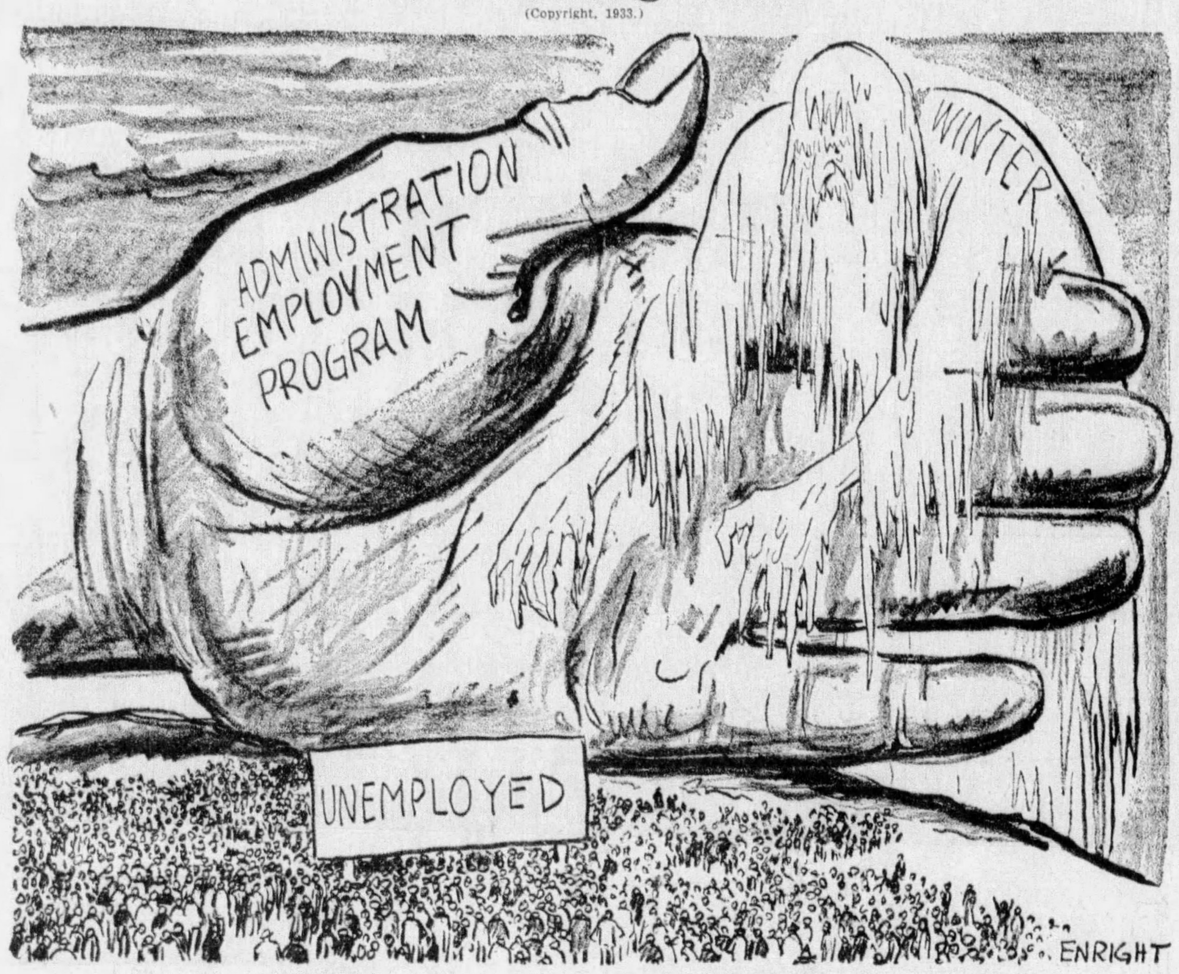
But it is almost a recognized fact that gasoline station attendants—particularly when they are trained by big corporations—go out of their way to be courteous. They are teaching good manners to millions of people—teaching ordinary decency in speech and attitude. Say what you will of the American taxicab driver, he is a quiet and considerate gentleman in contrast to the honking, shouting driver of Paris.

This gradual change toward widespread courtesy is not so apparent to us as it is to visitors. Joseph Renaud, French novelist and dramatist, after a study of Americans, had this to say:

"Never have I seen such politeness among men and women on the street as I found in America. Over and over again strangers went out of their way to help me and direct me. They were more than casual about it; they were kind. And never, all the time I was in America, did I hear taxi drivers shout abuse and revile each other and their patrons as they do in Paris."

The Shielding Hand

(Copyright, 1933.)



Four hundred Governors, Mayors and State and city relief workers heard President Roosevelt explain in a White House speech the purposes of his $400,000,000 Civil Works Program which these officials are helping to administer. The President said in part:

"This particular effort in which you and I are engaged at the present time is to put four million people from the list of those still unemployed back to work during the Winter months so that we can honestly say as a nation that this Winter is not going to be like last Winter or the Winter before . . . .

"I am very confident that the mere fact of giving real wages to 4,000,000 Americans who are today not getting wages is going to do more to relieve suffering and to lift the morale of the nation than anything undertaken before."

Human Side of the News

Vitamins and the Part They Play in the Preservation of Health

By Edwin C. Hill

VITAMINS—that's what we call them—and they are described aptly as "minute quantities of substance which are to the human machine what the ignition spark is to the automobile." We know where they are, where they come from, what they do. And now, since the American Medical Association has determined on an exhaustive study of their mysterious properties, perhaps we will find out definitely what some of them are.

It is some 50 years since German and English scientists discovered that certain other elements besides carbohydrates (which are the sugar and the starches), the proteins or albuminous substances, fats and salts were essential if life was to be sustained. Experiments on animals showed that these substances of themselves were insufficient for new growth and for supplanting worn out and dead tissue.

Thus began the painstaking research into foods and their effects. An English scientist, Hopkins, fed a known unmixed diet of carbohydrates to animals. They gradually wasted away to a dying stage, whereupon he added milk. Immediately they began to recover. It remained for the Americans, McCollum and Davis, in 1913, to find that substances extracted from eggs and butter greatly facilitated the growth of rats when such substances were added to a chemically-known diet.

* * *

Six Kinds of Vitamins Found

SIX vitamins designated by the letters of the alphabet A—B—C—D—E—and G have been discovered and labeled. You will notice that the letter F is missing, and the reason for this is that at one time there was supposed to have been a Vitamin F, but it has since been discarded by the bio-chemists.

We hear so much of vitamins these days that they are as common as sunlight, for all of their mysteriousness. Vitamin A is called anti-opthalmic because of its connection with curing an eye disease. It is found in 37 varieties of common foods covering practically all the edible vegetables and fruits and being especially prominent in cod liver oil, egg yolk, milk and spinach.

A lack of Vitamin A brings on inflammation of the eyelids, a disease which, if neglected, leads to blindness. It causes a low resistance to infections of the eyes, ears, and sinus. Other results of its absence are stunted growth and a lessening of the possibilities of longevity. Fortunately a surplus of A vitamin may be stored in the body and when this is the condition, there is increased zest or stamina, an enhancement of health and an ability to resist disease.

Vitamin B is called anti-neurotic because its discovery was the result of the curing of a nervous disease. It is known to contain two or more essential substances. Because of this last fact the English chemists have a vitamin B-1, which corresponds to what the Americans designate as vitamin G. So B (B-1 and G), individually or combined, is essential to normal health in all ages and when it is lacking we have such results as loss of appetite, indigestion, stunted growth, nervousness, beri-beri in man, polyneuritis in animals and constipation.

The best sources of this vitamin are whole grain cereals, tomatoes, kidney and navy beans, raw cabbage and fresh spinach. It is present in larger than the average amounts in yeast products, cream, fruits, potatoes, nuts, liver and egg yolk, and it is to be found in practically all vegetables and in milk, where the amount varies with the diet of the cow.

It is interesting to note that the source of the Javanese disease beri-beri was discovered by a Dutch scientist to be the diet of polished rice of the natives. The polishing process removed the shell and with it the elements of vitamin B.

* * *

Vitamin C Is A Cure for Scurvy

NOW to the third known vitamin, C, which is called anti-scorbutic, since it first was known as a cure for scurvy. Only a limited diet, totally lacking in fruits and vegetables, would cause one to have a deficiency of this vitamin. But where it is absent there is a reduced state of health, defective teeth, scurvy, fleeting pains and irritabitly.

D is the children's vitamin and the reason why they should take their cod liver oil like soldiers, drink their milk and get out in the sunshine. It is called anti-rachitic because it protects from the disease known as rickets, in which the bones are unable to calcify or harden. An absence of the vitamin tends also to impair the lungs. The element can be produced in foods by irradiation with ultra-violet rays, and it also gets into the system by exposure to the sun.

The E vitamin is essential in animal reproduction. This anti-sterility substance is found in greatest abundance in the oil of the wheat germ, in seeds and green leaves, and in beef liver and egg yolks.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Thoughts while strolling: Some day I'm going to ring the Cornelius Vanderbilt bell and inquire if they take roomers. Two dukes in a block—"Duke" Herrick and "Duke" Cross. So many dogs named Skippy. Lois Long's rosy cheeks. What became of Elsie Janis? I wish Mary McCormic could keep out of print a while.

Every dinner party has a Mae West imitator. All it requires is a hand on the hip and a whiney: "Why don't you come up to see me sometime?" One-word description of Elsa Maxwell—burbly. Frank Case looks the least of all like a hotelkeeper. And Frank Sullivan, like a humorist.

J. P. Morgan, an Arlington (N. J.) boy who made good in the city. Those lizard-among-the-hot-stones darts of Jules Glaenzer. Heywood Broun wrote the peachiest of the Texas Guinan eulogies. Bob Scripps' beard is now flecked with gray. If I never saw the avenue again, what would I want most to remember?

That mounted cop's a ringer for Chicago's Dick Greiner. Carl Van Vechten, after a year on the wagon, still goes to cocktail parties. I can recall but one toast, Kipling's: "My lords, ladies and gentlemen: For what there is of it—for such as it is, and for what it may be worth—will you drink to England and the English?"

One of my favorite people—Arthur Samuels. The beautiful Mrs. Ray Rohn. Limousines outside the five and tens. Dr. Christian Reisner and Bide Dudley, once buddies in Kansas. Lennie Bergman, Erlanger's nephew. If you care for a nice hooting, pass those garages in the 50's, wearing spats.

* * *

One of the newer audacities at private affairs is the deaf journalist from Vienna who interviews guests "for a descriptive article for his paper." His broken-up efforts at English, plus his inability to hear, overcome the natural resentment at his impertinent questions. Everybody is about ready to kill him before it is learned he is—of all things—a white haired Irishman named Peter Joseph McNamara.

* * *

McNamara, after a perspiring 15 minutes, insisted upon me spelling out my name at top voice. Finally he beamed understandingly: "Ach, I see—Whoo-whoo Mackelgaggy!"

A former newspaperman who became a Wall street customer's man went from a $65 a week post to a $35,000 a year job. He floriated in a duplex apartment in West Fifty-seventh street, entertaining lavishly until the crack-up. He is now in a Texas town running a garage and today a friend received a letter: "I am living comfortably enough but I'm not going to say happily. Jim Brady spoke the truth when he said: 'It's fun being a sucker if you can afford it.'"

* * *

Murray Hill at twilight is a vortex in the surrounding hurricane. Like London's Wimpole street, the mellow aristocracy is felt. With blinds down, one feels certain great logs are blazing in tremendous drawing rooms and that white mustached gentlemen in unstylish tuxedoes are sipping Sandeman port. Below stairs servants are crackling their evening buzz of gossip.

* * *

Although there was no autopsy, I felt certain the passing of the Sealyham was from poison. Yet at least a dozen inquire: "Did your dog have a hemorrhage? Sealyhams frequently languish and die of broken hearts in this fashion." An elderly and constant companion was carried to a hospital 10 days before he expired—and he did have a hemorrhage. Absurd—but we like to hear such romanticisms on dogs.

On infrequent nights out, it's fun to round in at the Casino and sit at Sid Solomon's table for a chat. Sid is a band-box scoffer out of the garment trade and hep to all the phoneys. He was selected by Jimmy Walker to manage the park restaurant and turned it into one of the smartest places in town. When crowds depart, Sid sheds his suavity and becomes one of Sime's "mugs." His is the most picturesque idiom, when the swells have taken off, in the town. Walker liked him around because of these stinging asides which grow tarter with the years.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Golf-Widowlogues

"Here's a psychologist, who says that no man can be happy unless he is trying to make some woman happy," says Mrs. Divot, laying down her newspaper.

* * *

"That," said Mrs. Green emphatically, "explains EVERYTHING! From the bored, disgruntled look on the average bachelor's face to the failure of companionate marriage!

"It explains why widowers, no matter how bereaved, nearly always hasten to remarry; and why gentlemen prefer clinging, little mollusks to nice, strong, efficient girls who can check their own trunks, carry their own luggage and pay their cab fare.

* * *

"Above all, it explains why modern men and women are so dissatisfied and restless. That's how cute old Dame Nature FIXED things—and we're all trying to prove that we're smarter than she is!"

* * *

"Well, don't blame ME!" said Mrs. Divot. "I've always known that no woman could be happy, unless she was trying to make some MAN happy. That's why I gave up my job to become the guardian of Bill's socks and digestion. But a man is an awful responsibility!"

* * *

"Exactly," agreed Mrs. Green. "And that's what makes you happy. No job, no work, no art, no achievement can give you the same glow of joy as does the feeling that you are 'necessary' to somebody. Just 'helping humanity,' or making the world better, or having a career doesn't take the place of it, at all.

"A man is always happiest when he is playing Santa Claus to some woman, giving her things, bringing her flowers, doing something to please and surprise her. And a weak little thing who 'needs' him gives him more sense of responsibility, which satisfies his ego, inflates his vanity and reduces his inferiority complex.

* * *

"More women have tied men to them by laying their heads and their burdens on the shoulders of the so-called stronger sex than by putting their own shoulders to the wheel and making the path to marriage easy."

* * *

"But," protested Mrs. Divot, "every young man's big idea today seems to be to dodge marriage and avoid the responsibility of supporting ANY woman. And every modern girl's big idea seems to be to find a job and escape the responsibility of keeping house for a man."

"And that," declared Mrs. Green triumphantly, "is why so many marriages go blah, and so many women go to sanitariums. When you dodge the "responsibilities of marriage you are cheating yourself out of your one chance of happiness and going against nature. And the first thing you know, you are all full of inhibitions and complexes that only a psychologist can unravel."

* * *

"Yes," agreed Mrs. Divot, with a faint sigh. "A woman—even a golf-widow—is always happiest when she is mothering some man. 'It satisfies!' But that was a mean trick for Mother Nature to play on a girl who hates cooking, and on a man who hates to go home nights!"

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

A Tall Building

I am working in an office.

I hate offices. I want to kick down the walls; then go out and blow up the streets—and let the grass come back again, and the wide sunlight, and the rough, free wind.

Why, I wonder, do men, who might build paradises for themselves, bind themselves instead in rat runways?

I think these things to myself as I sit working. But it is hard to hold myself to my work. It is hard to forget the deep woods where I have been living and the sweet silence.

So I prowl around, hating walls, hating sounds, thinking how dreadful city life is. These miles of dark, filthy alleys—these acres of ugly, huddled roofs—how hopeless they make our human life seem! If this is all we can do for ourselves after millions of years of opportunity—

Abruptly I stop—look up.

Vaulting from out the darkness of the alleys, towering above the meanness of the roofs, there rises a tall building. It is so tall that the city seems to lie in a little, scummy pool about its base. Up and up its great shaft soars, out of the noise and filth, the conflict and confusion—into the endless blue.

And against that blue it no longer seems a building. Its substance vanishes. It is a gleaming fountain—a shimmering mirage—a white dream.

Just as this building rose triumphant out of the filth of alleys, the darkness of roofs, so did the dream which created it rise above the ignorance and ugliness of our stupid spirits.

Willfully we wall ourselves into dark rat-ways of spirit and flesh. But out of those rat-ways we send a shining signal up to God!

And I thought of all of us—the confusion in me, the confusion in you—the loneliness and malice, the hunger and hate—the whole ugly clutter which we have made out of lives which might have been so beautiful and free. Day after day, year after year—from birth to death—we crawl through that clutter, grieving, rebelling.

And this we do to ourselves. And yet—

Always, in every life, there is a Tall Building!
